MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mort gage was handed into the Register's office to be re corded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corre sponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

* Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The lien filed against us by Stephen J. Egan is unjust, and we shall bond the same or deposit the money and contest it. He has not finished his work, nor has it been passed by the Board of Health, according to contract. We have offered him his money, except $500 which we wanted to retain until he had completed his contract, which he refused.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages v., viii., ix. and x.]

BRICKS.—Very little variation has developed on the general market for Hard Brick since the commencement of the year. Open weather permitted the pushing forward of considerable work, and as usual in such cases demand gave the preference to fresh arrivals and kept the cargo market fairly active, but as the state of water transportation permitted continuous shipments there was always a very good supply available and receivers found no foundation upon which they could build up an advantage beyond holding the line of value about steady, and matters have moved along in uniform uneventful shape. The present week reveals just about the same conditions, and down to the present writing there is practically the same old story both as to supply and demand and the ruling range of cost. A new feature has arisen, however, that suggests some talk about the prospects. We refer to the more pronounced evidence that winter has not entirely deserted this section of the country, and should the cold hold out for any length of time it will of course lead to a closing of the river, and possibly cut off all chance of arrivals for a while, unless Long Island manufacturers find attraction to ship in this direction. We notice that not much buoyancy of tone grows out of the contingency presented, for the apparent reason that a lower thermometer would also have an influence to retard work somewhat, and there is believed to be all in all a pretty good accumulation on hand to which dealers could resort in case of necessity, though it would be reasonable to expect a little stiffening of values.

LATH.—A meagre supply of stock with a demand ready for the offering whenever it became available has almost as a natural sequence maintained the market in healthy condition, and indeed stiffened it a trifle if anything, and reports are cheerful. A full cargo received during the week was taken entirely by one house, and additional custom is on hand seeking supply in a manner to carry confidence in ability to place all that may arrive, as the quantity afloat is small and a portion of it under contract. The general range may be placed at $2.30@2.40 per M, the latter a little extreme if anything.

LIME.—Within a couple of weeks some few cargoes have arrived, and there is a little additional stock afloat, some of it under engagements; but altogether the supply is meagre and seasonable, and receivers feel quite content over the present situation. Prices are held about as before under the old compact; but we again have an assurance that the present chances are against a renewal of the combination of manufacturers for the coming season.

LUMBER.—While general business does not pick up to any noticeable extent as yet, operators are commencing to canvass the chances and probabilities of the new year with a little more freedom. Dealers who contribute to the demand for repairs and for manufacturing purposes calculate upon a fair average trade in due season, and there is also reason to expect a pretty good call for building consumption in due time dependent, of course, somewhat upon the weather. Over the placing of bulk lots there is considerable diverging opinion over which a little more time, will be required for decision, but as matters stand at the moment it looks as though the grades dealers would be willing to handle they cannot reach in any quantity, and stuff they are in no special need of is comparatively plenty.

Eastern Spruce remains as one of the principal grades over which sellers exhibit much confidence and claim that it is hardly possible for any modification of the strong elements of the market until well into warm weather. Some allowance must, of course, be made for the optimistic suggestions emanating from primary sources, and there is reason to believe that with the logs carried over and what they may get from the present winter stock, manufacturers will be able to commence upon new production in reasonably good shape, but against that are evidence of wants already existing and likely to arise with the opening of spring trade. Of course, stock in yard is well maintained in value, and dealers in some cases if willing to risk disappointing regular custom could probably dispose of many lots at quite an advance. The compact between yard dealers is to all intents and purposes completed and in force, and in future there will probably be found a determined stand for prices paying at least a living margin over cargo rates.

Piling is firmly held and generally offered with indifference. Demand is somewhat uncertain at the moment, but prospects of plenty of work ahead continue and sellers are in no hurry about negotiating. The chances are still believed to be against any very unusual supply during the coming season.

Hemlock retains a pretty good market, especially for thoroughly standard stock, and occasional reports of something selling a little off may as usual be traced to stuff showing a modification of quality in proportion to price. Demand is not of a widespread character, yet there are few of the leading operators who do not have the opportunity for negotiating.

White Pine remains as probably the most uncertain article on the lumber list and sometimes the reports are very decidedly in conflict. It is just as trade may be caught, now and then agents manage to place quite a respectable invoice, while others, after a most protracted effort, will meet with annoying failure. It looks, however, as if buyers felt no great amount of apprehension over the situation and were reasonably well inclined to postpone negotiations for awhile on the belief that nothing can be lost and there may be some gain by waiting. At least no danger of scant supplies is supposed to exist and the prospect of decided improvement in consumption is moderate.

Yellow Pine is valued well up to former figures in pretty much all cases and there is a continued manifestation of indifference about pushing deals on the selling side of the market. Manufacturers and their agents are of course alert to all the chances for placing contracts, but they do not seem to feel there is any necessity for placing themselves in a position where buyers could exact greater advantages than they have for sometime enjoyed.

Carolina Pine receives words of praise from the selling side wherever manufacturers have strictly adhered to a high order of production and kept their output up to the standard required, and the complaints heard can generally be traced to an inferiority of quality. Values all around are supported at about the former basis.

Hardwoods are commencing to pass into consumption with a little more freedom, it is said, some of them on contract delivery, and a portion on new negotiation. The movement is fairly general, but as leaders may be named quarter sawed oak, choice ash and poplar. Over the latter there is the usual conflicting statement regarding price; but really first class stock does not afford buyers opportunity for picking up many bargains. Mahogany is just about as good selling stock as ever, and meets the ordinary proportion of interior demand. The export trade is a little uncertain, except that it does not afford much promise for a promiscuous forwarding of inferior stuff.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman has the following:

Actual conditions in the trade at large, excepting the one that has been caused by the advent of cold weather, have not materially changed since the first of the month. Dealers generally feel satisfied with their holdings, and are anticipating a good spring trade, with certainly prices not lower than prevail at the present time, with prospect that there will be an advance on some classes of lumber. The situation in this respect is, however, somewhat uncertain in respect to white pine. Logging conditions, from being dubious during the early weeks of the season, have become very favorable, and the croaker about a short crop can hereafter croak but to be laughed at. A full input is likely to result from the season's operations, and that is all that need be said. The mills will run next season up to their capacity, many of them day and night, and the markets will be amply supplied with product. Dealers can make up their minds to this outcome and govern themselves accordingly. At the same there is likely to be a large demand for consumption, as the country seems ripe for an advance in various lines of industry. The outlook is for plenty of lumber, a large demand, with conditions for higher prices not specially promising. We may conclude that prices will rule during 1890 about as they did in 1889. Thus much in respect to white pine.

There are some features of the hardwood trade that look cheerful. There is a brisk movement of quartered oak, and a cry for it that reaches from Little Rock to Boston. Eastern buyers have been after it in the Ohio River states, and a good deal has changed hands for $38 at points of shipment, which makes it worth on the eastern seaboard $50 to $51 a thousand. Considerable quartered oak has recently been sold in this city at $38 a thousand by the carload.

There has also lately been a better inquiry for walnut in Cincinnati and at points east. The call is mostly for the high grades, when the buyers are eastern men, and for common and cull in western furniture manufacturing towns. There is an active inquiry for thick machine ash, with a supply that is not abundant.

Cherry is urgently wanted at all consuming points throughout the north, and prices are very firm and higher than last year.

Reports from the south mention the good demand prevailing for cypress. The log supply at Mobile is still short, and the shingle industry correspondingly depressed. Logs are selling there at 8c. to 10c. a cubic foot.

The popular trade of Tennessee and Kentucky is in a healthy condition. Since January 1 there has been manifest a more confident tone among manufacturers and dealers, the degree of doubt and perturbation about stocks and prices that prevailed in December having passed away. Stocks of good lumber are in active demand, and prices firm.

The Mississipi Valley Lumberman as follows:

The present prospects are entirely favorable for a very large production of white pine next season. The conditions have rarely been more favorable for the loggers than those which prevail at the present time. It is morally certain that a great many logs will be got in this winter. It is also a fact that a pretty good sized surplus was carried over from last year, so that the mills will have a stock early; will be in position to commence to saw early, and presumably will make a large cut. How far this fact will influence prices remains to be seen. More depends upon how much vigor trade displays in the spring.

The Timberman, on the Chicago market, as follows:

The Exchange figures show that there was more lumber sold in this market in 1889, than any year for the past five, although it did not quite reach the 2,000,000,000 mark set for it early in the season. On the other hand it was the lightest year for shingles for the same period.

In the receipts of lumber for the year there was a falling off of 80,000,000 feet, and an increase of sales of 18,000,006, leaving a decrease of the stock on hand of 12,000,000 feet. Dealers would be satisfied with this showing if it were not for one thing and that is the falling off has been mostly in good lumber, leaving a surplus of the common and cull grades.

Quotations are made on the basis fixed by the association, and it is claimed that no lists are now being sent out from this city giving lower figures. Dealers say it would be easy enough to sell stock at old figures, but they don't know just how the higher lists will be received throughout the country.

The hardwood dealer is not taking any more chances nowadays than he can help, the numerous failures having developed his bump of caution to an abnormal extent. Some of the trade go so far as to say that the shipping trade is the only line of the business in which there is any money, and even there credits must be watched closely or the balance will be on the wrong side of the ledger.

Within a few short days the outlook for loggers has undergone a very material change and with the advent of snow a blithe activity has usurped the place of the despondency that dominated them a short time ago. Late reports from all the logging camps of the north indicate that no fears need to be entertained of a short log crop and if the prognostications of many who should be competent judges are to be given credence, the business activity of the present year will be such as to afford a market for all that are harvested.

"La grippe," not content with paying unwelcome visits to the principal cities of the land, has invaded the logging camps, and reports from the Wisconsin River are to the effect that many men in the camp are affected with the disease, and considerable anxiety prevails among the loggers over its introduction and it is feared that it may be a potent factor in retarding operations in the woods. It is said to be prevailing on the Chippewa and its tributaries, and many men are being received at the hospitals for treatment, and the logging camps on the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan have many suffering from this disease.

GREAT BRITAIN.

From Timber Trades Journal as follows:

LONDON.

American Black Walnut.—Logs of straight growth and good sizes are constantly being inquired for, and for such full prices could be obtained just now. There have been, however, very few of this sort on sale for some time past; for small and poor descriptions there is absolutely no demand. Lumber of the better grades continues to sell freely at fully-maintained prices.

American Whitewood.—Logs are not often asked for, but lumber continues to move off freely.

American Oak.—The stock of logs is small, but as there is only a very moderate demand it is, perhaps just as well that it should be so. In quarter-inchboards there continues to be a very good trade doing; it would appear, however, that the present stock is largely held by the wholesale dealers at the docks, from whom, no doubt, consumers may purchase to advantage.

Pitch pine freights are said to be weakening, and this will account probably for the present tendency of both sawn and hewn timber from the Gulf of Florida, which is decidedly downward in the London market.

GLASGOW.

There have been very few walnut logs arriving for some time past. The stock is not large—considerably under the amount held a year ago. Usually imports of walnut logs (arriving here in parcels per steamships from time to time) are at the rate of between two and three hundred monthly, which is needed to provide for the large consumption that goes on.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot since our last regular review has shown a pretty firm tone, with indeed possibly a slight increase in the general strength of the market. The position, however, was a rather quiet one as the speculative feeling has become more or less passive, the large consumers are pretty well stocked, and most of the demand was confined to ordinary lots as wanted by small buyers. Quotations are generally placed at 14⅝@14¼c. for Lake, and 13@13½c. for casting brands. Manufactured Copper is generally reported as selling well up to average run for the season, and there seems to be a healthy, cheerful sort of tone on the general market at steady rates throughout. IRON—Scotch Pig is without important change in general features, the cost at primary points continuing very full, and the demand here amounting to nothing except on the force of necessity, with rates somewhat nominal, though best brands cost $27.00@27.50 to import. A comparatively quiet tone has prevailed on the market for American Pig and beyond the continued firm tone shown by holders the market is without feature of very decided interest. Consumers seem to have largely anticipated their wants previous to the turn of the year, and the speculative feeling is quiet. We quote at $19.50@20.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $18.50@19.00 for No. 2 X do., and $17.50@18.00 for Gray Forge. Old material also has been pretty dull and to a considerable extent nominal, though control of the supply is fair, and owners say they shall expect full figures upon the resumption of trading. We quote at about $27.50@28.00 for old rails; $24.00 @25.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $19.00@20.00 for cast scrap, and $20.00@21.00 for car wheels. Manufactured Iron moves along moderately about as calculated upon and returns a steady market, with production in some cases commencing to pick up a trifle. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.09@2.05c. from store, and refined at 2.20@2.50c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.25c.; Bands, 2.50@ 2.55c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@ 3.05c. for common Nos. 10 @16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. Steel Rails do not find any increase of demand and it looks as though consumers had well anticipated present wants. Manufacturers, however, are firm and confident, with offerings of an indifferent character. We quote at $34.50@35.00 per ton for standard section at the mills and $36.00 @ 36.50 do. at tide water. LEAD—Domestic pig meeting with a slow and somewhat uncertain demand, and little of special interest brought out on the general market. We quote at 3.85@3.95c., as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 4½c.; pipe, 6c.; sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig has found some speculative attention, but of an erratic character and without forcing wide fluctuations. The dealers and consumers, however, were poor investors and contended against increased cost. We quote at about 20.50@20.55c. for round lots, and 20⅝@20¾c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plate is moving out slowly, and in most cases only on the limit of ordinary trade orders To meet the call offerings are fair and sellers are not inclined to be exacting on valuation. We quote prices as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grades, $6.12½@ 6.15, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $5.25@5.30, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.12½@7.15; M. F. grade, 20x28, $14.50@14.55; Worcester, 14x20, $5.00@——; Worcester, 20x28, $10.20@10.25; Deane grade, 14x20, $4.85@ 4.90; Dean grade, 20x28, $9.65@9.70, D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $4.55@4.65; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $9.25@ 9.40; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, $4.70@4.75; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.85@4.87½; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $5.10@5.12½ basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $5.20 @5.25 basis. Spelter without important change, the movement running in narrower limits and at steady rates. We quote $5.35@5.50 for common Western, according to brand.

The Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Association has just issued its annual report, showing the Pig Iron production in 1889 with comparisons as follows:

The total production of pig iron in the United States in 1889 was 7,604,525 gross tons, against 6,489,738 gross tons in 1888, an increase of 1,114,787 gross tons, or over 17 per cent. Reducing gross to net tons, our production in 1889 was 8,517,068 net tons, against 7,268,507 net tons in 1888. When it is remembered that our production in 1888 was the largest in our history down to that time the magnitude of production in 1889 will be more fully comprehended. The production of the first half of 1889 was 3,662,486 gross tons, and the production of the second half was 3,942,039 gross tons, an increase in the last half of 279,553 gross tons. The increased production in the second half of 1889 was wholly due to the increasing demand for Bessemer pig iron.

The stocks of pig iron which were unsold in the hands of makers or their agents on the 31st of December last, and which were not intended for the consumption of the manufacturers, amounted to only 277,401 net tons, against 336,161 net tons at the close of 1888. There was, however, an increase in stocks during the first half of 1889, the figures on the 30th of June amounting to 563,286 net tons. There was, therefore, a considerable decrease in stocks in the last half of the year. In addition to the stocks above noted, the American Pig Iron Storage Warrant Company advises us that at the close of 1889 there were 36,200 gross tons, or 40,544 net tons, of pig iron in its warrant yards.

The production of pig iron in 1889 according to the fuel used was as follows, compared with the production of the two preceding years:

Fuel—Net tons.	1887.	1888.	1889.
Bituminous	4,270,635	4,743,989	5,952,414
Anthracite and coke.	1,919,640	1,648,214	1,575,936
Anthracite alone.	418,749	277,515	344,358
Charcoal	578,182	598,789	644,360

Pennsylvania shows the largest actual gain, with Alabama next, Pennsylvania's increase over 1888 being 592,056 net tons, and Alabama's 341,933 tons. The great progress made by the entire South in the production of pig iron in the last four years is shown in the following table:

States—Net tons.	1886.	1887.	1888.	1889.
Alabama	283,859	292,762	449,492	791,425
Tennessee	199,166	250,344	267,931	294,655
Virginia	156,250	175,715	197,396	251,356
West Virginia	98,618	82,311	95,259	117,900
Kentucky	54,844	41,907	56,790	42,518
Georgia	46,490	40,947	39,397	27,559
Maryland	30,502	37,427	17,606	33,847
Texas	3,250	4,383	6,587	4,544
North Carolina	2,200	3,640	2,400	2,888
Total	875,179	929,436	1,132,858	1,566,702

There has been a gratifying increase in the production of spiegeleisen in 1889, the production being 86,812 net tons, against 54,769 tons in 1888.

Much has recently been written about the possibility of our overtaking Great Britain in 1890 in the produc tion of pig-iron. The following comparative figures will throw some light on this subject:

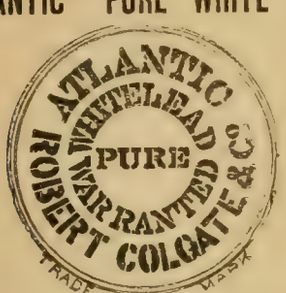
Years—Gross tons.	Great Britain.	United States.
1882	8,586,680	4,623,323
1883	8,529,300	4,595,510
1884	7,811,727	4,097,868
1885	7,415,469	4,044,526
1886	7,009,754	5,683,329
1887	7,559,518	6,417,148
1888	7,998,969	6,489,738
1889 (estimated for Great Britain)	8,300,000	7,604,525

We do not think that we will pass Great Britain in 1890, if trade conditions in both countries should continue as they now are. In 1889 we exceeded her production in 1887.

NAILS.—A regular trade deal covers about all the present business, and there is not much new to suggest at the moment. Holders of stocks claim confidence in the situation, offer without pressure and generally ask former rates, but outside holders are occasionally shading a trifle. We quote at $2.10@2.15 per keg for car lots, and $2.15@2.20 per keg for parcels from store.



PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business has been in the main of a jobbing character, and is expected to continue so for a short time. Certain indications, however, carry an idea that within a few weeks both local and interior wants will improve, and as most stocks are down to seasonable proportions owners carry them in a sufficiently confident manner to maintain pretty steady rates. Linseed Oil a little slow of sale, but steadily held all around. On first hand lots the quotations are 58@60c. for Western, and 60@62c. for City. Spirits Turpentine continues to sell very slowly, and prices are gradually falling off. We quote at 42½@43½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Scarcely any business doing beyond ordinary channels, and a quiet market, as usual, brings with it some uncertainty in the matter of values, though about former figures are asked. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.25@2.50, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

The stock market seems to hold fast to its long run of hard luck. No sooner does it give evidence of activity and a better feeling than immediately comes along the Sixth National Bank trouble and upsets confidence again. The average operator has not yet forgotten the Ives financiering, nor how the stock market continued for months after that exposure to feel its effects, and considering this, it is marvelous the market did not give way more than it has. It is probable that we have heard the worst of this matter, but it certainly makes one shiver to think how nearly these schemers came not only to totally wrecking the Sixth National, but how close were their hands to the vaults of other prominent institutions, the stock control for which they were negotiating. Undoubtedly the average, so called, English syndicate hereafter will be watched more closely. So far as the general outlook is concerned everything looks better with the close of each week of the year. The price of a number of stocks has enhanced not a little since the first of January, and this process is very likely to continue. The rate of exchange in England is more or less of a spectre to many operators, but it is nothing compared to the fright which the English capitalist gets every time he sees the rate of exchange at a point which would compel shipment from England of any quantity of gold. General business is good and orders from mer chants indicate light stocks held through the country, which fact shows that with anything like ordinary consumption we are sure to have good trade.

It is to be regretted deeply that the World's Fair bill at Albany was not promptly passed without the bickering of politicans and property-owners. The measure has in a sense been besmirched, and the moral effect which it should have had in Washington and throughout the entire country has been materially lessened if not practically lost. The bill should have been made to represent the spontaneous enthusiasm of the Empire State, of all classes, of all factions. Censure for the delay that has arisen out of politics belongs wholly to the politicians who have caused it. The people are in no way responsible for this. Never for a moment have they viewed the bill in a political light. They want the Fair to be located here in this city, not altogether for any local advantages that might accrue to them; but for larger reasons, as citizens of "no mean country." So long as the Fair is properly managed they care little as to the politics of those into whose hands the management falls. As to the opposition that has come from property-holders, is there not good reason for thinking that it is based, to a degree at least, upon misunderstanding? It is true the bill provides that the commission may condemn and acquire in fee any land they deem necessary. The power given is undoubtedly large, undoubtedly also it might have been circumscribed somewhat; but is there any reason for assuming that this power will be indiscriminately used to the disadvantage of all property-owners on the site that has been selected? To assume that it will, is about as unwarranted as the criticism of the Evening Post, which says, that under the provisions of the bill the commissioners might proceed to condemn and acquire the Chemical Bank building or the Fifth Avenue Hotel. In a legal discussion points of this kind may have a proper place but they are largely factitious and of little value in a great popular movement of vast importance to the city. The commissioners might, but they are not likely to, attempt to acquire in fee the 200 acres or thereabouts that are supposed to be necessary for the Exposition. Some of the land should be acquired outright—that is, the land that may be necessary for the permanent preservation of any of the Fair buildings. This land would be used for "city purposes" as certainly as park lands are, despite what meaning legal quibblers may give that term. For such land the city should pay handsomely, and no doubt it was only in view of this necessary acquisition that the power to take land in fee was conferred at all upon the commission. The bill was too hurriedly drafted to permit of exact definition, and too hastily pushed in the Legislature to admit of ample explanation. So much time has been lost now that it might be well to delay a little longer and amend the bill so that the land to be taken in fee shall be deliminated. The rights of property owners should be protected, of course; but, on the other hand, the larger interest of the city in so important a matter as this of the World's Fair should not be overlooked.

The National Convention of Builders practically "dodged" the eight-hour movement question when it came up for discussion, by resolving that the association deemed it inexpedient to take any action that might hamper the local exchanges. There is, undoubtedly, some reason for such a course, for the same conditions do not prevail in all parts of the country, and it is proper that the local bodies should be free to act in conformity with these; but, admitting this, the question in its larger features is a national one, and the convention could easily have declared its views without formally binding its affiliated societies to any course of action. From the telegraphic reports of the meeting it would seem that the sentiment of the convention, so far as it can be inferred from the debate, was not very favorable to the movement, and, indeed, the resolution finally adopted goes to prove that. The convention "tabled" the matter and left the local bodies to deal with the problem. The subject, however, is not to be so easily disposed of. The labor organizations, especially in the building trade, are strong and are determined to force the fight with the master builders on the point. There is to-day, in this city, an undercurrent of feeling that is making for a general strike for an eight-hour day on the first of May; an eight-hour day, moreover, not such as that which Mr. Deeves has in mind, wherein the new condition, will be "equalized" for the employer by payment by the hour, so that an eight-hour day will mean eight-hour pay. It is to be hoped that this question will be treated by both parties to the issue in a fair-minded and liberal way. It is one of great importance not only to those directly interested but to the nation at large. The nature of the question moreover, is of such a character that it will not be settled until it is wisely settled, not according to superficial appearances, or the dictates of momentary self-interest, but according to all the facts that bear on the matter.

During the past week the Mayor called a conference of certain of the city officials to discuss the subject of street cleaning and the way in which it could be most effectually done. The departmental heads present at the conference were Commissioner Loomis, Deputy Commissioner Hagan, Commissioner Gilroy, Corporation Counsel Clark, Police Superintendent Murray and President Wilson of the Board of Health. This conference, we believe, is something of an innovation for Mayor Grant. Hitherto no such consultation has been called: each departmental head has gone his own way irrespective more or less of the ways of other departmental heads. For this and other reasons it would be well to hold them more frequently. Mayor Grant, it must be remembered, is clothed by the Consolidation act with responsibility for the honest and efficient management of every city department. The various heads are practically his clerks, just as the various departmental secretaries in Washington are clerks of the President. It would be better, perhaps, if they were collectively responsible like the board of directors of a railroad or the English Cabinet; but, considering that all the accountability is lodged in the Mayor, it is obvious that he, if he wishes to perform his duties efficiently, should work in harmony with the different heads of departments, and confer with them collectively or individually, according as the subject was of general or of special importance. Ex-Mayor Low, of Brooklyn, the first chief executive of that city who was responsible as Mayor Grant is responsible, strongly advocates these conferences. He says: "The heads of departments having been appointed, it was the custom of the writer to hold a meeting in the Mayor's office with all his executive appointees once every week, except during the summer when the Common Council was not in session. * * * When a question was brought up of general interest to the city the whole company discussed it, giving the Mayor the advantage of their experience and judgment. These weekly councils were of great value to the Mayor in determining his attitude on the various questions raised during his term by the Common Council of the city. * * * These gatherings of the executive officers were useful in other ways than this. They made all the heads of departments personally acquainted with each other, and converted the machinery of the city government from separate and independent departments into one organization working in complete harmony and with singleness of aim."

The best friends of our present municipal administration can hardly claim that it is "an organization working in complete harmony and with singleness of aim." On the contrary, the disputes between the Mayor and the various departmental heads have been as constant and apparently as ill-tempered as the traditional enmity between the hero and villain of a melodrama. Some of the squabbles which took place during the meetings of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may have been founded on justifiable differences of opinion; but they certainly implied a lack of harmony in the workings of the different parts of the city administration which is at wide variance with the unity of aim of which ex-Mayor Low speaks. It may be argued with justice that this is not Mr. Grant's fault. If he had the power when he came into office to make a clean sweep of all the leading city officials, just as the President has of all the secretaries, then indeed he could work in harmony with his subordinates; but as it stands these officials have specified terms, and the Mayor has to wait until these terms elapse before making his appointments. All this may be admitted; yet without inconsistency we may couple it with the regret that, although his hands are tied in the matter he has been more apt to confer with the Tammany "Big Four" on important municipal questions than the departmental heads. At all events, the precedent he has set in consulting the heads of other departments as to the most effectual methods of street cleaning is one that should be followed in other cases.

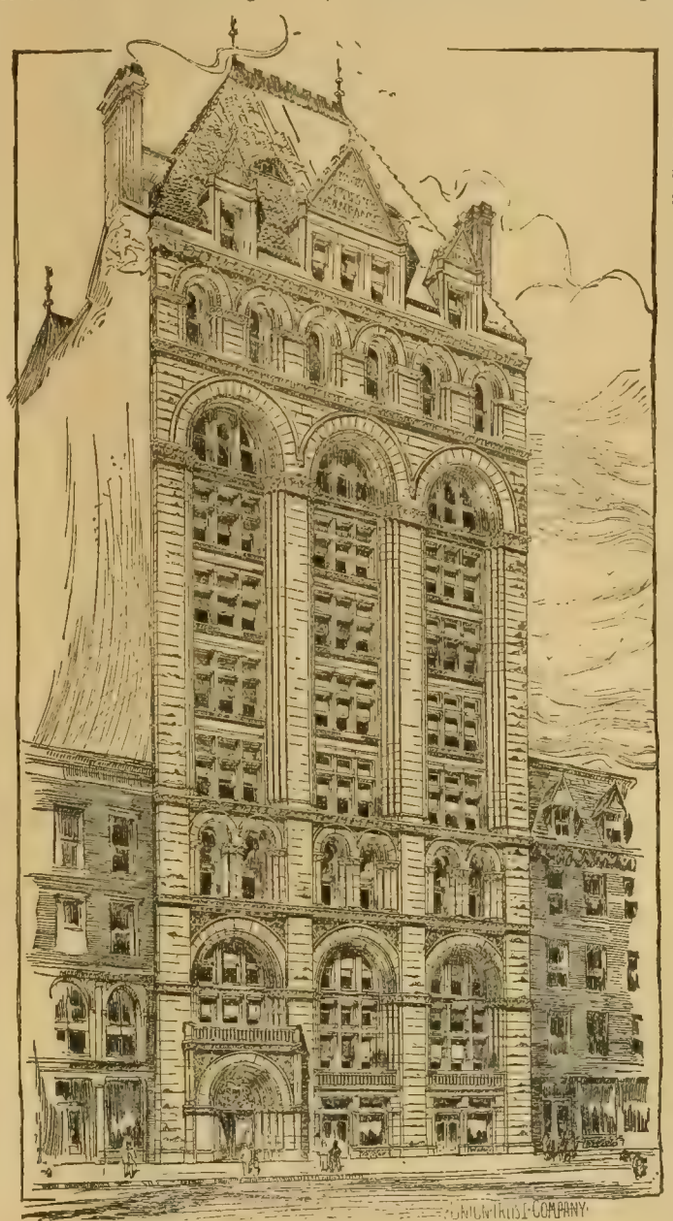
New York and Our Foreign Trade.

Baltimore is awakening from her long industrial lethargy and is now giving hopeful signs of regaining her old place as a commercial centre. Ship-building, for which that port was once famous, has been revived. Her elevators have become inadequate to receive the increasing volume of grain that keeps steadily pouring in. During the last year she exported twenty times as much oats as in 1888, four times as much corn-meal, twice as many cattle, and a large percentage more of beef, hams, bacon, tallow, cheese and other produce. Her receipts of corn during 1889 amounted to 18,354,018 bushels, as against 6,944,839 bushels in 1888, exports in this produce aggregating more than four times that of the previous year.

This enormous increase of export trade for Baltimore cannot be attributed wholly to the large grain crops and general prosperity of last year. The year of 1888 was also one of abundant crops, yet this would scarcely appear from the export trade of Baltimore during that year. The truth is that Baltimore is gaining as a commercial centre at the expense of others of our larger seaboard cities. An examination of the grain and produce trade of New York during the last few years gives weight to the belief that this city is one of those which is losing to the advantage of Southern ports. New York, connected as it is by canal with the great inland lakes, and by immense systems of railroads with the grain-growing States of the West and Northwest, should boast of no seaboard rivals, yet, though at present her commercial supremacy is undisputed, it is certainly not secure. In 1880 the grain brought by canals to New York reached close to 75,000,000 bushels, while during the year which has just closed less than 45,000,000 bushels were brought by canal. Shipping statistics for New York show that her foreign trade, measured by the number of ship arrivals, increased only slightly during 1889 over that of 1888, while it still remains much below the amount carried on by this port in 1887, 1886 and 1885. Measured in the same way, the coasting trade of New York shows an actual falling off during the last year.

Why is it that during prosperous years New York's grain and produce trade is dull, while that of less favorably situated seaports is thriving? One reason, and a chief one, is that the city of New York is completely deprived of the benefits of the canal, which is the connecting link between the great lakes and the ocean, by the contravention of grain elevator monopolies which have obtained control of the ports of Buffalo and New York, the canal terminals, and neutralize the advantage of waterway transportation by levying heavy tributes in the shape of grain elevator tolls. The grain elevators at these terminal ports have fallen under the control of railway companies, which use this means of taxing canal transports to enlarge railroad traffic. The tolls which the elevator monopolies have charged, and endeavor to still continue, for the transfer of grain to the canal at Buffalo is $14.50 per thousand bushels and $18 per thousand bushels for transferring the grain at the port of New York, making an average of three and a-half cents a bushel, which those who ship grain via the canal must pay. In contrast to this, the cost to all rail routes to deliver grain from cars to ocean vessels at the port of New York is—including trimmers' charges—not more than one-half of one cent per bushel. In this way cheap transportation by the canal is neutralized by monopolies working in the interest of railroad companies which control the ports at either end.

Another obstruction to New York trade is the system of leasing piers and bulkheads. These public piers fall into the hands of sail-boat and steamboat companies to the exclusion of individual shippers who cannot pay the price which they command. While this system of leasings the piers and bulkheads bring in a revenue to the city, the income from this source is more than offset by the discouragement it gives to trade. Through the influence of leading owners or lessees of these wharves, the laws of the State now permit a heavy tax to be levied on vessels making fast to any pier or wharf within the port of New York. Bills introduced to repeal this obnoxious wharfage law are repeatedly defeated through the influence of railroad corporations and other syndicates which have secured a monopoly of the piers. Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, and all other lake ports furnish free wharfage accommodations to all shipping, and New York should do the same. The canal itself is in great need of improvement, but bills making appropriation to this end invariably meet with defeat in the State Legislature on account of the opposition of private corporations who now profit from its injured condition.



If New York is to maintain her commercial supremacy it is necessary that some measures be taken to sweep away these obstructions to the freedom of her trade. Wharves, together with the buildings constructed upon them, such as grain elevators, are natural monopolies and the State should not allow them to remain in the hands of private corporations.

The Subsidy bill now before Congress will probably be passed. It provides that any vessel constructed and owned in the United States, registered according to the laws thereof, and trading between ports in this country and foreign ports, shall receive from the National Treasury 30 cents per gross ton for every 1,000 miles sailed. Certainly this ought to be satisfactory to shipowners, and should make the shipping business a peculiarly profitable one in this country. According to its provisions the owners of a steamer like the City of Paris would receive from the people, through taxation, the sum of nearly $19,000 for every round trip made between New York and Liverpool; or, if one round trip were made every month, about $228,000 a year. Four boats, costing probably not more than $5,000,000, would be sufficient for the express service of one company. They would receive from the government $912,000 per annum, or more than 18 per cent. yearly on their investment, supposing that the revenue from freight, passengers and mails were only just sufficient to provide for running expenses, insurance, etc. In other words, in every two years that company would receive a bounty more than equal to the cost of one of their vessels. Of course, as under the provisions of the bill, the boats would have to be constructed in this country, the cost might be somewhat in excess of the figures given above, though Mr. Camp said the other day at Washington that he could build steamers, quality for quality, as cheaply as they could be built in Europe. However, this is scarcely to be credited in view of well-known facts. But there is margin enough in the figures of the foregoing calculation to permit it to stand as it is, for the operation of such a line as is supposed would surely yield some profit; and supposing we say the government subsidy amounted to only 12 per cent. on the investment it is an enticing profit as things go nowadays, and will no doubt be a nice plum for capitalists with some millions to invest in steamboats. It is not disguised that the people will have to pay for this. But our "merchant marine" will be "rehabilitated," and though we are able to sell only one hundred million dollars' worth of manufactured goods of all kinds in Europe we will be more successful in other parts of the world if we have steamships. Indeed that "trade follows the flag," meaning thereby the nationality of the ship, is an axiom of our own political economists who are patriotic enough to break away from the teachings of foreign theorists of the Mill-Bastiat-Cairnes type. Many of the large steamship owners and builders of the country have appeared before the House Committee in Washington who have charge of the Subsidy bill, and they not only support the measure but are unanimously of the opinion that this country can acquire its rightful position in the shipping of the world only by means of subsidies. Ambrose Snow, the Vice-President of the American Shipping League, said "the shipbuilders of the whole country are enthusiastically interested and in favor" of the bill, and pointed out to the chairman that the shipping of the world "was a battle after all, governments against governments, and not interests against interests." Counting what has been paid for mail service as subsidy, England has subsidized her shipping during the last one hundred years to the amount of $275,000,000. No wonder her commerce is as large as it is.

Judge Andrews has appointed Andrew H. Green, Dwight H. Olmstead and Edward C. Donnelly to appraise the easements of eleven pieces of property for the elevated railroad companies. The property involved is situated on Church, Murray, West 53d and 23d streets, and on 1st and 2d avenue.

The Union Trust Company.

It is common to hear the new building of the Union Trust Company, in Broadway just below Wall street, spoken of as "a slice of the Times building." It is quite true that the architect, the same in both cases, has used over again, on a scale somewhat smaller, the main motive of the Times building, or rather of its northern front, which is the most successful in the building. In this front the awkwardness of resting the central mullion of a coupled arch, a mullion so massive and stalwart as to be in fact a pier, upon the crown of another arch is avoided by the interposition of a single story between the group of three stories below and of four stories above. This awkwardness is the chief drawback to the success of the Park row front of the Times building—this and the meagreness of the main entrance, which in so large a building has a look even of meanness. Although the front is considerably narrower than the north front of the Times building, it looks as wide, since it is, architectually, two stories lower. The material is also more favorable to an effort of massiveness, being a rather dark granite throughout in place of the light limestone over a granite base of its prototype.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY BUILDING.

The basement of the building here comprises four stories, though the lowest is somewhat underground, and really a basement, so that it scarcely counts. The uppermost is the separate story which serves, so to say, as a dado for the basement and separatest from the central division. This intermediate story is a range of three pairs of round arches arranged between the piers so as not to interrupt them; the piers, four in number, continuing from the ground to the spring of the great arches above the eighth story, forming a triple division of the front laterally and giving vertical lines so powerful as to be distinctly predominant in spite of the emphasis given to the horizontal lines. The three arches of the basement are slightly withdrawn from the plane of the piers and turned between them, and as the opening extends from pier to pier at the impost, the arch itself is cut by the piers. The jambs of the lower story are simply squared, while in the second they are modeled into three nook-shafts of which the capital is the continuous and rather rich impost moulding. The northernmost bay, for a story and a half is given to the entrance, a broad and deep and widely splayed round arch, very similar in treatment to that at the centre of the north front of the Times building. The spandrils of this arch, as well as the arches between the piers, are filled with carving. A decorated string course crosses the front below the intermediate story and another above it. The detail of the basement is all excellent and appropriate, neither petty nor exaggerated in scale, and although the basement meets all the commercial necessities that are so difficult to reconcile with architectural requirements, it is an adequate and dignified substructure.

It is the central division, however, including the five stories between the fourth and the tenth, that constitute the striking and characteristic feature of the building. Three openings, closed by round arches above the tenth story, are continued through this central group. The intermediate divisions are as plain and inconspicuous as possible, merely a grill of mullions and transoms, the latter widened at the floor lines. The piers are unbroken from the lightly moulded base to the impost of the arches. Indeed they are virtually continuous, and visibly form the skeleton of the building, from the sidewalk up, in spite of the string courses that transverse them. Above the eighth story they are furnished with a continuous capital in the shape of a richer, stronger and deeper string course than those below, while the jambs are modeled into shafts also recognized in the capital. This feature has its counterpart in the Times building, but it is here developed and modified and every change is an improvement. In detail, at least in the adjustment and scale of the detail, there is no room for improvement, but the composition of the later work is very much more successful, successful as the earlier was. The basement has a story less here, and the central division a story more, thus unmistakably designating the latter as the principal member of the composition, whereas in the Times building there is a somewhat confusing uncertainty on this point. Moreover, the two-storied division above the principal division is here abolished, and its place is taken by another intermediate story repeating that above the basement, but with a difference. The piers ceasing at the impost of the principal arches, the triple lateral division ceases also, and the whole wall field is available. Accordingly the tenth story is an arcade of round-headed openings not coupled, as in the fourth, but equally spaced, and set upon a continuous and decorated sill course. An emphatic but not exaggerated cornice crowns the wall and completes the second member of the composition, the third being the steep roof, with its three picturesque gabled dormers, the central one of three openings and a single opening on each flank.

The rear of the building, on New street, is architecturally not less important than the Broadway front, which it repeats with some difference, made necessary by the greater height on this front owing to the sharp decline in the level of Wall street, and by the change of material, which is here buff brick used with buff terra cotta. The front is even more picturesque than that on Broadway, inasmuch as we can get a "glimpse" of it, as one can of so few buildings in the rectangular and regular parts of the town. There is nothing more inspiring in its way in New York than the view north from the corner of New street and Exchange place, with the Union Trust Company on the left, nothing more paintable and nothing that gives a more favorable notion of our commercial architecture. If anybody asserts that the Union Trust Company is the very best specimen of that architecture yet produced we shall not quarrel with him. We are indebted for the use of the cut of the Union Trust building to the Architectural League.

According to telegraphic reports there was a lively session on Monday at the meeting of the National Association of Builders in St. Paul, when Mr. Richard Deeves, of this city, denounced labor organizations. He said: "To-day, all over this land, there is a loud outcry against trusts, and I shall make no effort to defend them, as I believe they are injurious to the best interests of the nation; but the labor trusts, which receive the least denunciation, are the worst, because they are the most despotic, unreasonable and injurious." We do not know how these statements were received by the association to whom they were addressed, but it is to be regretted that Mr. Deeves, whose opinions are usually liberal, should take so narrow a view of so important a subject. In the first place it is not quite correct to say that there is a loud outcry against trusts all over the land. There was such an outcry some time ago, but to-day it is scarcely to be heard, if indeed it is not silent. What cry there was proceeded chiefly from the somewhat large mouths of blatant demagogues, who unfortunately infest all parts of the country, greatly to the detriment of the real interests of the public. Every one who followed the agitation against trusts knows that it was chiefly the agitation of "scurvy" politicians (to use Shakespeare's adequate phrase) on the "strike," political or pecuniary. This agitation received remarkably little support from political economists or thoughtful business men, and the outcome of it has been practically nothing. Trusts, as THE RECORD AND GUIDE has been saying for the last two or three years, "are here to stay." The same must be said of labor organizations. In themselves they are perfectly legitimate. It would be interesting to know upon what principle Mr. Deeves would prohibit individuals combining to better their condition or increase the value of their own possessions. No man is obliged to employ labor or purchase commodities upon terms unsatisfactory to himself. It is ridiculous for the employer of labor or the consumer to demand the forced perpetuation of conditions that are to his advantage, and to deny to the laborer and the producer the right to protect themselves. If the State is to intervene to prohibit the latter's increasing wages or prices, it would be only right for the State also to fix the minimum wages and prices that the employer and the consumer shall pay. This, however, is not necessary. Mr. Deeves, and those who think as he does, should recognize at once that the individual has a right to combine with others to establish the price at which he will sell his services or his possessions. What Mr. Deeves probably objects to is the injustice which these organizations sometimes perpetrate—as in the case of boycots and the forced prevention of laborers filling vacant situations in a strike. But here Mr. Deeves' case is not against combination or organization in itself, but against the administration of the law of the land which permits these organizations to outstep the limits of legitimate action. His cry should be against our corrupt, inefficient police and judiciary. He has none against the right of people to combine.

The appointment by Street Commissioner Loomis of a politician of the most objectionable class as Deputy-Commissioner need not necessarily be taken as an indication that our streets will be as poorly cleaned in the future as they have been in the past, but it effectually disposes of the hope that it is possible to get anything out of the Tammany cow except Tammany milk. We may give Mayor Grant credit for being earnest in his desire to depart from the Constantinople standard in the matter of cleaning our streets, but his earnestness is qualified by a concomitant desire to give to the Tammany leaders such opportunities as their eminent service to the organization demands. On the whole, although it is probable that something will be accomplished simply because of the indefensibility of his position in case the converse was true, it is quite certain that at the outset a wrong method had been adopted, and the good results are liable to be as meagre and unsatisfactory as the philosophy of a fool. It is too soon to predict failure, but if the minor appointments are to be made on the same principle as that of the Deputy-Commissioner the result may be to strengthen Tammany Hall, but our streets are liable to remain dirty. The causes which have kept our thoroughfares in a condition that warrants ex-President White, of Cornell, feeling homesick when wandering through Constantinople, are not such as can be removed by the simple resignation of a commissioner. The responsibility does not lie with any individual. Ultimately it rests with the voters of this city for permitting by their indifference the present system of rewarding party effort with public office.

Men and Things.

Readers of the Sun may possibly during the past week have come across the following testimonial to Peter Jackson, the prize-fighter:

We, the undersigned, cabin passengers of the steamship Adriatic, from Liverpool to New York, desire at the termination of the voyage to convey to you our thorough appreciation of your modest and gentlemanly deportment while crossing the Atlantic in our company. We beg to assure you of our earnest wishes for your future success in your profession, and we have every confidence that your uniform courtesy and cheerful disposition will be at all times a passport for you into the society of gentlemen. We, the undersigned passengers, have great pleasure in presenting you with this testimonial of our sincere appreciation: D. B. Saxton, P. E. Lamalicie, Col. A. B. Lindermen, Col. George H. Corey, W. R. Davison, H. R. Williams, Alexander S. Hill, F. E. Bree, Charles Peterson, George W. Benny, J. R. Palmer, F. Dennison, W. S. Charles, N. A. Shiell, P. W. Bellard, J. Craig, Jr., Godolphin Burslem, W. H. Clever, Dr. James Hewitt, R. M. Whitney, Gill Robinson, D. W. Way and the Rev. James Black, M. A.

Readers of Mark Twain may remember an incident related in one of his books of travel telling of the annoyance expressed by the inhabitants of a Swiss chalet, when the rock in which the cottage was located was blown up, and the house and its occupants were scattered to the four winds of Heaven. In the same sense I was mildly surprised when I happened on the above paragraph. Human nature is proverbially imperfect in such wise that it has always been singular to me that a custom has not arisen, when two people are introduced, of each saying to the other immediately: "God forgive you." Yet with all our imperfections there are certain qualities which all of us must possess in order to be worthy of living in society. Some of us, it is true, do not possess them. Such people we either avoid, lock up or hang. The presence of these qualities is not a merit; their absence is a positive defect. In a literary way, we do not praise a man for being grammatical, although we condemn him for being ungrammatical. The qualities I am speaking of constitute the grammar of social existence. The application of all this is obvious. If Mr. Peter Jackson asked for the above testimonial, that in itself would be a sufficient reason why it never should be given. If on the other hand the testimonial was voluntary, Mr. Peter Jackson would have an opportunity for making a good use of his fists in knocking down the signers of it. It is usual, I believe, to get testimonials of that kind for patent medicines; but a certification that one man is fit to associate with his kind ought to be unnecessary. Peter Jackson owes small thanks to the passengers of the Adriatic.

It was hardly to be expected that Mark Twain's most recent work would be favorably received in England, yet few Americans could have foreseen the unqualified condemnation which has greeted its appearance. It was Mr. Clemens' intention, doubtless, to contrast the practical shrewdness and the large mechanical resources of the modern Yankee with the turbulent ignorance and brutal violence of the feudal ages. This has been attempted several times before; but never with the same elaboration of detail which Mr. Clemens has put into his book. It is open to criticism on the ground that he endows his Yankee with a knowledge and a shrewdness which may be exhibited by a nation in the aggregate, but which no single individual can claim to possess. Our ordinary Yankee would make a sorry spectacle in the Court of King Arthur, or of any other mediæval monarch. How many of us if transplanted to other conditions would have sufficient knowledge of the inventions and appliances of modern times to hold his own against the more brutal methods of the feudal ages. Other reasons, however, made the book particularly open to English criticism. The selection of King Arthur's Court as the field of operations of the energetic Yankee, coupled with the fact that this representative of modern machinery was emphatically a local creature, was liable at the outset to create antagonism. The myth of King Arthur, embodying as it did the chivalry, self-sacrifice, courtesy and romance of feudal times, and clothed as it is with additional sacredness by the beauty of Tennyson's verse, is a legend as dear to Englishmen as the tales of the gods were to the Greeks, or the Nieblungen Lied to the Germans. They are creatures of fancy, not of fact; and to hold them up to elaborate ridicule, because they did not possess qualities and attain to knowledge which would have leveled them to the prose of modern life, is at once silly in itself and offensive to any one to whom King Arthur was more than a mere sceptre-bearer, or Sir Launcelot different from a mere swash-buckler. It would have served Mr. Clemens' purpose almost equally as well if he had imagined his own court and country instead of injuring the susceptibilities of them to whom romance is still a thing of value by making fun of King Arthur and his Knights because they knew nothing about a steam engine or nickel-in-the-slot machine.

A few of the criticisms of the London Telegraph on Mr. Clemens are worth reading. The article begins with the following unimpeachable remark: "A book which tries to deface our moral and literary currency by bruising and soiling the image of King Arthur, as left to us by legend and as consecrated by poetry, is a very unworthy production of a great humorist's pen." It goes on to compare Mark Twain, in this particular book, to a Cockney who put a flaming tie around the neck of Apollo Belvidere, or stuck a clay pipe between the lips of Venus de Medici. "Stilted tragedies," it says, "artificial melo-dramas, unnatural acting, are properly held up to ridicule, on the stage or in parodies." To this list may be added false sentiment in verse, false tricks of style and grotesque mannerisms in action—anything, in short, which pretends to be what it is not, or which is marred in its harmony by an incongruous element. But in the last two paragraphs of the article I am sorry to see that the London Telegraph falls into exactly the same error as did Mark Twain. At bottom, Mr. Clemens' mistake was the condemnation of a beautiful piece of legendary poetry from the point of view of absolute prose. The Telegraph responds with equal absurdity by condemning things prosaic from the point of view of poetry. Doubtless in the light of the ideals of the Knights of the Round Table, the ambitions of our own people would not appear particularly noble. But the comparison is ridiculous. "Were King Arthur," says our mentor, "to descend in New York to-morrow, he would make for Wall street, where he would find a host of men whose word is as good, and as bad as their bond-railway schemers who plunder the shareholders of a continent, and are ever intent, by every device of falsehood and of plot, to deceive each other, and to defraud the public." And the article is ended by the following questions, which are evidently intended as posers: "Under which king will the Americans serve—the ideal or the real? Will they owe allegiance to King Arthur or Jay Gould?" The answer is, I conceive, that the questions are not worth asking. It is the merest commonplace that real life in this country, as elsewhere, is sordid, mean and unprofitable, and everybody will admit that it is a little hard on that long-suffering individual, Mr. Jay Gould, to compare him to King Arthur.

An Exchange Election.

The Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange held their annual election on Tuesday, at 1 P. M. There was a large attendance of members present and the officers elected were as follows: President, Samuel I. Acken; Vice-President, William C. Smith; Treasurer, Edmond A. Vaughan; Secretary, Henry W. Redfield; Trustees, John J. Tucker, William Brennan, Robert C. Martin, Otto M. Eidlitz, Henry M. Dickinson, Thomas M. Mulry, Henry A. Maurer; Examiners (Bureau of Buildings), Warren A. Conover, Edwin Dobbs; Inspectors of Election, Thomas E. Tripler, Jacob Voorhis, A. E. Pelham.

Removal Notice.

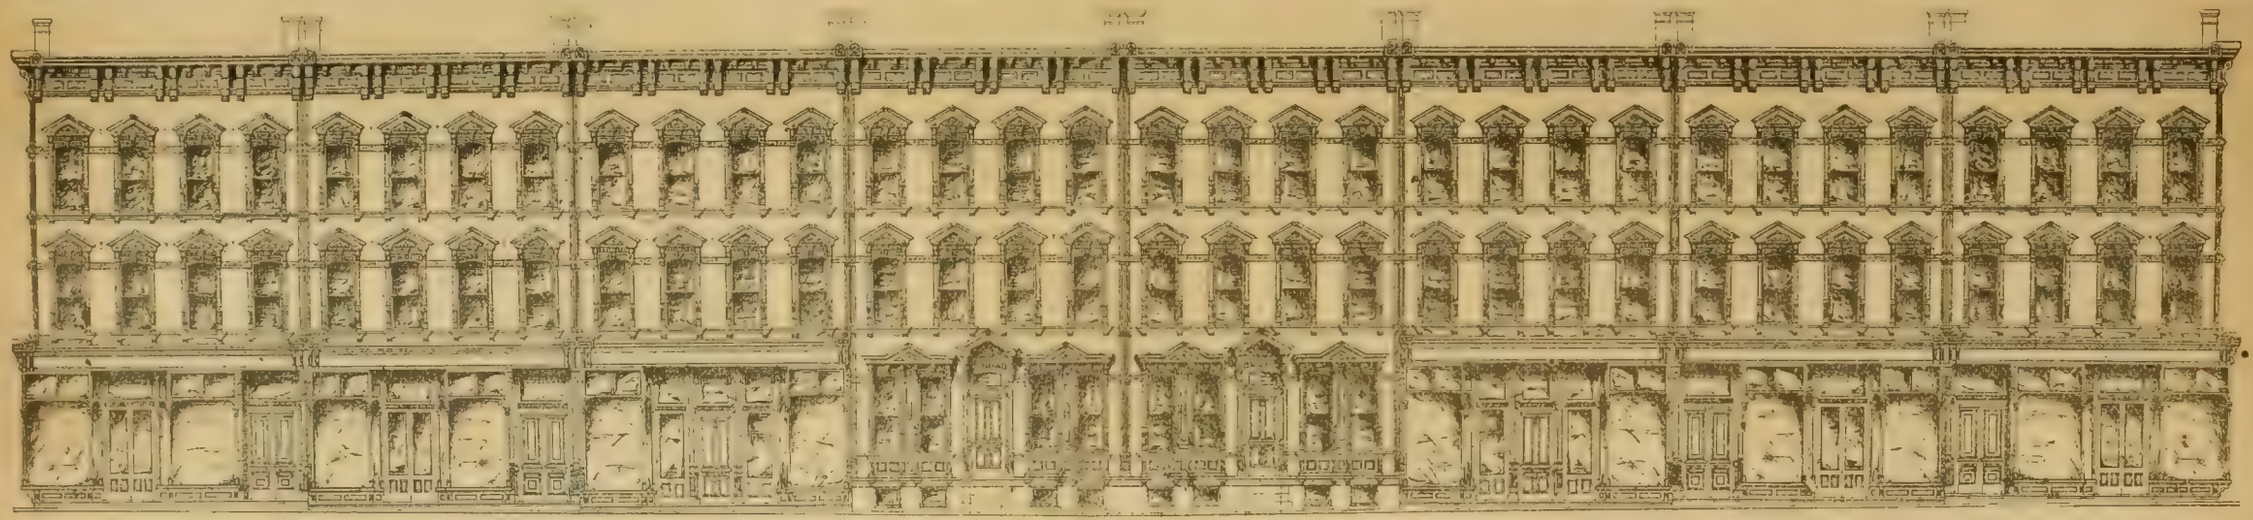
Messrs. Cleverdon & Putzel, architects, of No. 110 East 125th street, have removed to offices at No. 529 Broadway, corner of Spring street.

At the last meeting of the Sinking Fund Commissioners a change was made in the specifications for the new Criminal Court building to permit contractors to have two or more sureties on their bonds. Before the change was made only two sureties were allowed: a fact which would be objectionable in a $1,000,000 contract.

Brooklyn Building Improvement.

[COMMUNICATED.]

The growth of Brooklyn in the past few years has scarcely been realized by New Yorkers. Its prosperity has been steady and sure, every year has brought its gift of good things, and the record of the past and the prospect for the future are, indeed, pleasing to contemplate.



Formerly Brooklyn was looked upon as a city of residences of people whose business brought them to New York—a small town which had little or no commercial importance of its own—but year after year the great business houses, before located in the metropolis, have opened establishments in the city across the bridge, and new houses of wealth and importance have established retail emporiums and wholesale stores. Another consideration in Brooklyn's development is the great number of factories which have made their appearance within the last ten years. Along Newtown Creek; in parts of the 1st, 2d, 4th and 5th Wards; in South Brooklyn, the Gowanus Canal district, tall chimneys surmounting large factories take up the greater part of the available ground. This increased commercial importance means that the city must find homes for the mechanics and tradesmen who have been attracted by the work which these factories and stores furnish them, and in this way Brooklyn is still further developed.

The elevated roads and the surface cars furnishing quick and convenient means of intermural transit have increased the value of land in the outlying wards by bringing them nearer to the business centre and to New York.

Attention has been called, by Brooklyn papers, to the fact that elegant private residences, rivalling the most expensive dwellings in this city, have been and are now being built. Large sums of money have been spent on this private house construction, and architecturally great strides have been made, but this improvement along the line of the very costly houses affects only the few, while the more careful building of the cheaper residences and flats affect the many.

In ten years time the cost of building the frame house has trebled itself, and the increased cost represents valuable improvements on the old structure where the rooms were small and badly-lighted and the plumbing of the cheapest kind. Ventilation was a thing of the smallest importance, and it mattered not to the builder whether the house was situated advantageously or not, judging from a sanitary point of view. He contracted to give you a few rooms, built in a careless way, in return for which you paid a rent a little lower than that now prevailing. But if the rent was smaller the doctor's bill was larger, and tenants rebelled against the existing state of affairs and caused a great change to take place in the methods of the builder. People signified their willingness to pay more rent for a more satisfactory domicile, and in response to the demand for better flats and dwellings there sprang up a superior class of builders, who looked well to the sanitary condition of the site on which they proposed to build.

About the best example of these improved flats is the block, now almost finished, which is being erected by Paul Koch, of Sumner avenue and Hancock street, telephone 277 Bedford, on Wyckoff avenue, between Linden and Grove streets, Highground Park, in the 18th Ward. This ground is the highest in the city of Brooklyn, and, consequently, one of the healthiest. From the windows of the second story of Mr. Koch's houses can be seen the Brooklyn Bridge and all the surrounding country, and if this were the only thing to be said for the houses it would be a decided attraction.

HOUSES ERECTED BY PAUL KOCH ON WYCKOFF AVENUE, BETWEEN LINDEN AND GROVE STREETS.

But the panoramic view is but one of many pleasing attractions. First of all comes the fact of its accessibility—a thing not to be overlooked in these days of rush and hurry. By means of the elevated road, the station of which is not three hundred feet from the houses, one is carried from the bridge in twenty minutes, and from Broadway Ferry in about twelve minutes. Six different horsecar lines have their depot within a block of the houses, while right in the rear of the buildings is the depot of the steam line of cars to Manhattan Beach and Coney Island. By a system of transfers now in vogue on the elevated and surface roads a traveler can be carried to any part of the city of Brooklyn for five cents.

The houses, which are of frame, are three stories in height, filled in with brick to peak, accommodating two families on a floor. The architects, D. Acker & Son, have succeeded in presenting an elevation which is not over-decorated, and which, at the same time, as will be seen from the accompanying illustration, is not lacking in the qualities which go to make up a pleasing exterior. The houses are 25 feet by 57 feet on a lot 80 feet deep. The corner houses contain stores as do the two adjoining houses on each side. The two centre buildings are reserved entirely for flats.

The plumbing in these houses, put in by Messrs. Schmidling & Cardoo, is of the very best and latest design, and the pipes are of an extra heaviness. This fact taken in connection with a satisfactory system of sewage and the high ground on which the buildings are situated renders these flats, perhaps, the healthiest in the city.

Geo. S. Harris, who did the flagging and coping, has done much to render agreeable the exterior of the houses. They have the additional advantage of being finished in hardwood, and of being plastered throughout in the finest manner.

The mason work, done by L. E. Brown, the stone work by Thomas Lawless, and the carpentry, by Loeser & Schneider, are entirely satisfactory and substantial. The parlor is, in size, 15x11.9 feet, and the kitchen 16.6x11.9 feet, the other rooms being on a correspondingly large scale. The houses are supplied with fire escapes, which were put up, as was the other iron work, by Philip Dugro. The painter, F. Terriault, is now in possession of the premises, so that it is likely that the houses will be very shortly ready for the spring market.

These flat houses and stores have all been constructed carefully, by day's work, at a total cost for the eight houses of $46,000. The fact that Mr. Koch could have saved between $8,000 and $10,000 in the cost of construction had he built by contract proves that money was not spared in the desire to build a good house.

The results to the builder cannot fail to give entire satisfaction, as he has already rented the house next to the corner of Grove street, for five years, at a rental of $900 per annum, and he has already rented more than half his apartments, and received a deposit on the same, although the houses are not yet ready for occupancy. This phenomenal experience in the renting line arises from the fact that the houses are within a stone's throw of the depot, where six surface car lines end, and the elevated and other roads, mentioned in the beginning of this sketch, bring to the houses a class of tenants who are steady and honest wage-earners.

The owner is asking for the corner houses $11,000; for the inside houses, with stores, $7,500, and for the houses without stores $7,000.

It is stated that the houses will yield a net income, after all taxes, etc., are paid, of 10 per cent. on the investment, and if this is the case small capitalists have a splendid opening, as Mr. Koch will sell on terms to suit.

The section of the city in which these housesare situated is being rapidly developed, and from the present outlook the day is not far distant when vacant lots will be a rarity in the neighborhood.

An interesting fact in connection with the enhancement of values in vacant lots, is that relating to a transfer of four lots by Mr. Koch to Peter Riebling three weeks ago for $10,000. Mr. Ripley has since resold the lots to a New Yorker for $13,000, an increase in value of $1,000 a week.

ARGUS.

The Views of the Property-Owners.

The position of the property-owners within the boundaries of the Fair site must not be misunderstood. Such of them as were represented in the hearing before the Senate Committee on Tuesday last would not have objected to the bill on general grounds if it had not contained a provision which permitted the commissioners to take title to the property in fee. In the argument before the Senate Committee they did, indeed, oppose the bill on other grounds; in fact they attacked its constitutionality on four different counts, viz.: (1) that it authorizes the city to incur an indebtedness for purposes other than city purposes; (2) that it authorizes a city to give the use of its property to a private corporation; (3) that being a local bill, it contains two subjects and the title does not clearly indicate the vicious provisions of the bill itself, and (4) that it authorizes the condemnation of land by the power of eminent domain for the purposes of a World's Fair—a purpose which cannot be classified in the category of "public use."

But this was done only because of the threatened confiscation of their property after it had been offered to the Site Committee on the easiest of terms. They are all of them in favor of the Fair, but they are not willing to have their property taken in fee for a temporary purpose.

A reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called on Mr. Dwight H. Olmstead, who together with Mr. William W. Cook represented a number of the property-owners on the hill in the hearing before the Senate Committee, and who himself owns property which is threatened by the bill. In answer to an inquiry as to this movement in case the bill was passed, Mr. Olmstead said that nothing would be done by him until the commission constituted by the bill attempted to take in fee some of the property which he represents, in which case the constitutionality of the bill would be thoroughly tested. He had no objection to surrendering his property simply for Fair purposes; but any attempt to confiscate it would be met by an appeal in case of a defeat in the State courts to the Supreme Court of the United States. The delay caused by these legal proceedings could not amount to less than, at least, the intervening time before 1892. It would mean, in short, the defeat of the Fair project. The city would find it impossible to float the bonds with such a cloud obscuring the legality of their issue. Mr. Olmstead had no fear that the commission would be able to confiscate any land under the present bill. A persistence in the attempt would simply involve a suicidal litigation, and the defeat of the project.

The Building for the Museum of Natural History.

Bids for the completion of the west wing, entrances, stoop, steps and driveway of the American Museum of Natural History building on Manhattan square were opened January 29th, and are as follows: Jas. B. Smith, $353,000; Edward Franke, $363,000; Dawson & Archer, $369,450; Watson & Mahoney, $401,240.

For the second time it was found that a balance of the appropriation would be left on hand. In the first instance the amount was something like $22,000, and now the committee finds itself with $29,000 in funds over and above the lowest bid made. Work on the present building has been greatly delayed owing to the difficulty experienced in procuring the necessary supply of the kind of granite which enters largely into the decorations of the building, and which, by the way, is an especially beautiful and noticeable feature. However, arrangements have been made to send New York men to the quarries, so that speedy completion is confidently anticipated. This building is by far the finest and most beautiful of any public building in the city, and it is much to be desired that no unnecessary hindrance or delay may prevent its completion upon the exceedingly ornate designs of Messrs. J. C. Cady & Co., the architects. Whatever may be the popular opinion on the question of Sunday opening the Mayor is to be commended for legalizing the appropriation for the progression of the work. The advantages to the city in having the internal and external designs of such a beautiful building carried to completion are certainly greater than having it left crippled in usefulness and marred in beauty because of any difference of opinion on the vexed question of public morals.

The West Street Bridges.

Comptroller Myers, after full consideration, has decided that the Pennsylvania and Jersey Central railroads should not be asked to pay compensation to the city for the bridges which they are to build over West street to connect with the ferries at Cortlandt and Liberty streets. He felt that the bridges would probably be of more convenience to the public than profit to the company, and gave his decision accordingly. A public officer, when spoken to in the matter, said: "It does not seem wise to grant such a privilege to these companies, for it will be a precedent to grant similar privileges to other companies, and in the end the whole length of West street may be disfigured by unsightly bridges." Another officer, who heard the statement, said: "Well, no one wants to try and make West street attractive, for it never will be. The bridges will make it look picturesque, if anything, and will certainly be a relief from the monotony of old brick buildings and stores on the one side and frame piers on the other. The great point to be considered is that thousands of passengers will daily be saved the annoyance and danger of crossing West street, which is certainly one of the dirtiest and most crowded thoroughfares in New York. The utility of the privilege granted will far outweigh any æsthetic considerations, though I contend that the bridges will not by any means ruin the appearance of the street." The Pennsylvania Road has purchased the northeast corner of West and Cortlandt streets and will run its eastern bridge entrance into that building, just as the "L" road does at Fulton street, so that the sidewalk will remain just as unobstructed as it is at present. The Jersey Central Road will run their bridge into their new building on Liberty and West streets. Both bridges will be a decided convenience to passengers on the two ferries.

The College Place Opening.

It has been reported that the Corporation Counsel has found some difficulty in obtaining commissioners to serve in the matter of the widening and extension of College place, owing to the fact that the compensation for the work, which will involve numerous sittings extending over several months, is only $120. Corporation Counsel Clark was asked whether the report was true, and he said: "No; on the contrary. I now have about fifty applications before me from lawyers, real estate men and others to serve as commissioners. They do not seem to care for the compensation so much as they do for the honor of being appointed, as the commission is one which will attract some public attention. The sum of $120 is a small one, but as the law fixes upon a certain amount by the foot, and as the College place improvement runs over only a few hundred feet, the compensation cannot, by law, be made larger." The Corporation Counsel says that a larger appropriation will no doubt be made, but it will have to be a special bill passed through the Legislature for the purpose.

Mr. Clark was asked whether, in view of the dilatoriness of commissioners in expediting the work of street openings generally, it would not be advisable to create a board to deal with street opening matters which would sit permanently, and whose sole business it would be to do the work which is now being done by so many of the commissioners on opening streets. This board might consist of a lawyer, an engineer and a layman. At present the young lawyers, political aspirants and others, who act as commissioners, do not attend to their commissionerships as they ought to do, owing to their own personal business requiring most of their time. Such a board as proposed, however, would devote their whole time and attention to the matter. Mr. Clark, when these views were presented to him, doubted whether such a board could be created, and if it were created he was not prepared to say whether it would or would not expedite street opening proceedings.

Assessed Valuations for 1890.

The total assessed valuation of real estate in the twenty-four wards of New York City for 1890 is $1,339,869,435, an increase of $68,291,144 over 1890. This does not, of course, include personal estate, for which the figures will not be obtainable until some time in May. The following are the relative assessed valuations, by wards, for 1889 and 1890. The largest increases are in the 12th, 23d, 17th, 1st and 19th Wards. The 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th and 14th Wards show comparatively slight variations. There is an increase in every ward. The figures given below are subject to a slight change, and will be presented to the Board of Assessors within a few days. The final figures for the year will not, of course, be published until a few weeks after April 30, 1890, which is the last day for presenting objections to tax assessments made by the commissioners on property for the ensuing year:

In the City Departments.

The Dock Department, eight years ago, built a pier on the North River, between 27th and 28th streets (pier new No. 57). Cornell, the steamboat man, owns a grant between the pier and the main thoroughfare, which prevents proper access to the pier. Two years ago the Dock Department consented to lease the pier to the Anchor Steamship Company for ten years at an annual rental of $25,000. But Cornell got an injunction prohibiting the use of his property, and the result was that the steamship company saw that it could only berth its vessels there and was prevented from loading and unloading freight. It therefore gave up the idea of leasing the property and went to Brooklyn, where it now has five docks. It is said that the Dock Department could have purchased Cornell's rights in the property for $120,000, but made no effort to do so. The Corporation Counsel, when called on by a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, said: "I am trying to see whether it is not possible to condemn the property and get the absolute title to it for the city." There are two applicants for the pier at $25,000 per annum, and the city will evidently gain considerably by making a settlement with Cornell.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

THE NEW LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE.

There was a full attendance at the first meeting held by the newly-appointed Committee on Legislation on Tuesday. Among the members present wers Messrs. Geo. H. Scott, C. A. Andrews, Geo. De Forest Barton, Wm. Reynolds Brown, Hy. J. Carr, Clermont L. Clarkson, E. A. Cruikshank, Wm. Cruikshank, W. M. Deen, W. H. Folsom, Richard V. Harnett, Thos. C. Higgins, Frank R. Houghton, Geo. S. Lespinasse, W. C. Lester, Thos. F. Murtha, Sinclair Myers, Wm. C. Orr, Marx Ottinger, Wm. M. Ryan, Henry D. Smith, Julius Lipman, Morris Littman, Geo. Wolfe, Cyrille Carreau, Herbert A. Sherman, Arthur S. Cox, Edmund H. Martine, Henry Wilson, Leon Tanenbaum, John P. Windolph, S. F. Jayne, John H. Dye, James E. Leviness, J. C. Lalor, H. W. Donald, Wm. Kennelly and Philip A. Smyth.

President Scott called the meeting to order, and in opening the proceedings made the following address :

I hope that this year, when so much legislation of an important character will undoubtedly be brought forward, you will be alert to the duties which a membership of this committee invites. The Board of Directors have already passed resolutions approving the site selected by the Site Committee of the General Committee of the Quadro-Centennial Exhibition of 1892. They appointed a committee, consisting of your president and ex-presidents, who appeared before the Senate Committee of the United States, at Washington, to advocate the holding of the Exhibition in the metropolis of this country—the great City of New York.

The subject which will most commend itself to your consideration is that of rapid transit. It would be a waste of time on my part to attempt to enlighten you upon this point. Its importance to the interests of the City of New York, to the comfort and welfare and continued prosperty of its inhabitants cannot be overstated. Already one Rapid Transit bill has been introduced in the Senate; there may be others. Look to it that between the different bills we do not fail in securing the very best system of rapid transit. It is imperative that we should have it. It is important to the very existence of this great city that greater facilities should be had for moving its ever-increasing population, and that this be done at once. Our Exchange must now assert its influence, and, as the representative of the taxpayers of New York who pay upward of thirty millions of dollars annually, demand that this Legislature shall not adjourn until it has passed a proper Rapid Transit bill. Again, gentlemen, we must demand recognition upon any commission appointed to lay out a route. It is those most interested in real estate who, from their business experience, should be most able to judge as to the proper route, and there is no doubt that if our suggestions are presented in a proper way the Legislature will accede to them.

If I could infuse into each and every member of this committee the belief, which I hold, that all should take an active part in these deliberations—knowing, as I do, that we are all vitally interested in all legislation relating to the City of New York, whether State or Municipal, we would then have the benefit of the experience and advice of so many gentlemen of ability, all closely allied with the real estate interests of this city, we would then indeed be able, by our knowledge of the situation, to so fitly represent the important charge committed to our care that the force and power of the Real Estate Exchange in the right direction would make its influence felt in every legislative body.

Let us, however, not merely act on the defensive, content with opposing vicious legislation, but let us also be progressive; let us initiate measures of reform and legislation calculated to effect all needed improvements and protect the interests of real estate owners. Let us be broad in our scope, honest in our purpose, energetic in our action, and we will place ourselves, where we belong, at the head of all the exchanges in such matters, and while commanding the respect of all have the position and influence to which we are entitled. (Applause.)

On motion Wm. C. Orr was elected chairman of the committee, Constant A. Andrews, first vice-chairman, and Geo. De Forest Barton, second vice-chairman. Isaac Fromme was elected secretary.

Geo. S. Lespinasse called the attention of the committee to the World's Fair bill. The bill was read by the secretary, and, on motion, a resolution was adopted to telegraph a message to the Speaker of the Assembly and the President of the Senate at Albany, urging the immediate passage of the measure by the Legislature.

A motion was put to make this resolution unanimous, but Henry Wilson rose to dissent, and said: "I, for one, object to its being passed unanimously. I think it the harshest, unwisest and most unbusinesslike bill ever proposed."

Richard V. Harnett called attention to the Fassett Rapid Transit bill, and moved that a special committee of five be appointed to take the bill into consideration, with such other bills as might affect rapid transit. Messrs. Richard V. Harnett, Geo. De Forest Barton, John D. Crimmins, Geo. F. Gantz and Sinclair Myers were appointed by the chair to constitute this committee.

The chairman was then authorized to appoint various sub-committees, after which the meeting adjourned.

The following additional committees of the Exchange have been appointed: Arbitration—Wm. Reynolds Brown, M. A. Ruland, John G. Folsom, John Duer, E. J. Sause, Jr., Wm. E. Callender, H. L. Morris, Bernard Smyth, W. J. Roome, Henry H. Elliott, Newbold T. Lawrence, Geo. Ashforth, Samuel D. Babcock, John Downey, H. W. Coates, D. V. Westbrook, William G. Bibb, Francis S. Gray, George Day, John C. R. Eckerson, and C. F. Hoffman, Jr. Brokers' Meetings—Sam'l M. Blakely, J. Searle Barclay, C. L. Clarkson, W. H. Blackwell, and Jas. E. Leviness. Complaint—Horace S. Ely, Fred'k P. Forster, Charles S. Brown, Samuel F. Jayne, and E. C. Potter.

A West End Avenue Improvement.

[COMMUNICATED.]

The changes that have been effected on the southern portion of West End avenue have received more than a passing attention—not only in the columns of this paper, but in those of journals not especially devoted to real estate. West End avenue has not only been written about, but it has been illustrated and made much of. Its handsome houses have been talked of, its fine asphalt pavement extolled and its superb location dilated upon. But so far this has been applied to the southerly parts of the avenue. The more northerly parts have come in for very little attention, possibly because the improvements in that direction have been the exception and not the rule. The rumor that Mr. Jay Gould has been contemplating the purchase of a plot of ground, and possibly an entire block, on Riverside and West End avenues, between 103d and 104th streets, and the fact that excavations were recently made with the object of ascertaining the character of the ground on that block by workmen said to be there in Mr. Gould's behalf has attracted some attention to a section of West End avenue where only two or three builders have so far ventured to tempt fortune. One of these, the pioneer in that neighborhood, R. S. Townsend, the architect, built a number of private residences on 101st street, and they were readily marketed to desirable purchasers. More recently Messrs. Walker & Lawson have come in and selected the highest spot on West End avenue on which to conduct their building operations, a plot 110 feet above the Hudson. This spot, it so happens, is exactly opposite the site which it is said Mr. Gould contemplates purchasing and building, a rumor which, it should be added, he has not yet denied, though his attention has been called to it.

The houses built by Messrs. Walker & Lawson are seven in number. They are on the southeast corner of West End avenue and 104th street. Three of them are already disposed of, although only just about completed, while four of them remain on the market. They are all 20 feet wide, with the exception of two fronting on the street, which are 16.6 feet in width. One of the houses is worth describing. It has a vestibule with the walls in tile, the ceiling decorated in oil and the flooring covered in German and Italian marble. The hallway is being elaborately painted in oil, by a firm of decorators, the subject representing a tropical scene, lending a charm and attractiveness to the hall which will delight the eye of the artist as well as the visitor. The design is carried out in the ceiling, where the tropical sky is painted in perspective.

This decorative work is carried out in the parlor floor, the ceiling of which is in what the decorator calls "Modern Renaissance." The floor is trimmed in mahogany, and the mantels and mirrors are in special design, the firegrates being framed in tile. The walls are to be in silk velvours, an idea gathered from Europe by one of the builders while on a tour there last summer. The floor consists of a parlor, dining-room and butler's pantry, and one of the features about it is the abundance of closet room, a feature which is apparent at every turn throughout the entire house.

The second floor is trimmed in hazel. The front bedroom has a spacious alcove, which can be used as a reading-room, a ladies workroom or a library. The rear bedroom communicates with the front by a double saloon, with mirrors, wardrobes and other conveniences. The top floor has four bedrooms, storeroom, etc., and is surmounted by a skylight in stained glass. The front basement is handsomely fitted up and the kitchen is supplied with a fine range, refrigerators and other culinary appliances.

The other houses, on the whole, are a fac simile of the house just described. The exteriors of the houses are worth noting, the bay windows, and the peculiar design of high box stoops, together with the carved work, meriting attention.

The houses overlook the Hudson and the Palisades and are in the vicinity of the Dearing, Foster, Bacon, Doelger, Bayne and other residences, while nine new houses are to be built on the opposite corner and nine more on the corner of 103d street and West End avenue. The builders have certainly done wisely in selecting this neighborhood, for it is high, healthy and easily accessible to the 104th street "L" station, and their investment is sure to be a safe and doubtless a profitable one. Notice to Property-Holders.

CITY OF NEW YORK, FINANCE DEPARTMENT,
COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, January 27, 1890.

In pursuance of Section 997 of the "New York City Consolidation Act of 1882," the Comptroller gives notice to all persons, owners of property, affected by the following assessment list, viz.:

ACQUIRING TITLE.

East 148th st, from Railroad av East to 3d av.
College av, from Morris av to East 146th st.

—which was confirmed by the Supreme Court January 18, 1890, and entered on the 24th day of January in the Record of Titles of Assessments, kept in the "Bureau for the Collection of Assessments and Arrears of Taxes and Assessments and of Water Rents," that unless the amount assessed for benefit on any person or property shall be paid within sixty days after the date of said entry of the assessment, interest will be collected thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, from January, 24th; Payments to be made to the Collector of Assessments and Clerk of Arrears, between 9 A. M. and 2 P. M.

A Long Felt Need Well Supplied.

That the methods of transferring and mortgaging real estate needed reforming is proven by nothing so conclusively as by the rapid development and extension of the business of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

Its business for each of the last four years has doubled that of the previous year, until, in 1889, it reached the very large figures of $300,690 for title insurance premiums and $67,743 for fees for searches furnished to attorneys.

The company has become also the largest lender on mortgage in the city. In fact it has become a great mortgage exchange, where borrowers can procure their loans at small expense, and where lenders can buy mortgages without loss of time or interest.

In 1889 the company made to borrowers and then sold to investors 849 mortgages, aggregating $6,697,288. During the past month the company has still further commended itself to the real estate interests by doubling its capital stock and giving to its policy-holders a protection of $2,000,000 in paid-up capital, $2,000,000 in additional stockholders' liability, and $350,000 in surplus.

Such a guarantee, supplementing the work of able counsel, is bound to speedily make, and in fact now does make, its titles pass current from hand to hand without the old, vexatious delay and expense for constant re-examinations of title.

$1,000,000 Worth of Property in a Week.

A BROKER'S PROSPEROUS HAUL.

[COMMUNICATED].

The west side, less than five years ago, could boast of very few real estate agents and brokers. They were all on the east side, or in the downtown, central and other sections of the city. Indeed there was little necessity then for west side agents—or brokers either for that matter—as there was comparatively little stirring in the large section of territory between the Central Park and the Hudson River, commonly termed "the west side." But as things commenced to move, one or two agents began to come, and they, meeting with some prosperity, attracted the attention of a large number of their brother agents in other parts of the city, several of whom thought it worth their while to follow suit and obtain a share of the large business which seemed destined to grow up on the west side in the near future.

But a great many agents and brokers "pooh-poohed" the new movement, and spoke of it slightingly. Everything was done to run down the west side; yet its natural advantages, despite the backward condition of some of the public improvements at that time, were too strong for the undercurrent, and the west side rode safely on top of the waves to success. With how much success we now know.

Many agents came and went. Those who did not understand their business thoroughly were forced to seek new fields, while those who were unwilling to bend their utmost energies in the struggle for existence and supremacy shared their fate. But those who showed intelligence, industry and perseverance remained. It was a question of the "survival of the fittest."

Among the latter was a broker who last week effected sales of real estate aggregating about $1,000,000. A part of these were reported in THE RECORD AND GUIDE of last Saturday, in the column headed "Gossip," which in reality chronicles more truth than report. The notable feature of his sales is that they do not cover one or two large parcels, sold to one or two people. They embrace all kinds of west side property, and they were purchased by all sorts of people from different parts of the city and even out of town. Most of the properties have been taken absolutely out of the market, for they are to be either held for investment or retained as residences for the personal occupation of the purchasers. This is a very healthy sign, and will help to increase the confidence in the west side, which has permanently attracted scores of millions of dollars during the past five or six years. The broker referred to is Frank L. Fisher, and the sales were made by him within a week's time. An enumeration of them will show the character of the purchases and the purchasers, and will be interesting to everyone interested in west side property. They are as follows:

Five three-story brown stone front private dwellings, each 20x57x100.8, on the north side of 87th street, commencing 225 feet west of West End avenue, and ending near Riverside Drive. These Mr. Fisher sold for Dunn Brothers, the builders, to J. B. Smull, a ship broker and a member of the Produce Exchange. The price paid was $110,000. Two have already been resold to parties who intend to occupy them.

Seven out of the nine four-story, high stoop, brown stone front dwellings, 18 to 21, feet wide, on the south side of 76th street, between Central Park West and 9th avenue. They were sold for J. C. Umberfield, the builder, to the Rev. Edmund Guilbert, late rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit (now All Soul's Church, Rev. R. Heber Newton, rector). The price paid was about $250,000. In conjunction with Mr. Guilbert's purchase, the following incident may not be uninteresting. In announcing to his communicants his retirement from the church, which he built up up on Madison avenue and 66th street, Dr. Guilbert said that some sixty of the wealthiest families of his congregation had moved to the west side. This evidently impressed him with the advisability of placing his personal property into real estate in that section of the city, and this purchase by him, amounting to a quarter of a million dollars, is the result.

The three-story, high stoop, light stone front, private dwelling, No. 159 West 87th street, between 9th and 10th avenues, size 18x55x100.8, sold for Tichborne & Wilson, builders, to Peter J. Radiker, a 9th avenue groceryman, for $22,500. He will occupy it as his home. Also a similar dwelling, 165 West 87th street, 20x55x100.8, for the same builders, to Joseph A. Carberry, of H. Wallach's Sons, the shirt manufacturers of Thomas street, for which the purchaser paid about $25,000, and which he will occupy as his residence.

The three-story stone front dwelling, 20x57x100, No. 145 West 78th street, between 9th and 10th avenues. Sold for Dr. A. W. Lozier to Emil Rinke, importer of hat trimmings, for $24,500.

The four-story, high stoop, brown stone front dwelling, No. 252 West 72d street, east of West End avenue, 20x60x112 in size. Sold for L. Steinhardt, to Mrs. O'Brien, who now lives in Cherry street, and who will come up town to healthier quarters and occupy the house herself. She paid $45,000.

The two five-story brick and stone front double flats, Nos. 1725 and 1727 9th avenue, between 99th and 100th streets, each 25.11x88x100 in size. These the broker sold for his fair wife, Mrs. Isabella H. Fisher, to John D. Dent, of Rochester, N. Y., who has now come to live on the west side, and the price paid by him was $66,000.

Three lots on the south side of 78th street, 75x102.2, for the Merriam estate, to Dr. A. W. Lozier, which the later will improve by building several four-story private houses. The price paid was $36,000.

The two five-story brick and stone front single flats, Nos. 223 and 224 Central Park West, between 82d and 83d streets, 20x90x100 each in size. Sold for C. P. West to a well-known actor, whose name will later on appear, for $90,000. The purchaser will keep them as an investment.

The five-story brick and stone front apartment house, known as "The Rutledge," on the northwest corner of Central Park West and 82d street, size 27.2x95x100, built by Edward Purcell. Sold for Hy. T. McCoen, a retired capitalist, to Neil Burgess, the actor, who will hold it for investment. The price paid by the latter was $85,000.

The five-story brick and stone front double flat, No. 72 West 100th street, near 9th avenue, 25x70x100 in size. Sold for Mrs. H. G. Crozier to J. H. Whitelegge, lawyer, of Fordham, N. Y., for $22,500, for investment.

Five three-story, high stoop, brick and stone front dwellings on 97th street, in exchange for lots on 80th street, for a total of $207,500.

Here are sales aggregating $984,000, or, in round numbers, nearly $1,000,000, in real estate on the west side by a single broker. If this does not show a healthy coudition of the market on that side of the city then nothing will. Mr Fisher had, during the previous few weeks, also sold other properties, most of them private houses, aggregating about $500,000. Included in the latter sum was the sale of the six-story office and apartment building on the northwest corner of 72d street and 9th avenue, built by Chas. Buek & Co. This Mr. Fisher sold for Geo. R. Read to the Hudson River Bank for $180,000. This brings his sales, in a comparatively short time, to about $1,500,000. He is, of course, not the only broker on the west side, and if the sales made in total in that part of the city during the past month or so were put on paper they would foot up several millions of dollars.

The writer called on Mr. Fisher. He found him at his upper office on the southwest corner of 9th avenue and 81st street and interviewed him on the present condition and future prospects of the west side.

"For what class of buildings do you find there is the greatest demand?" asked the scribe.

"Well," said Mr. Fisher, "for private houses and good investment property. What is interesting about the demand for private houses is that people seem to be coming from the crowded lower wards, many of them being old New York families who have lived for a generation past in what was once the 'swell' portion of New York city. These people, desirous of obtaining more congenial surroundings, and wishing to get the advantages of a modern dwelling, come to the west side to make their homes. This is especially so with the younger people, when the old folks pass away. There are hundreds of educated and refined families down town who are forced to move owing to the inroad of business and factory buildings in their vicinity, and they generally come up to the west side. Besides that, some of the very best people in New York City are making their homes west of the Central Park, and many more of them, directly they can dispose of their handsome houses on the line of Madison and 5th avenues, will come over to this side."

"Between what streets do you find the greatest demand for property?" asked the writer.

"Generally," said Mr. Fisher, "between 72d and 86th streets. And while on this point of house purchasing I want to say that a very large proportion of our callers are ladies. They know the best points in a house better than a man. It would be well for builders to recollect this in having their houses designed. Plenty of closet-room for personal apparel, crockery, silver, etc., is very essential. Every possible convenience in the kitchen, excellent arrangements as to bathrooms, such as needle and shower baths, and a score of other improvements, many of which are, and some of which are not, found in every one of the new houses. Sometimes a very trifling convenience, obtained at little cost, will be the feather which will turn the scale in favor of a purchase."

"What do you think of the immediate future of the west side?" asked the writer.

"Well," said Mr. Fisher," "as a broker whose interests are principally on this side of the city I am loath to speak in as sanguine a way as my feelings would prompt me to do, for it might be said that I am interested in talking 'bullish.' But I will give you an instance of the manner in which property sometimes runs away from us, so to speak. I went down town to Mr. —— (mentioning the name of a well-known property-owner) and found I could get some lots on a certain street, between Central Park West and 9th avenue, for $15,000 each. That was about three months ago. I went down again the other day to try and buy them for a customer and found I could not get them for less than $20,000 each. And I am not sure but what they will bring much more in a very short time. The fact is, values have been equalizing themselves between the east and west sides, and the end is not yet. When you have to pay $40,000 for a lot on one of the streets east of the Central Park, between Madison and 5th avenues, why should not a lot west of the Central Park and in as good a location every way, be worth $20,000 or more? Don't you see that you can buy a house and lot so many thousands of dollars cheaper on the west side and get a better article, generally, for your money, owing to the modern character of the houses on the west side. The same holds good for avenue properties. The values of vacant property on 9th avenue are not yet as high as on 3d avenue. Yet 3d avenue does not begin to compare in the character of its buildings with 9th avenue. Besides, the west side has a tone to it, from one end to the other, that the east side has only had, generally, between Lexington and 5th avenues. We will never have anything like 1st avenue and Avenue A and the streets between those avenues. We have only got one liquor store between 69th and 81st streets, and that got in surreptitiously, in the absence of the owner from the city, through the error of an agent. We have no attractions for the objectionable classes of society such as you find in different parts of the east side. Look at the people who get on and off our "L" stations and you will soon notice that they are all well-dressed and prosperous-looking. No drunken men and women are to be seen on our streets because they cannot, except in a few stores further north, buy the liquor to get intoxicated with. No, sir, I am a great believer in the west side, and for good and substantial reasons. I think some parts of it not yet developed will show an advance of 100 per cent. in about two years, and I predict that values generally, both in improved and unimproved properties, will within that time show a general average advance of 25 per cent." TEN shares of the Real Estate Exchange for sale. Address E. H., office of THE RECORD AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway.—[Advt.

WANTED in a long-established and prominent Real Estate office (down-town) a competent salesman. Address, stating terms, A. B. C., office of the RECORD AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway.—[Advt.

Real Estate Department.

This has been a very quiet week at the Exchange, where the sales held were few in number, and with one or two exceptions unimportant in character. The announcements for the next few weeks are very slim, and as week after week goes by it becomes more evident that we are far behind last year's business in the auction room. Before this date last year the Jones and Lynch estate sales had taken place, not mentioning many others of importance. It is well known that at present there is comparatively little demand for dwellings, flats or vacant lots, unless exceptionally well located, and owners, executors and trustees hesitate about throwing blocks of improved and unimproved property on the market, perhaps only to be sacrificed or bid in. Of course there are some houses selling at private contract, but nothing like enough to clear away the supply. Flats in good renting districts are salable, but when the high cost of lots and material is considered fancy figures must be realized to clear the builder. Concerning lots, there are not very many changing hands except through the building loan operators, and the best known of these are exercising caution in the selection of lots and builders alike. At the present the field of operations seems to be north and east of the park, where values have not as yet increased very materially. There are some operators who are engaged in other localities, but the section mentioned seems to be the last taken hold of, and the reason is, as already stated, because prices have not yet gone too high. With the object of preventing a too rapid increase along the line the building loan operators are trying to hide the prices they pay as well as receive, and, accordingly, deeds for a nominal consideration are not infrequent.

The week has been moderately active in the brokers' offices, the parcels sold being mainly of west side properties, both below and north of 59th street, as well as a few down-town business properties.

On Monday, February 3d, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the five-story brown stone apartment house with store, 25.2x80, and a one-story extension 25.2x20, No. 951 6th avenue.

On Tuesday, February 4th, John F. B. Smyth will sell the four-story single brick tenement, with a two-story frame dwelling on the rear, 20x98.9, No. 332 East 28th street. The property is subject to a mortgage of $7,000 at 5 per cent.

On Tuesday, February 4th, James L. Wells will sell, to close the estate of Alfred Knapp, deceased, the cottage and lot, No. 1118 Washington avenue, near 167th street, 25x134. He will also sell on the same day, four lots, each 25x90, on the west side of Brook avenue, 25 feet south of 144th street, and two lots, 25x85 each, on the east side of Brook avenue, 125 feet south of 142d street. All these lots are near rapid transit stations and are ready for immediate improvement.

On Wednesday, February 5th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell two lots, 25x145.4 each, on the south side of 71st street, 175 feet west of Avenue A, and two lots, 25x102.2 each, on the south side of 74th street, 150 feet west of Avenue A.

On Wednesday, February 12th, John F. B. Smyth will sell a plot with seven brick buildings thereon, on the southwest corner of 6th avenue and 11th street. The plot runs west along 11th street 56.10 x southwest 140.6 x southeast 50.6 x northeast 166.7 to 6th avenue, x north 9.6. Seventy-five per cent. of the purchase money may remain on mortgage for three years.

On December 16th, John F. B. Smyth sold at the Exchange for $75,000, the four-story brick store on the northwest corner of 6th avenue and 11th street. Mr. W. Scott Clirehugh was the purchaser. This week a loan of $42,000 at 4½ per cent. was made on the property by Strong & Cadwalader.

Gossip of the Week.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Henry Naylor has sold the five-story business structure on the northeast corner of Cortlandt and Church streets, size 23.2x122, and taking in No. 26 Cortlandt and Nos. 19 to 31 Church streets, for $212,500. It is known as the "Naylor Building," and has a brown stone front on the former street and a brick front on the latter. A liquor, hat and other stores are on the first floor and Kennedy's gents' furnishing and other parties are above. The purchasers are said to be a corporation who have contracted for the property through a lawyer, the names of neither one nor the other being obtainable. The buyers have also purchased, we are informed, the property in the rear of that building, on the southeast corner of Dey and Church streets, and taking in Nos. 23 and 25 Dey street and Nos. 33 to 39 Church street, the price not having transpired. Jefferson M. Levy owns the latter parcel, and if the same corporation has purchased both properties it would seem as though they must have bought it for improvement, as it comprises a strip about 25x200, running through. The lessee of the liquor store on the corner of Cortlandt street said that his lease has still eight years to run.

D. H. Carrol has sold for Mary C. Torrenere the five-story building, No. 535 Broadway, 25x110, for $115,000.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, whom we some time ago reported as having purchased some property on the corner of Madison square and 23d street, still declines to give further particulars of the sale. Two of the principal officers yesterday acknowledged to a reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE that the Barlow property and an adjoining house had been purchased by the company, but the president declined to say anything further till the titles are all searched. He would not say whether they would improve the property, though there is little doubt but what this will be done. No. 5 Madison avenue has already been conveyed to the company by W. E. Laimbeer for $100,000.

John F. B. Smyth has appraised the Armory site on the east side of 4th avenue, between 33d and 34th streets, and estimates its value, as it now stands, at $382,725. The plot, it will be remembered, is 200x236 feet.

Asher Weinstein has sold No. 63 Downing street, a three-story brick building, 20x50x90, to Jacob Bookman for $8,600—brokers, Hall J. How & Co.; also 225 West 14th street, a four-story and basement brown stone house, 25x75x120, to Agnes C. Larchner—broker, Thomas C. Smith; also 168 Clinton street, 25x50, a three-story dwelling, to Fishel & Mogoritz, for immediate improvement; also, 147 Broome street, a three-story and basement private dwelling, 20x40, to Wolf Honig.

Mr. Weinstein has bought from the Genin estate the northwest corner of 14th street and 7th avenue, a six-story brick and brown stone hotel 25x98.6—broker, L. J. Carpenter; also Nos. 231 and 233 West 43d street, north side, near 7th avenue, two three-story frame buildings, 40x100.5, from Joseph I. West and Hattie E. Price for improvement—broker, J. Edgar Leaycraft.

As though to emphasize the article on "Changes in the 15th Ward," which appeared in THE RECORD AND GUIDE last week, the following improvements are about to be commenced, all of them from plans prepared by Alfred Zucker: A six-story brick, stone, iron and terra cotta building, 53x93 in size, to be erected on the northeast corner of Washington place and Mercer street, to contain a passenger and freight elevator and other improvements, and to cost about $153,000; owner, Chas. Weiss. The building has already been leased by Fisk, Clark & Flagg for ten years on terms that cannot be learned. A similar building with a brick, stone and iron front is to be built at Nos. 195 and 197 Greene street. It will be 47x100, and will be built by S. Meinhart, of Savannah, Ga. This has also been leased for a term of years. Another building of similar height and construction will be erected by Max Goldfrank, at Nos. 200 and 200½ Greene street. It will be 50x100 in size, and will have all the improvements. The cost has not been estimated. This also has been leased to parties whose names will be divulged later on.

But really the plans have not been sufficiently matured yet to be talked about."

Special Notices.

The handsome addition to Temple Court, built by Eugene Kelly, is now being rented in single rooms and suites for office purposes. The building runs through from 119 to 121 Nassau street to Theatre alley. It is of fireproof construction and ten stories high, with all the improvements, including two Otis elevators, steam heat, safety appliances, etc. Mantels and grates adorn many of the rooms, while the first hall is fitted up with marble tilings and wainscotings and mosaic work. The building is certainly one of the best of the down-town structures. Ruland & Whiting, of No. 5 Beekman street, are the agents.

The attention of capitalists on the lookout for first-class investment property is called to the elegant flats, built by Messrs. Radebold & Wenz, on the south side of 109th and the north side of 108th streets, between Madison and 5th avenues. These flats are first-class in every particular; they have been built by practical men under their direct supervision and they are situated in a district that is being rapidly improved and developed.

In another column will be found a cut of the "Novelty Range" made by the Abram Cox Stove Co. There are a large number in use, and they are powerful, popular and cheap. Letters have been received from many prominent owners in Brooklyn, Long Island and elsewhere who have tested the "Novelty Range" and all speak highly of it. Among others in Brooklyn may be mentioned A. Stewart Walsh, Dr. Skidmore Hendrickson, M. B. Ray & Co. and A. M. Pierce. The New York manager, W. B. Wilkinson, of 250 Water street, New York, will send books and prices on application.

The trustees of the Gratuity Fund of the New York Produce Exchange offer for sale, at Bayport, L. I., a handsome residence, in Queen Anne style, with twenty-two acres of land, including 1,200 feet of water front on the Great South Bay. The house is 35x58 in dimension, and contains a hall, library, alcove, dining-room and butler's pantry on the first floor; five bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor, and four bedrooms, trunk-room, storeroom and several closets, etc., above. There is also a barn, 50x50 in size, containing five stalls, a box-stall, a glass harness closet, harness-room and coachman's room, and a farmer's cottage with ten rooms, as well as a boat-house, cow-shed, wagon-shed, etc. The whole property is in first-class order, and is offered at considerably below cost and on reasonable terms. The title is guaranteed by the New York Produce Exchange.

The desire for handsome interior decoration in the homes of all who can afford it has produced efforts by decorators which are by far superior in design and execution to the work seen in many houses built a generation ago. There has grown up a new school in recent years—men who can produce excellent results without too large an expense. Among the latter is John Woolley, the interior architect, who has drawn many handsome designs for interior decorations. His quarters are at No. 2 West 14th street, on the corner of 5th avenue.

People intending to erect houses of any kind will do well to send for estimates to Taylor Brothers, carpenters and builders, whose work is already so satisfactorily known. The facilities of this firm are excellent. Jobbing in all its branches is undertaken with dispatch. Their office is at No. 1628 Broadway, on the southeast corner of 50th street.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mort gage was handed into the Register's office to be re corded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corre sponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The lien filed against property on Prospect avenue, near Samuel street, and noticed in last week's RECORD AND GUIDE, is unjust and unfair. I am the contractor on the buildings; and the claimants, F. & H. Holler, are co-partners with me in doing the work. They have been fully paid all moneys due them.

Yours sincerely, GEORGE SCHWEHN.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages v., VIII., IX. and X.]

BRICKS.—At last the conditions on the market for Common Hards commence to break away somewhat from the monotony so long prevailing, and we find a stronger and more cheerful tone. There has been enough ice in the river to interfere more or less with the supply, for where manufacturers did not find an absolute check to transportation they were in constant apprehension of it, and a great many have reduced their shipments or hauled off entirely. In the meanwhile the weather has hardly been of a character to have any serious influence as a check to consumption, and, therefore, with the demand keeping well up to former average and the lessened offering there was just enough competition to infuse a little buoyancy. The most cheerful report is made over the better grades of stock which have sold quickest and closest to the arrival, with $7.00@7.25 per M now fairly quotable on the top range, but other qualities secure reflected influence, as there is very little complaint over conditions in which stock is arriving. Aside from the results as already noted there seems to be very little suggested of a specially interesting character, most of the trade talking conservatively. That rather high rates are calculated upon in many instances is evident; yet the advancing mark is not set for an extreme plane, and there seems to be no more expected than would be natural at this season of the year, and, of course, all results will depend to a large extent upon the condition of the weather. Such parcels of Pale as may have come to hand found ready and prompt sale, and at $3.50@3.75 per M the market is quoted firm and promising.

GLASS.—We have frequently called attention to the steady growth of the trade in domestic plate, and as an illustration may be noted the profits of a Pittsburg concern, which in a recent report to stockholders showed that regular dividends to the amount of 23 per cent. were paid during the year, and a special dividend of 11¾ per cent. was declared, making in round figures $950,000 net profit for 1889.

HARDWARE.—As yet the general demand for hardware is not expanding very rapidly, yet there is a tendency toward an increase, and reports take more or less cheerful form. There seems to be some doubt just at the moment about the chances for builders' hardware during the coming season, though most leading operators hold to the opinion that there can be no serious falling off in the consumption of standard grades, with chances for a considerable increase. According to a compilation recently made from Custom House figures the exports of the past year from this port included "Locks and other builders' hardware" to the value of $1,389,876. Since the 1st of January the tendency of values has been toward greater strength, and among the changes advised we note the following: An advance of 5 per cent. on Iron Rivets and Burrs, making discount 40 per cent; also an advance of 10@15 per cent. on Horse Nails. Cast Iron Butts and Hinges are higher and now quoted at 70 per cent. discount on Loose Joint, Loose Pin and Parliament, plain and japanned; 55 per cent. on Broad Fast and 50 and 5 per cent. on Narrow Fast. The manufacturers of Wood Planes have withdrawn all quotations issued before January 1, and now quote f. o. b. at factory instead of delivered. Former trade discounts retained, except the 2 per cent. for cash ten days is withdrawn. Barb Wire is firmer and quoted: Galvanized 4 points by car lots, 4c.; 3 ton lots, 4.1c., and smaller lots, 4.3c. Genuine Coes Wrenches are 10 per cent. higher. Wrought Iron Pipe is further marked up, with present discounts as follows: Butt, black, 47½ per cent. and galvanized 40; Lap, black, 60 and galvanized 47½. Boilers' tubes, 1¾ inch and smaller, 45; 2 to 4 inch, 50; 4 inch and larger, 52½, and casing 52½. Cordage tends to strengthen somewhat.

LATH.—In all general particulars the market remains just about the same, and the only new point is another fractional addition made to the line of value, with a sale of St. John stock quoted at $2.50 per M on the spot. There has been a larger supply in the harbor than last week, but a portion of them were sold before arrival, and the balance as soon as offered, which, taken in connection with the moderate amounts known to be afloat, inspires some of the receivers with quite strong ideas. It might not be amiss, however, to keep one eye looking toward the north, for at about this time last year, and when price was very much the same as now current, it was found profitable to send in lath by rail. Advices at hand report that the Havector with 662,000 lath, from St. John, N. B., for New York, was wrecked on Grand Manan, and will prove a total loss.

LIME.—In the matter of price there is no change to advise and probably will be none until the combination breaks up in the spring. Demand in the meanwhile has been very fair, taking all the arrivals coastwise—there were only a few—and also affording an opportunity to the State manufacturers to bring stock forward by rail and they have commenced to do so. According to Provincial journals, St. John, N. B., exported 225,000 bbls. lime to the United States last year. Of that amount, as our records have already shown, about 82,000 bbls. came here, some 90,000 to 95,000 went to Boston, and the balance was scattered about through the New England States.

LUMBER.—Demand is somewhat irregular, but on the whole tending to increase somewhat both for consumption and to replenish stocks. Manufacturing and building wants are both making room for more stuff outside of that coming to hand on contract delivery, and dealers in turn will now and then negotiate for parcels likely to fill gaps after deliveries are made. Certain choice stuff, such as spruce, hemlock and leading grades of hardwood would also find attention for prompt delivery and command pretty full rates. There is, however, no exhaust for any large quantity, and in many cases buyers feel that there need be no special hurry to fill their requirements, as the sound of the drummer already commences to be heard about the city, and it is expected that with the exception of some of the coastwise products offerings will be as full as the market requires.

Eastern Spruce has the former strong general support, and the common experience is to find instant and positive denial of any suggestions of possible loss of tone. Of course it is pretty good reason to talk stiff, and almost a certainty that a really desirable offering would create prompt competition on a full line of bids, while specials for early spring delivery are claimed to be almost upon sellers' own terms, but now and then buyers are commencing to object to the asssumption of steadily lasting strength. They claim that some disappointment may arise as to consumption and feel confident that, old and new together, there will be logs enough with possibly a necessity for manufacturers to come down a peg or so from valuations already strained to a pretty full tension.

Piling remains under control, and between contracts already in hand, and the prospects of additions, the strain of most reports is cheerful. There is again reference to some pretty big jobs this year, but operators are reticent as to the exact character and extent of the work.

Hemlock is firmly held, and now and then rumors of weakness or cut rates do not seem to be substantiated. Indeed, some dealers have through experience come to look upon such stories as the precursor of some new demand, and confidently await its development. Reports of production are variable, though it is claimed there can be no surplus of stock specially suited to this market.

White Pine has a market upon which it appears possible to obtain a report to suit almost any temperament from a rank bear up to the most rampant bull, but the conservative element predominates, and all in all few radical changes are taking place at the moment. The supplies are holding out well enough to satisfy all calls both as to quantity and assortment without much difficulty and while some of the agents endeavor to give the impression that they are placing quite a little bunch of goods, it is not easy to find dealers who have indulged in important purchases or even admit the necessity for them. At primary points there is not much new at the moment.

Yellow Pine continues substantially in the former condition, not much open demonstration of activity showing itself, yet in one way or another considerable stock finding custom, and values retaining good general support. For yard stock the call is probably least active, but some excellent contracts are under advisement, including railroad jobs, and there is also more or less f. o. b. trade doing on regular outlets.

Caroline Pine as usual receives a few words of disparagement from dealers who are not handling it, or have made rather poor success in doing so, but manufacturers do not appear to be at all worried, nor likely to feel so, while they can maintain the same excellent run of trade that has so long about exhausted the production. It is understood that an effort will be made as soon as the open season again sets in to still further widen the circle of distribution.

Hardwoods retain the increase of favor last noted, and while there is nothing that would permit a claim of animation for any grade, operators express themselves very well satisfied with trade, the season considered. Thus far nothing has developed to indicate any great change in favor as regards the woods used for trim, though some dealers are hoping to increase the sale of the odd descriptions to consumers in search of novelties. Exporters continue willing to negotiate on both lumber and logs, but with the promise that they shall not be asked to give attention to other than the best of goods.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman gives the following brief table showing the cut of lumber during 1889 and 1888 at four important producing points:

	1889.	1880.
The Saginaws	750,000,000	880,169,440
Muskegon	491,860,396	614,714,289
Alpena	249,315,000	190,000,000
Menominee River	635,000,000	408,833,000
Total	2,126,175,396	2,093,616,729
Increase	132,559,667

The increase is altogether at the more westerly points. The stocks of lumber at Muskegon and in the Saginaws are not in excess of what they were a year ago, but there is a large increase in the amount in pile at the mouth of the Menominee River.

The Northwestern Lumberman presents elaborated tabular statements of the product of White Pine by mills of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota during the past year and summarizes thereon as follows:

It will be seen by the present exhibit that the total output of the mills in 1889 was less by 83,000,000 feet than in 1888. When it is considered that stocks in hand are about 30,000,000 feet greater than last year, we can claim that the trade in 1889 lost over 100,000,000 feet, as compared to that of 1888. Perhaps this is enough to account for the grumbling that was heard among white pine manufacturers and dealers throughout the past season. Possibly we can account for this loss by the inroads that yellow pine has made in trans-Missouri territory, and to a considerable extent all over the northwest. Furthermore we may credit North Carolina and yellow pine with a portion of the loss in the east.

In the section west of the Chicago district there was a decline of output in 1889, as compared to that of 1888 of 159,086,000 feet—a considerable amount which should have had some effect in stimulating demand toward the season's close. In the Chicago district there was a gain of product last year, as compared to that of 1888, to the amount of 104,780,000 feet, so that the increase of stocks on hand at the close, of something over 100,000,000 feet can be offset by the increase of output, leaving distribution about as it was the year before. The St. Croix mills made a small gain—28,000,000 feet, the Saginaw Valley and the Huron shore lost a few millions, and Lake Erie points gained about 13,000,000 feet. In glancing at the table exhibiting the summary of stocks on hand in the several producing districts of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, it will be noticed that the grand total does not greatly differ from that of last year. This year there is an excess of something over 30,000,000 feet—about enough to stock a big yard in this city. This, out of a grand total of a little less than 3,500,000,000 feet, is not worth mentioning as having a bearing on trade. Practically stocks of white and Norway pine on hand January 1, this year, were the same as at a like date last year, so that the question of supplies can be dropped as of no account, comparatively speaking. But we can say the demand the present year will be greater than last, and therefore gain some consolation in the fact that there is no comparative surplus on hand.

The Timberman as follows:

We hear no more of the prospects of a diminished harvest of logs on account of an insufficiency of snow, the complaints which are now being voiced being all of a plethora of that article. However, there is great activity throughout all the logging camps of the north, and all reports agree that the long-promised curtailment will be deferred until some future time.

Many competent judges are predicting unusual activity in the lumber trade this year, and can point to many signs that justify such prophesies, principal among which is the strong demand for iron and the advance in its price.

And in reviewing the Chicago trade says:

It is generally conceded that inquiries are becoming more frequent and orders more numerous, and now that the cold weather has made roads in the country passable, there are still better prospects ahead for the wholesale lumber dealers The only matter on which they are at all uneasy is the question of prices. At present these are being held up quite firm, or at least it is so claimed. Those firms who are in the habit of sending out lists have adopted a uniform one, and if this practice is adhered to it will be a good thing. In Hardwoods a large per cent. of the trade now doing is in oak, with cherry and ash in good demand. Some chestnut is being sold, and also walnut. In most yards first and second oak, both red and white, is held at $32. Several good sized bills are reported as having been sold at $30, but with the best dry stock there is no difficulty in getting $32. Squares bring $35, specialities $40 and quarter-sawed $42.50 to $45.

Walnut is doing somewhat better where an effort is made to push it. The prices at which this stock has sold in some instances seem out of proportion with the quotations, as cull at $28 and common at $48 would leave the dealer very little for handling. Firsts and seconds for export are always in good demand and command ready sale at $80 to $85.

There is no trouble in selling all the better grade cherry that can be picked up, but the lower grades move slowly. According to manufacturers, ash is one of the best materials for piano tops there is. Good quarter-sawed ash will keep its place better than any other wood, and it may be veneered on both sides with the kind of finish desired. Chestnut used to be used quite extensively in the manufacture of tops, but it has been almost entirely abandoned for the use of ash. Now that ash is getting to be difficult to procure, chestnut may be resorted to again unless some more desirable substitute is discovered.

The stock of mahogany on this market is very low. Mexican mahogany of fair quality is sold at 16 to 17 cents per foot. Cuba mahogany logs are commanding 14 to 15 cents per foot.

CANADA.

In reviewing the lumber situation the Canadian Journal of Commerce says:

Stocks to be got out this winter are expected to be about the same as last season, with perhaps a slight increase in the amount of square timber produced in the Ottawa Valley, or altogether, probably nine or ten million cubic feet. About the same quantities of oak and waney board pine will be imported from Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, etc., or about 1,500,000 cubic feet each.

The production of pine deals it is supposed will be curtailed as a result of this year's unsatisfactory business. Scarcely a firm that handled pine deals but complains of a loss, and some houses manipulated very large quantities. The supply of spruce deals will be about the same as last year.

All new supplies will, of course, depend on the character of winter, and the drives in the spring. The weather to date has not been over favorable in many districts, owing to bad spells of very mild weather, and even rain, during which hauling is impossible. Some old weather prophets predict a short and mild winter. If such happens to be the case, it will, as a matter of consequence, very much lessen the new stocks. But weather prophets are not to be depended on.

Almost all the new oak and waney board now being manufactured is contracted for Quebec exporters, and also a considerable amount of the timber making in the Ottawa Valley, and all at high prices. Oak and waney board have touched the highest point in history of the business.

There has not yet been much done in pine deals, manufacturers not being desirous of lowering the high prices of past years, and exporters are shy from last year's experience and seem disposed to hold back on the expectation of buying at lower prices than they have been paying. The present and prospective outlook in all markets warrants their action. In the English and American markets, in the latter of which there is an immense and always increasing consumption, stocks have been so heavy as to destroy all vim, and prices, if not weak, have certainly not manifested much strength. American buyers are not expected to this winter rush in as eagerly as last year for their new supplies. Another factor, which, though small, will have some effect on prices, is the South American market, principally that of the Argentine Republic, which is in a deplorable condition. Owing to the great rise in the value of gold, which has caused a financial crisis, business there is demoralized. Many cargoes of pine lumber recently arrived at Buenos Ayres have been landed and warehoused, importers saying they don't know who to sell to. As a consequense shipments have almost ceased, with a good deal of lumber here still in the hands of exporters.

NAILS.—The market is kept well in hand, and owners express general confidence in ability to maintain their position in the matter of values without much difficulty. The course of demand of late has been somewhat slow, and there has been some outside offerings of stock to cause trouble, though the latter are gradually being disposed of. We quote at $2.10@2.15 per keg for car lots, and $2.15@2.20 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—No very great amount of animation shown, and many articles are still more or less under mid-winter neglect. There are, however, evidences of a little more interest developing in the thoroughly standard descriptions of stock, and the chances are now all in favor of a gradual expansion of trade. Supplies are in good shape and holders firm in expecting full rates. Linseed Oil is a little irregular of sale, but held pretty steadily. On first hand lots the quotations are 58@59c. for Western and 60@62c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has been somewhat irregular, but of late inclined to greater firmness on the stimulus of better Southern advices. We quote at 42½@43½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

VOL. XLV. FEBRUARY 8, 1890. No. 1,143.

The bulls in Wall street this week have more than held their own, and the coal stocks have even added a little to the rising account. Reading sold yesterday for the highest price in some weeks, and the general market looked more vigorous than at any time since the bank troubles. Exchange was a little weaker, and there is even prospect now of it running in our favor, and it is not improbable that we shall soon import a moderate quantity of gold. London is expecting soon to receive considerable of the precious metal from Australia, whose large wool shipments have kept the rate of exchange in its favor so that but little gold has been sent, and Australia, like all other countries for some time back, has made strong efforts to keep its gold, but lately there is evidence of a more liberal policy. Trade in England shows greater prosperity in comparison with last year. On the Continent money is easier, and all around it looks as though the borrower, and not the lender, will soon be in a position to dictate the rate. General trade is good throughout this country, and the indications are all promising.

The woful affliction that has befallen Secretary Tracy's family has drawn the attention of the public in a peculiarly pointed way to a class of disasters that is not nearly so uncommon as is generally supposed; but happening to persons not so well known as the Secretary of the Navy makes a less powerful impression on the feelings of people. It is one of the many strange inconsistencies in the doings of men that the dwellings they erect are the most inflammable of their buildings. Great improvements have been made during recent years in the construction of fire-proof buildings, and these improvements are applied in a most painstaking manner and at great cost, in the erection of office buildings, warehouses, theatres and public edifices of various kinds, but in dwellings they are practically ignored as though they could be of no possible value there. What with wooden beams and flooring, hardwood trim, wooden staircases, wooden mantels and a general use of varnish and paint wherever possible, the modern dwelling comes dangerously close to being an almost perfect tinder-box.

There is very little doubt that the fire in Secretary Tracy's house arose because of imperfect construction in the arrangement of the flues and floor beams. This defect exists to some degree in most dwellings, and it is not uncommon to find the criminal practice of running the floor beams unprotected in any way into the flue itself. It is unnecessary to point out, even those who know nothing about the construction of buildings, the danger of this. In time, of course, the beam becomes like touchwood, and if a conflagration is not the result, it is due principally to good luck—the benign protector of half the world—and the fact that the flue is never very highly heated. It is probable that if all the fires in all the dwellings in this city were started to-morrow, so that the flues would be used to the utmost, the services of the fire department would be needed to maintain the integrity of perhaps 15 per cent. of these buildings. The Consolidation Act, as amended by section 16, chapter 566, Laws of 1887, says: "All wooden beams shall be trimmed away from all flues, whether the same be a smoke, air or any other flue, the trimmer beam to be twelve inches from the inside face of a flue in a straight way, and eight inches in a chimney breast, and the header four inches from the outside face of the flue." There is, however, nothing new or astonishing in the fact that a good law, enforced even with close inspection, should be frequently and flagrantly evaded. In the revision which our building laws are now undergoing, that part of the enactment concerning furnace and boiler flues, which orders that they shall be lined inside with cast iron, or fire brick pipe, should be made to cover flues of all descriptions, and this inner lining should be required no matter how thick the brickwork or stonework of the flue may be.

We print on another page a series of interviews with employers, workmen and others of the building trade, dealing with the eight-hour-day question, which merit attention. These interviews, which may be taken as fairly representative of the views of all concerned, disclose the fact that there is very little opposition in any quarter to the movement. They also dispose, so far as the building trade is concerned, of the idea that has been running loose for some time, that the extra hour of leisure can be obtained without entailing a diminished production. The workmen say they will not be able to do more in eight hours with the shorter day than they do in the same number of hours at present; and employers are unanimously of the opinion that no compensation can be obtained from machinery, as was the case in the Massachusetts textile mills when the hours of labor for women and children were limited to ten hours. Add to this the fact that there is very little doubt that the workingmen will demand, and will probably get, the same pay for eight hours that they do to-day for nine, and it is easy to see that some one will have to "foot the bill." It will fall first of all upon the capitalist—that is, those who invest in buildings. As Mr. Roberts said: the contractors cannot see that they have anything to gain by standing between the laborer and the capitalist for the benefit of the latter. The capitalist, however, is not likely in the least to pay more for a building and then drop the matter. He will distribute the increased cost in the shape of higher rents, etc., and this will again be redistributed through other channels, practically throughout the entire community. Thus, economically speaking, the community will lose by an eight-hour day, as indeed the community must always economically lose by any curtailment of production. The production of merchandise, however, is not an end in itself; it should subserve a higher production, viz., the improvement of the human race. Where this is not the result production is of no benefit. Eight hours labor daily is ample for any individual, even in the least tiring of occupations. The world is ceasing to "apotheosize work," as it did formerly, and is increasing its liberties by breaking away as much as possible from toil.

The property-owners and residents in the 19th Ward, who were represented the other day by the Hon. Joseph Blumenthal before the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, would do well to continue to enforce the attention of the city authorities to the fact that the law makes it mandatory for the city to construct the exterior street between 64th and 81st streets and East River. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has continued from time to time to call attention to the neglect by the city authorities of this important improvement, as well as other public improvements which have been delayed, notwithstanding the laws in force. Comptroller Meyer's communication to the Commissioners, giving a history of the proceedings to create the exterior street, from the date of the passing of the first law in regard to it (chap. 697, Laws 1887) is all very well, but property-owners and residents who are interested in the improvement—in which the people of this city are also generally interested—should see that no further delay occurs, or at least should reach some understanding with the city officials as to whether they mean to perform their duty and carry out the law or not. The matter, we see, has been postponed again for "future consideration," though the improvement was under official consideration even prior to the passage of the law in 1887. The same holds good as to other public improvements—the transverse roads through the Central Park, for instance, which are so necessary to give the people of this city proper communication between the east and west sides of the metropolis. THE RECORD AND GUIDE has frequently called attention to these delays in public improvements, and if the property-owners and citizens affected will not organize to force the attention of the city authorities to the laws in existence, they do not deserve to have the improvements hastened.

It is a most singular fact that with all the discussion which the arbitrary and partizan rulings of Speaker Reed have created, not a voice, so far as we know, has been raised against the custom which is at the bottom of the trouble—the custom, viz., of putting an office, the functions of which are primarily judicial, into the hands of a partizan, to be used within undefined limits for partizan purposes. This custom is not in any way sanctioned by the Constitution, but is purely a matter of precedent. The title of the Speaker and the general idea of his functions were originally taken from the presiding officer of the English House of Commons. Both have always practically been elected by the dominant party in the House; but while one is supposed to divest himself of party ties and sympathies when he assumes the office, the other is not only allowed, but expected, to use the power which the position gives, for partizan purposes. The limits put on this partizan bias have never been clearly defined. Prof. Bryce says on this point: "Although expected to serve his party in all possible directions, he must not resort to all possible means. Both in the conduct of the debate and in the formation of committees a certain measure of fairness to opponents is required from him. He must not palpably wrest the rules of the House to their advantage, though he may decide all doubtful points against them." Speaker Reed has broken all the precedents which justified Mr. Bryce's statements. He has not only served his party in all directions, but in every possible way. The ambiguous "certain measure of fairness" which he is expected to exercise, he has utterly disregarded. The early Popes offered salvation to any Christian who would join in the crusade for the recovery of the Holy Sepulchre. Later Popes who preached crusades, and who wished to offer special inducements, promised what they termed "more salvation," whatever that meant. So it is with the Speaker's "certain measure of fairness." The measure unfortunately depends on the partizan exigencies of the moment, as if an official whose functions are judicial has any right to be only measurably impartial.

The powers of the Speaker, unlike those of most of our Government officials, rest entirely upon the precedent. The makers of the Constitution had no idea that the position would be of any importance. It is mentioned only once in that instrument, and no definition is given of the Speaker's powers. In the development of the Constitution through usage, large powers have been granted him. He has more influence on our national legislation than any man in the country. It is because his powers are founded entirely upon precedent that Speaker Reed's position in the throwing off the shackles which limited his predecessors is so anomalous. He has struck at the root of the principle which gives him his power. The abuse which this power has suffered in his hands is a good argument either for its absolute limitation in the future or for the making of some provision whereby it shall be placed in the hands of a man whose independence might render him impartial.

There was a conversation at a meeting of the Park Commissioners last Wednesday which is worthy of attention. The Harlem Railroad Company has applied, as railroad companies will, for permission to place a platform opposite the Bedford Park station on that road, which would infringe on the Bronx River Park. The following is the report of the Tribune of the conversation which ensued:

A discussion arose among the Commissioners on the authority for granting the permit. It was said that the elevated roads having got possession of the Battery Park, could not be forced to leave it.

"I have looked into the law on that subject," said President Hutchins, "and I think that we have authority to put the elevated roads out of Battery Park on six months' notice."

"Is that so?" observed Mr. Borden, "then I think we had better serve that notice right off.

It would, indeed, be perfectly in keeping with the past treatment of the Manhattan Railroad Company by the city authorities to have the aforesaid notice served "right off," but the results of such a service might be different from those which we may assume Mr. Borden would expect. Let us suppose that the Manhattan Company were compelled to vacate Battery Park, what would be the consequences? On the one hand the park itself would be restored to the state of pristine simplicity and beauty which our Mayor so much admires. That portion of the sovereign people who at present occupy the historic grounds in smoky meditation would no longer be annoyed by the roar of the elevated trains and their fine perceptions of the harmonious in nature would not be shocked by the ugly iron structures stretching along the walks in forbidding prominence. On the other hand there are other portions of the sovereign people who wish to get to Staten sland and Brooklyn, and who would seriously object to the neccessity of walking across the historic grounds to attain the purpose. In the past our city authorities have acted rather in the interests of the philosophers of Battery Park frequenters than such of our citizens as wished to obtain rapid transit, but we are inclined to believe that the further application of the same principle in the way that Mr. Borden suggests would result in as much vacancy in the Department of Public Parks as it would in Battery Park.

The mutliplicity of the projects for improving the public service of the railroads running out of New York and for building new tunnels and bridges is but another aspect of the urgency of the rapid transit problem in this city. It is estimated that $15,000,000 will be spent by these railroads in improving the terminals and terminal facilities; and the estimate does not include, of course. the more shadowy projects which need a legislative sanction in order to render them possible. The apathy of so many of the companies for so many years in perfecting their local service is as peculiar in its way as the delay which has attended every attempt to better the intermural transit in this city. The Pennsylvania Company has certainly been the most wide-awake in this respect; but even this rich corporation has not done all that it might do—that is, it has never been willing to sacrifice enough of the immediate returns which it can get from its business for the sake of building up the towns along its route. But whatever may have been the deficiencies of the corporations in the past they are fully alive to the present importance, as is shown by their energy in making improvements. The Erie Company and the New York & Northern have not as yet been heard from; but it is not likely that they will allow themselves to be distanced in the race. It is a pity that the local service of both the Northern road and the Harlem has been and is so bad. The districts they serve are superior in natural advantages to any other around the city; their agricultural utility is a thing of the past, and if more easily accessible would increase in population and wealth at a much faster rate than they do at present. The next two or three years are likely to see important changes in the features for transit round about New York.

The Evening Post has been making some statements about the legislation in relation to block-indexing which are untrue. The mistakes are scarcely to be wondered at, for the whole subject is involved and complicated to a degree. It says: "Even the Block Index bill passed in 1887, only provides for conveyances filed after December 31st of that year, and this act was being ignored by the city authorities, who have neglected to appropriate the money to secure the books." This statement, standing as it does entirely alone, in reference to the aspect of the attempts at legislation, implies that the act of 1887 is the only Block Indexing act that has ever passed the Legislature, and that it has been disregarded by the city authorities. As a matter of fact the bill of 1887 was repealed by the act passed last year, and the provisions of the repealing act, in spite of the opposition of ex-Register Slevin, have been fully carried out. The maps are at present being prepared by the Department of Taxes and Assessments, and there is no reasonable doubt when the time comes that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment will appropriate the few thousand dollars necessary for the preparation of the books without delay. Indeed, they have no option in the matter. In case it was not done the Mayor could be held strictly to account. We have got another year to wait before the present lack of system in indexing instruments affecting real estate shall disappear. If the expectation of the friends of the reform are then justified, an extension of the principle, which will make searches as simple as they are at present involved and tedious, may be expected to follow.

"Our Favorable Balance of Trade."

Reference to Custom House statistics shows that during the year 1889 the export trade of the United States—not including bullion—exceeded import by 7½ per cent., and on all sides we are beginning to hear talk of "our favorable balance of trade." As a matter of fact what do these statistics show? They are of value in giving some general indication as to the extent of our commercial transactions, but as a true index of favorable or unfavorable trade they are comparatively worthless. Wealth passes in and out of the United States every year which is not included in Custom House statistics. Until this element is taken into consideration it is impossible to know with which nation rests the real favorable balance of trade. There is perhaps no subject which the people at large think they so clearly understand as that of the balance of trade, and yet there are few subjects so generally misunderstood. The ablest thinkers stumble in treating of it. A very keen observer, in reviewing the phenomenal industrial growth of the United States during the last year gives, among others, these two causes for national self-gratulation. "The balance of trade is in our favor," and "we observe, as a result of the brilliant outlook, that there is a universal scramble for property. British syndicates are sending their money to this country by the millions to buy our breweries, distilleries, nail mills, flour mills, etc." An analysis of these two statements will serve to show wherein this general misconception regarding the balance of trade theory lies. What is meant by a favorable balance of trade in the first assertion is that exports for the year 1889, according to Custom House statistics, exceeded imports. Now, the millions of dollars sent into this country by British syndicates, as given in the second assertion, may have come, and probably in great part did come in on paper, or in such a way as to have escaped the Custom House statisticians. On the other hand, bonds, shares and titles to property which represent English investments in this country may have been sent to England, and no statistical note made of the fact. But obviously such wealth entering and leaving the country should be classed among imports and exports as well as is merchandise, in ascertaining the balance of trade of a nation. No satisfactory conclusion can be reached regarding commercial transactions between nations until it is considered. It is not sufficient to say that wealth imported and exported on paper every year balances each other, for one-half of the capital of British syndicates sent into this country may have been in the shape of commodities valued at the Custom House; while the whole stock of paper representatives of these investments, titles, etc., which were sent back to England may not have been recorded; or, vice versa. Under ordinary circumstances a nation's exports—including merchandise, bullion and that represented on paper—tend in the long run to balance imports. But this general rule is modified when the property of one country is held by citizens of another. It is estimated that over $50,000,000 of English money was invested in industrial enterprises in the United States last year. Add to this the vast sums invested from this source during the previous twenty years in this country, and it is at once seen that an enormous extra sum must be sent abroad each year in payment of interest, profits and dividends to absentee capitalists. It is highly possible, if indeed not probable, then, that during the last year, a part of the goods included in our export statistics went to satisfy the claims of foreign syndicates and that it may have been this amount which gave us a seeming favorable balance of trade. England, Germany, and in fact the majority of wealthier nations have had for a long time a so-called unfavorable balance of trade. This is due to the fact that these countries have invested their capital abroad, the returns upon their investments coming back through the Custom Houses swell the imports. Bankrupt India and half-starved Ireland have each a large favorable (Custom House) balance of trade. These countries are obliged to export heavily to meet their foreign obligations. May not what is denominated a favorable balance of trade in this country mean that the excess of our export over import go in a great measure to swell the income of foreign capitalists?

The conclusion must be reduced to this, that no true indication of a nation's wealth or prosperity can be derived from the yearly amount of exports or imports as given by Custom House statistics.

Apropos of the Building Law, the Committee on Revision will hold a daily session during next week to decide which of the amendments proposed by the architects, builders and others that have appeared before the committee, shall be accepted. There is reason for expecting that the law will be more satisfactory to builders and property-holders in its amended form than it is at present. The experience of the last two years and a half has revealed many minor defects in the law. It has been shown that in some respects it is unnecessarily exacting and inflexible in its provisions. Modifications and additions will be made, but in its main features the law will remain very much as it is, so that there is no necessity for a repetition of the hasty filing of plans which occurred in 1887 before the new law went into operation. Indeed, it is probable that something will be gained in this case by delay, One great improvement will be made by the revisers, in the form of the law. We believe it has been decided to adopt an arrangement whereby all that pertains to a given subject will be found in one place, and not scattered throughout the law. Thus all that relates to Foundations will be found together, and so with Superstructure, Internal Arrangements, Legal Obligation, etc.

Our Letter Bag—The World's Fair and Justice.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Have you remarked how severe has been the punishment that has ever befallen the nation that became Apostate to itself? The Greeks forgot Marathon and Salamis and their name became a byword for ages for a slave. Israel forgot the Eternal whom she had preached, and Judea was desolated by idolaters. The fate of the old Republics of Italy teach the same lesson.

There are indications—it is difficult, if not impossible to estimate their value at present—that this country is becoming indifferent to the idea that was quite as potent a factor in bringing the Mayflower across the Atlantic as the winds that filled the vessel's sails; that was one of the forces that begot the Revolution and its splendid consequences, and that was the one undefiled exalting element in the contest for the abolition of slavery—the idea that the individual has rights that are uninalienably his, upon which other individuals, singly or collectively, cannnot justly trespass.

To-day, in a score of directions it may be seen we are acting upon the principle that the individual has no rights that may not be overridden by the tyranny of what is called Law. So that we may not be imposed upon by the sound of this grandiloquent word let us remember that the Inquisition was Law; the prescription and persecution of "Nonconformists" for centuries in England was Law; Slavery was Law; George III. sent troops to this country to maintain the Law, exactly as infringements on the rights of the individual to-day are Law. But was the Law just? That is the question.

This brings me to the particular point to which I wish to draw your attention. Undoubtedly it would be a matter for regret—by our city, certainly, and by the nation, I believe—if New York should not be selected as the site for the Exposition of 1892. But much more lamentable would it be, in my estimation, and I believe in the estimation of others more in number than is generally known, if as part of the price New York pays for being selected should be the passage of any such iniquitous bill as the one the politicians in Albany have been wrangling about.

That bill affirms in essence, that a majority has the right to deprive an individual of his property in opposition to his wishes. It matters not whether one lot be taken or one thousand, whether ample compensation be given or not. The question is, has the individual a right in his property that is sacred against the entire world. The Fair bill answers: He has not.

If a man's lot can be taken from him for a compensation that is not satisfactory to him, because the "people" wish it, why can he not be deprived also of his money and other belongings for the same reason? His right to the latter is not founded any deeper than his right to the former. It will not do to say, "No one would ever attempt to carry the principle to extremes. Only a few lots will be taken now, and the matter will then be dropped." History—the experience of mankind, which is of infinitely greater value than the mere assertions of those who look at the matter hastily through a present desire—shows how impossible it has been to admit a vicious principle and then at once limit its action. No vicious principle that has ever been admitted into human affairs has been confined to the first step taken. A will-o'-the-wisp Justice is a poor guide. It leads inevitably to a place of no sure foothold.

It seems to me that the world is getting drunk on its panaceas. For every evil that arises it has its confiscation schemes, its socialistic measures, its compulsory laws, its official paternalism. Our sympathy with the poor, the afflicted, the oppressed no longer begets self-sacrifice, but an attack upon somebody else's property or rights. We no longer have any faith in the power of a rigid adherence to Justice and Morality to improve our condition. We prefer to put our trust in statutory remedies, begot of the wisdom of our publicans and sinners in Albany or elsewhere. As was written of old, "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefor the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil."

But in this World's Fair business, it is to be hoped that the citizens of New York will not sell one of their most precious birthrights for a mess of potage, be it ever so palatable at present. JUSTICE.

We are half inclined to think that out of sympathy for "Justice" we should consign his communication to the waste-paper basket instead of publishing it. There is, however, a lesson to be got out of nonsense at times, if it only comes in a sufficiently pronounced form. "Justice" is evidently one of those cranks who dwell by themselves at the extreme of a theory, almost beyond the call of common-sense.

But take him in his "humor." This country is not forgetting that the individual has rights which, to use our correspondent's phrase, "are his;" but while not forgetting this, it also recognizes, ever more clearly, that the individual cannot be a monopolist—in "rights." Society has its rights, and people are perhaps inclined to think that these rights of Society are of equal, if not of paramount importance to those of the individual. No individual's "rights," wishes or whims can be allowed to stand for a moment in the way of public improvements, or of any great enterprise that is for the general benefit. The people of this city wish the Fair to be located here, and the bill which "Justice" denounces as "iniquitous" gives, and rightly gives, the Commission that is to have charge of the matter the power to take for a term of years or in fee the land necessary for a site. There is no reason on earth except love for exaggeration for the statement that all the land taken will be taken in fee. Certain lots will be needed for permanent buildings for the future use of the city, and these must be acquired at the outset in fee if they are to be of any use. The "what they might do" argument of Messrs. Fasset, Saxton and others, which is, we believe, an "only child" of the Evening Post, is ridiculous. Time is too short, and the matter is too serious, to permit the discussion of what the hundred odd World Fair Commissioners might do if they should temporarily take leave of their senses. As Senator Saxton said, they might under the provisions of the bill attempt to seize the Grand Central Depot and condemn it for a dime museum or take the Fifth Avenue Hotel (as the Senator says) for an Art Gallery, but according to this process of reasoning the Senator himself should be forcibly confined for the benefit of himself and the public, because he might attempt to get down Broadway by turning a series of somersaults. No one, however, accepts this sort of argument, and so the Sonator has his freedom, and the World's Fair Committee should be given powers which are not dangerous in the hands of reasonable men.

The World's Fair bill should be passed. It would have been ere this but for politics and the opposition of a few property-holders; but mainly because of politics. As to the constitutionality of the bill, only the Courts are competent to pass on that. Good lawyers assert that it is constitutional; others say it is not. It is the opinion of many that the question will never be seriously raised, and that if New York gets the Fair it will be found that the fight on this point has been a fight with shadows.

As to the general scope of what "Justice" says, it is useless to go into the matter. The World will work out its problems more or less irrespective of theories or abstract ideas in the future as in the past. Some injustice may be done and it may be that many will suffer. Advance in human affairs is not all gain, but a preponderance of gain over loss.

The attitude of many of our newspapers towards rich men is very similar to their attitude towards prize fighters. In their editorial columns they blackguard the poor millionaires; call them boodlers, bribers, thieves, and assume in general the position of the enlightened Democrat to whom wealth in the hands of others presents no alluring charms. But in their news columns they are as snobbish as the most glaring cockney in London. They fawn on the millionaires, chronicle their doings as Boswell chronicled those of Johnson, and do more than any other agency to spread that sentiment of superstitious awe with which a bloated bank account is regarded. Our coupon cutters may manage their wealth without regard to the interests of anybody but themselves; but they have an excuse for so doing in the way they are treated by the so-called public organs who leave them no private life, because of their money bags, and allow them no public life for the same reason. Unfortunate it undoubtedly is that wealth opens such possibilities of political recognition as it does at present; but it must be remembered that the very agencies that condemn most virulently the tendencies are the same which have made it possible. Our millionaires do not, perhaps, deserve very much sympathy. At all events they are amply able to take care of themselves But they certainly have cause for complaint in their treatment by a hypocritical and demagogical press. What should we say of a man who built a road and then lined it with spikes?

Real Estate in January.

The figures of conveyances for the first month of this year are larger than they were in the corresponding month last year. While in January, 1889, there were 1,212 conveyances, in the same month this year there were 1,234, and their aggregate amount during 1890 was $22,416,586 against $20,377,405. The 23d and 24th Wards show a falling-off, while the transfers for nominal considerations show a slight increase. The mortgages for the past month are more numerous, and aggregate $1,217,240 more in amount. Those at 5 per cent. show a very large increase in number and amount, while those at less than 5 per cent., while numbering more, aggregate less in amount. The number of mortgages given to banks, trust and insurance companies show a slight increase. The following are the figures:

CHANGES DOWN TOWN.

Here are the most important sales which have taken place down town:

Pine st, No. 34, 21.3x65 2x20.10x65.9. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. $125,000
Pine st, No. 34½, 23.3x65.9x22.10x66.6. Same 110,000

Murray st, No. 79, n s, 25x100, five-story brick store. Richard H. Bull. 50,000

To show how values have increased it is only necessary to state that Nos. 34 and 34½ Pine street, in the foregoing list, were previously sold as follows: No. 34, in 1880, for $47,500, and No. 34½, in 1881, for $75,000, over 90 per cent. increase in less than ten years. In our summary last month No. 52 Broad street and No. 50 New street were shown to have changed hands at $108,500, while in the foregoing list No. 62 Broad street and No. 56 New street, further away from Wall street and the Stock Exchange, sells for $120,000, and singular enough the buyer was the seller of one of the pieces on Pine street which were sold at such largely increased figures.

ON BROADWAY.

This sale took place on Broadway in a section which it is said merchants are leaving for cheaper quarters on the side streets.

Broadway, No. 535, w s, 25x100. Olivia E. P. Stokes. $115,000

BLEECKER STREET AND VICINITY.

Although the dealings in property in this section have been active the filings for January do not embrace many such sales:

Bleecker st, No. 126, s s, abt 25 w Wooster st, 25x100, new six-story brick store. Samuel and Henry Corn. $75,000
Greene st, No. 170, 24.4x100, new five-story iron front building. Dr. E. E. Marcy. 87,500
4th st, n s, 25.11 e Greene st, 102.2x96.2. / Washington pl, s s, 42.10 w Mercer st, 42.10x96.2. / With buildings. Louis and Sam. Sachs. 201,000

It will be observed that the first two parcels are new buildings, and it may be added they were sold on or before completion. The third parcel embraces the Vanderbilt property, which will no doubt be soon improved. The buyers thereof are among the largest purchasers in this improving district.

COSTLY DWELLINGS.

Titles to the following dwellings changed hands during the month:

5th av, No. 81, e s, 38.6 s 16th st, 34x128.4 four-story stone front dwell'g. John Brooks to Wm. J. Demorest. (Bowery Savings Bank loaned $70,000 on this house at 4½ %). $95,000
5th av, No. 813, e s, 78.5 n 62d st, 22x108, four-story stone front dwell'g. Wm. Radam. 78,000
5th av, No. 811, e s, 25.5 n 62d st, 25x108, four-story stone front dwell'g. Eckstein Norton, New Brighton, S. I. 78,000

[This house has had its ups and downs. A couple of years ago it was sold at auction for $85,000 to Pelham St. George Bissell, who, a short time ago, traded it at $100,000 for the corner of Broadway and 4th street with Moritz Bauer. The latter, through A. Keppich, has in turn sold to Mr. Norton as above, subject to mortgages for $60,000.]

57th st, No. 41 W., 34x100.5, four-story dwell'g. Martha E. Crawford. $150,000
73d st, No. 5 E., 21x102.2, four-story dwell'g. Foreclos. Albert S. Rosenbaum. 51,250
86th st, n s, 30 e 9th av, four four-story dwell'gs. Edward Clark, each 65,000
Madison av, No. 5, e s, 74.11 n 23d st, 24.8x125, four-story stone front dwell'g. Met. Life Ins. Co. Nov. 26, 1889. 100,000

[Although this sale was arranged last year, title did not pass until last week. At the time of sale we reported the above, together with adjoining houses, including the corner of 23d street, and furthermore added that rumor had it that a large publishing house would be erected on the site.]

CHURCHES CHANGE HANDS.

Two churches were transferred during the month, as follows:

35th st, Nos. 65 and 67 W., 50x98.9, church building. Annie T. Harrigan. $60,000
35th st, No. 63 W., four-story dwell'g. Annie T. Harrigan. 43,500
48th st, n s, 400 w 6th av, 80x100.10, brick church. N. Y. City Church Extension and Missionary Soc. of the M. E. Church. 70,000

The first mentioned, together with the dwelling adjoining, has passed into the possession of Actor Edward Harrigan, who will build a theatre on the site. In connection with this sale it should be stated that the church really cost Harrigan $72,500 instead of $60,000, as a firm of builders secured it at the lower figure and resold at the higher price. The church on 48th street will likely be continued to be used for church purposes.

SALE OF THE KENMORE.

57th st, n s, 100 e 9th av, 75x100.5, Kenmore apartment house. Anna B. and Cora F. Barnes. $240,000

The Kenmore was traded in 1886 at $275,000, and subsequently sold at $252,500, so that the foregoing sale shows a decline in price.

AT A LOWER FIGURE.

This corner was sold at the auction sale of the Wetmore estate last October at $200,000, but for some reason or other the title did not pass to Wm. Berrian, who was the highest bidder. Subsequently the plot was sold under foreclosure for the price given below:

Broadway, s e cor 48th st, runs east to 7th av, several two and three-story stores and dwell'gs. Foreclos. Benj. C. Wetmore. $190,500

COSTLY LOTS FOR TENEMENTS AND BUILDERS' PROFITS.

Astonishingly high prices are paid for lots on some of the downtown streets, which are being rapidly transformed by the erection of tenements. Here is a sample:

Madison st, Nos. 179 and 181, bet Rutgers and Pike sts, 48.10x100, two four-story brick stores and tenem'ts. Albert Cappelle. $40,100

Notwithstanding there were four-story buildings on this plot of less than fifty feet frontage, the price must be considered as for the lots, because the buildings will be replaced by new ones. The item which follows gives an idea of builders profits:

9th av, s w cor 19th st, 24x99.11, five-story brick flats with stores. Andrew Finck. $70,000

About six months ago the above lot was sold at $29,000, and plans were filed for a flat to cost $30,000. The figure obtained for the building shows that something over $10,000 was realized on one operation, embracing only one building, and all completed in a few months.

A SITE FOR A SALOON.

Here is what was paid for a corner which will be used for saloon purposes:

23d st, s e cor 9th av, 29x74, four-story brick dwell'g. John Shady. $40,000

EAST SIDE LOTS.

A model brewery will be erected on this block.

Av A, w s, from 54th to 55th st, 13½ lots. Consumers' Brewing Co. $89,550

The Jones estate continue to sell their parts of their large estate. Here is their latest sale:

Av A, n w cor 82d st, 6 lots. Louis and John Brandt and Louis Lochmann. $43,500

The next lot, which was sold in November last at $90,000, has been resold at a profit.

78th / 77th } sts, 150 w 3d av, 4 lots on each street. Max Danziger. $95,000

This is the largest sale of lots along 5th avenue. The lots belonged to the Taber estate, who are reported to have sold out at about $220,000.

5th av, e s, from 91st to 92d st, 14 lots. Guggenheimer and Untermyer. $255,000

Close by, on 92d street, this sale was made:

92d st, n s, about 250 e 5th av, 50x100.8. 80,000

The buyer, Builder Walter Reid, built on adjoining lots, and his houses met with a ready sale. He has commenced work on another row.

EXCHANGES.

Here follow the most important trades which were completed. It will be noticed that many vacant lots on the west side are included.

BUILDING LOAN OPERATORS AND LOTS.

During the month of January the leading operators took title to 48½ lots for an expressed consideration of $504,675, and sold fifty lots for a total of $595,250. Some of the lots purchased have not yet been resold, the excess in sales over purchases being accounted for by the sale of lots previously acquired.

SPECULATORS' EQUITY.

The following figures are taken from the actual dealings of one firm as shown by the filings for January. Nine parcels were bought for a total of $275,000, on which there are mortgages aggregating $197,500, showing an equity of $77,500, or less than one-third of the purchase price. The same firm sold four parcels for $184,250, on which there are mortgages for $110,922.

BEYOND THE HARLEM.

Here is part of a purchase made by Brewer Eichler:

Southern Boulevard (late 133d st), s s, 250 e Willis av, 6 lots.
132d st, n s, 250 e Willis av, 6 lots.
132d st, n s, 475 e Willis av, 5 lots.
John Eichler. $62,000

BIG MORTGAGES—PURCHASE MONEY AND OTHERWISE.

Many large mortgages were placed during January, as the list which follows testifies. A noticeable feature is the large purchase money mortgages taken by the Equitable Life. Here are two:

Fifty-eighth street, Nos. 315 to 319 West, 104.6x100.5, three five-story flats, sold to Thos. J. Smith at $170,000, and mortgages taken back aggregating $155,000, or over 90 per cent. of selling prices.

West End avenue, east side, 69th and 70th streets, fourteen lots, sold to James Kearney for about $118,000, and mortgages taken back aggregating $113,000. In both instances the mortgages are at 5 per cent. interest.

The Poughkeepsie Savings Bank made a loan at 4 per cent. on a West 70th street house, and another at 4½ per cent. on ten avenue flats between 87th and 88th streets. The latter loan aggregated $55,000. The estate of Moses Taylor loaned $100,000 at 5 per cent. on seventeen lots on the Boulevard, West End avenue, 85th and 86th streets, which were traded at $200,000.

The Lenox Library made a loan of $170,000 at 4½ per cent. on four houses on the northwest corner of 71st street and Madison avenue.

Henry A. Barling et al. trustees Ed. M. Robinson, loaned $40,000 at 4 per cent. on the church, southeast corner 86th street and Park avenue, 107.9x102.2.

Jose V. Onativia, of Cooperstown, N. Y., loaned $20,000 on an Essex street tenement, at 5 per cent.

Chamberlain Richard Croker loaned $50,000 at 4½ per cent., on two new West End avenue houses.

The Equitable Life loaned $510,500 to Dore Lyon, on eighteen new houses, and a flat on the Boulevard, West End avenue and 76th street. Part of the time interest will be at the rate of 6 per cent. and later at 5 per cent.

Warren B. Smith, of Yonkers, N. Y., advanced $60,000 at 5 per cent., on a dwelling on the north side of 67th street, 50 feet west of Madison avenue, 22x100.5.

The United States Trust Company loaned $125,000 at 4½ per cent. interest, to Rutherford Stuyvesant, on a plot 167.6x100, on the southeast corner of 3d avenue and 14th street. The same company loaned $80,000 at 4 per cent. on a Cedar street property.

A loan of $300,000 was made by the Washington Life Insurance Company on the Harlem Opera House, on 125th and 126th streets, covering three lots, each 25x109.10 on the former, and six lots, each 25x90 on the latter street. Another loan of $200,000 was made by the same company on three lots adjoining the Opera House on 125th street, with improvements thereon. Still another loan by the Washington Life was for $70,000 at 5 per cent., on a plot corner of Bleecker and Mott streets, which was sold last October for $100,000.

The Mutual Life loaned the Progress Club $350,000 at 5 per cent., on the new club house corner of 5th avenue and 63d street. The mortgage is dated October 28, 1889, but was not recorded until January.

New Buildings.

The filings during the month of January make an excellent showing. Plans for 228 buildings, to be erected at an estimated cost of $5,473,700, were filed, against 243 buildings and $4,070,340, the figures for the same month of last year. From this it will be seen that although the plans for January, 1890, call for a few less buildings, the estimated cost is over 25 per cent. greater than during January, 1889. The reason for this is shown by the list of costly buildings planned, which follow. This list discloses the fact that 30, or a little over one-eighth, of the total of 228 buildings will cost $2,490,000, or nearly one-half of the total estimated expenditure. The tables show that in the district south of 14th street more buildings were planned entailing a greater outlay this year than last. This is also true of the east side, between 59th and 125th streets, and the wards beyond the Harlem. Between 14th and 59th streets; 59th and 125th streets, west of 8th avenue; north of 125th street, and between 110th and 125th streets, 5th and 8th avenues, fewer buildings were called for in the plans filed. In the first-mentioned of these districts the amount involved in the plans is larger this year than last, but in the case of the others this is not so.

Concerning the number of flats, tenements and private dwellings the tables show the apartment buildings were more numerous than the dwellings, as 99 of the former are to be built at a cost of $2,362,000, compared with 69 of the latter, to cost $787,950. Last year the apartment buildings numbered 111, against 88 private dwellings, so that it will be seen the decrease in dwelling houses is greater than in flats and tenements.

The west side is far ahead of the east side as to the number of private dwellings, but on the east side more apartment buildings will be built than on the west side. Every one of the 22 flats and tenements to be erected on the west side will be put up by builders or others engaged in the building trades, and only 4 of the 39 flats and tenements on the east side will be put up by persons who are not so engaged. From these last figures it is very evident that most of the work is being done on speculation, and very little for investment. As to private dwellings, the 8 planned for the east side will be erected by builders, while 10 of the 20 to go up on the west side will be owned by a rich speculator and building loan operator, and the other 10 by builders. Here are the figures:

The Eight-Hour Day.

SHALL IT BE ADOPTED—TALKS WITH MASTERS AND MEN—THE LABOR ORGANIZATIONS TO DECIDE UPON THE ISSUE THIS MONTH.

The importance of the proposition to reduce the hours of labor to a uniform maximum of eight hours per diem all over the country was recognized at last week's National Convention of Builders at St. Paul, when it was made the paramount question of discussion, The eight-hour day is not only being agitated by the labor organizations of New York, but in other cities of the Union, and evidence is not wanting that a strong effort will be made this summer in New York, at least, toward the accomplishment of this object.

It becomes a question, then, whether the employers shall voluntarily make the concession of one and two hours to the men; and if so, whether the latter are prepared to accept a wage proportionate to their hours of labor, or whether they propose to contend for a reduction of hours with the same pay.

In the latter event, it may be asked, who will be the loser by the change. Will it be the employer who contracts to build for the owner, the owner who builds to obtain a return on his money, the capitalist who comes along and purchases the property from the builder, or the rent-payer who contributes to the income of the owner?

Again, will production be reduced consequent upon the fewer hours of labor, or will additional labor be necessary, and thus even up, as it were, the loss sustained in production by a general reduction of the hours of labor, or will the employers so increase their facilities, in the matter of machinery and by other mechanical devices, that they will produce as much as formerly in less time. Or will the workman, happy in the possession of an extra hour or two for recreation, etc., work with such a cheerful will as to do in eight hours the work he formerly did in nine hours?

Still another point. What is the workman contending for? Is it a reduction of hours for the sake of reduction merely, or because he really believes he is going to benefit himself, his family and society at large by working less? Is he intelligently alive to the advantages which this extra hour will give him? Will he improve himself mentally; will his general physical and moral well-being be advantaged; will he devote more time to his family; will he squander any the less time and money in waste and frivolity; will he be less seen spending part of his earnings in the beer saloon and in other wasteful means; will he, in a word, gain so much by this extra hour or two that he will fit himself better physically for his daily toil and improve himself better mentally as a member of society? And is he also imbued with the true spirit of unselfishness which must coexist with a desire to give his unemployed brother workmen employment by means of the reduced hours of labor? For it seems to be generally conceded that with an eight-hour law in force more labor will be necessary and demanded. These are some of the questions that present themselves.

CONTRACTORS INTERVIEWED.

Turning, however, from an abstract consideration of the question, let us see what is said by those who are about to be engaged in the struggle for the eight-hour day. The New York delegates and other representatives of the masters who recently attended the St. Paul convention, employ, in busy times, thousands of men, and it may be interesting to know what some of those gentlemen have to say on this question:

Only a few of the New York delegates who attended the National Convention of Builders have returned from the West. John J. Roberts was seen a few hours after his return to New York, and in a conversation on the eight-hour day question said: "The statement that men are now doing as much work in nine hours as they used to do in ten is all humbug, and the same holds good for eight hours as compared with nine. No matter how cheerfully the men might work during eight hours they could not crowd in as much work as they ordinarily would in a nine-hour day."

"Then reduced hours, in your opinion, involves the employment of more men?" said the reporter.

"Undoubtedly so," was the reply.

"Cannot the employers make up for the loss of one hour by improved machinery? This was done in Massachusetts in the textile trade. The hours of labor were reduced, but the capacity of the machinery was increased, so that the unemployed workers obtained no advantage from the reduction in time."

"If machinery can be produced to increase the output it will be introduced anyway, whether the nine-hour or the eight-hour day exists. Therefore, I regard this as a very weak proposition," said Mr. Roberts.

"What proportion of the men are out of employment in winter generally," asked the reporter.

"Well, I should think about 40 per cent of the men who do outside work are out of employment now. At other times there are not enough men to be had. At such times some men who can get work prefer to "loaf." Don't misunderstand me. There are a number of men who will only work when they can't help themselves—when they are forced to, so as to live; but the majority of all mechanics are honest men, and must not be classed with the minority I refer to. Therefore, I will do anything to help them along, even if some of the "bums" get the advantage."

"Are you not of the same opinion as John J. Tucker, that it is time to stop fighting against the workmen in favor of the capitalists?"

"Yes," was the reply. "We have been fighting for the owners. Do they thank us? Not a cent's worth. It is only an odd case where they will stand by us. Some of the contractors have come up to me, in a strike, and said, 'If you don't proceed, we'll go ahead ourselves. We are under heavy penalties to complete the work, and we can't stand any delay. If the eight-hour law is adopted, we should have notice of it some time ahead, so that we will not lose on our outstanding contracts."

Ed. Franke, builder and contractor, who is one of the arbitrators between the masters and men, said: "When I was a young man I worked from five in the morning till seven at night. When you work, eat and sleep without any chance for recreation, I know how it wears you out. I remember how tired I used to feel all the time, and I see how a man working less time can do more work. But when it gets to ten hours and less this does not hold good. I am in favor of the eight-hour day, which is quite enough, provided a man does his work honestly, which, I think, most of the men do."

"What proportion of the total cost of a building does labor represent, say in tenements, flats and private houses?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I am not prepared to speak with accuracy," said Mr. Franke, "but I should say, offhand, that between 30 and 40 per cent. of the cost of a tenement is paid for labor; between 30 and 35 per cent. of the cost of flats, but not so much on outside work; and from 20 to 25 per cent. of the cost of private houses. I am speaking rather of the cost of outside work, I cannot speak for inside work. Therefore, the cost of a house would be increased in proportion as the hours of labor would be reduced, for there would be an extra man required for every eight men. That is, where eight men are now employed, nine men would be necessary, for eight men at nine hours a day can do seventy-two hours work, while it will take nine men eight hours a day to do seventy-two hours work."

"How long a notice do you think contractors should have before the general adoption of the eight-hour day?"

"At least nine months or a year," said Mr. Franke. "This would save the 'bosses' from losing money on contracts which they have made and are now carrying out on the nine-hour day basis."

"What effect will the reduced hours have, if adopted in New York and not in neighboring cities, upon the manufacturers and workmen here?"

"Well," said Mr. Franke, "I don't know, but I believe it will be very harmful. The Produce Exchange was largely built with material outside of New York and by outside men, and this is the case with most of our large office buildings on Broadway, and with other buildings all over the city. Newark, Boston and other cities are our great competitors. Instead of being manufactured by local workmen and firms having their plant and factories here, this is largely done by outside firms, and outside workmen. The goods are then shipped on here, and the only benefit the New York workman gets out of it is the pay he gets for placing these outside manufactured goods in position in the different parts of a building. Now it stands to reason that if other cities have a nine-hour day, with less pay, as against our eight, not only our manufacturers, but our workmen, are going to suffer from the competition. This is especially so in carpentry and other inside work."

Samuel I. Acken, builder, President of the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, said: "I am in favor of the eight-hour day, provided we know of it six months or a year ahead, so that we won't lose by the reduced hours on our present contracts. The men don't state whether they intend to fight for the same pay on reduced time. Later on, after the mason builders arbitrate with them in May, we shall know whether the reduction will take place and on what basis of pay. What the result upon building operations in future will be I don't know. Men will build, any way, provided they can see a profit in it."

Daniel Herbert, of D. & E. Herbert, one of the oldest builders in the city, and a member of the Mason Builders' Arbitration Committee, said: "I am in favor of the eight-hour day, provided ample notice is given of the change, so that we will not lose on our outstanding contracts."

Marc Eidlitz preferred, now that he has practically severed his connection actively with building, not to speak on the question. He was seen at the Germania Bank, of which he is president. He was emphatic on the point as to whether the workmen would be likely to crowd almost as much work in eight hours as they now do in nine hours. "How can a man do as much in eight hours as in nine hours," he said, with emphasis.

Another builder, who did not wish his name used, speaking on outside competition, said: "The only way to keep the work in New York City is for the architects to select only local contractors to estimate on their jobs. But that raises this difficulty—will the owners be satisfied to encourage local factories and local labor at the expense of their own pockets; and should any architect be rash enough to attempt this, would the owner not be likely to take the job off his hands and give it to some other architect who would be willing to go to the cheapest market, no matter where it was, to suit the owner. A combination between the architects, contractors and workmen would be the strongest combination, even if it were possible, to keep work in the city entirely; but in that case owners would probably employ outside architects and get their manufactured material outside anyway, and probably import their labor. Riot and disorder would follow. The question is full of difficulties, and it seems best to let things run their own course."

AT CLARENDON HALL.

A reporter of THE RECORD AND GUIDE spent a few hours at Clarendon Hall. It was on Monday evening. He had orders to give both sides of the question, so that there should be a "fair field" for the ventilation of views by both masters and men. He tackled a number of journeymen painters present, and talked with them on the eight-hour question. Others dropped in later, and in a short time he found himself in the midst of quite a crowd of men discussing the matter eagerly. The men were all well dressed and neat in appearance. They expressed their views intelligently, unusually so, and the reporter felt that he had run across some of the better class of workmen.

Wm. Mastin, journeyman painter, of No. 229 East 70th street; Michael W. Lawler, journeyman painter, of No. 173 East 75th street; Oscar Johnson, framer, of No. 355 East 89th street; a secretary of one of the unions, and others kept up a desultory conversation with the reporter,

"My good father was a shipbuilder" said Mastin. "He used to work his men from sunrise to sunset, and he lived to see the nine-hour day agitation. We want the reduced hours for recreation. I'm fond of reading and I never get a chance to do any when I'm working. I get home at night, and after eating my supper I feel like going right off to sleep. You get up at 5 o'clock in the morning and have to eat your meals in a hurry and don't get a chance for your food to digest."

"We want to work less so as to get a chance to improve ourselves morally and intellectually," called out a man from behind. The reporter turned sharply, as he was not accustomed to hear such language from a workman. It was getting very interesting.

"We don't get enough sleep. If you get to bed at 10 o'clock, you can't get more than seven hours' sleep," continued Mastin.

"You don't give us what science says we ought to have," came from another.

"No, the health laws say a man ought to have eight hours' sleep." This from W. Cokefair, painter, of No. 220 West 128th street.

"That's it" said Mastin, "we believe in eight hours for rest, eight for work and eight as you may;" by the latter expression evidently meaning recreation, etc.

"Well," interrupted the reporter, if you are going to get reduced hours, who is going to lose by it?"

"The bosses ain't goin' to lose," cried out one voice.

"The man that puts up the money to build," said another.

"No," said Mastin, with emphasis; "we pay for it. If we paid no rent, where would the man who owns the building be?"

"Then you are prepared to pay higher rent, should the eight-hour day result in an increase of rent through the increased cost of building," put in the reporter.

"Well, I am only speaking for myself," said Mastin. "I would." The other men were silent, but whether it was because they did not grasp the point or because they were not ready to meet the question with an affirmative, the reporter had no opportunity to ascertain.

"Are you willing to accept less wages for less work? Or do you want nine hours' wages for eight hours' work?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I am only speaking for myself," repeated Mastin. "I'd be willing to take $3.12 instead of $3.50 a day and work eight hours. But I don't know how the others would feel about it."

"Has your society voted on this question yet?" asked the scribe.

"No, but we're going to, this month some time. There are different opinions on that point," said another workman present.

"How many months in the year do you get steady work?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I guess I have had eight months' work in the last year," said Mastin.

"Many of us only get six or seven," said one of the painters."

"It's hard work, too," said Cokefair. "I've seen a man work when it was below zero, and his fingers were nearly frozen."

"I've been steady for five years," said Mastin. "I have all I can do to keep my wife and child. I can't save any money, and I don't waste any; but when I was sick one season nearly everything I had went. We can't keep ahead. It would be all right if we could get work all the year round, for we could live first-class on $3.50 a day, but we are idle nearly four months out of the year, and some of us more than that. I am out of work now, and have been for several weeks."

"Yes, and it ain't easy work," said another painter. "We are breathing into our lungs more white lead every day than would kill a man if he took it at a dose. You just try it and see how you'd feel after a day's work."

"And what's it all for?" said another. "Only for a lot of capitalists who don't care a d—— for us."

At one part of the talk the reporter put the question: "Would you be so satisfied with the concession of the eight-hour day that it would cause you to work more cheerfully, and so get in nearly as much work in eight hours as you do now in nine?" The reporter watched the replies closely. One man said definitely: "No." Another said: "I guess not." A third said: "If you do an honest day's work you couldn't." One man—he was the only one—said, impulsively: "Yes, many of us put in as much work now in nine hours as we used to do in ten." But the others present did not seem to agree with him, and there was a chorus of dissent.

At this point the secretary referred to came in. He is a man of unusual intelligence, and wanted the reporter to advocate the contracts for the new Court House building not being given to outside firms. "It takes money out of the city and thereby harms us," he said. "We can't compete with places where the hours are longer and the wages less. Some cities don't allow their public work to be done by outside contractors and workmen, and we ought to adopt the same rule."

Edward Conklin, chairman of Progressive Painters, No. 1, who lives at No. 435 West 28th street, spoke in favor of the eight-hour day. He would not commit himself by saying that his society would favor reduced wages for reduced hours of labor. He thought that there was a great difference of opinion among the men on the subject. He was somewhat reserved in expressing his views, as he holds an official position. He is a man of fine appearance, with hair almost white, and courteous and gentlemanly in demeanor. He says that the organizat'ons will have 20,000 signatures to the following petition by February 12, the time when the estimates are to be sent in. The petition reads as follows:

To the Honorable the Sinking Fund Commission: We the undersigned, tax-payers and voters of the City of New York, do most humbly petition your honorable body as follows: That in the consideration of bids for the erection of the building to be known as the County Court House, on the plot of land bounded by Centre, Elm, White and Franklin streets, none but those presented by resident contractors employing resident workmen be considered.

It may not appear, on the surface, that this petition has anything to do with the eight-hour question, but it is indirectly connected with it. For if New York adopts the eight-hour day and Brooklyn or Newark is working nine and ten hours and at less wages, the Brooklyn or Newark factories and yards and the workmen they employ will continue, as they and other outside places now do, to supply the material for our large office and other buildings. This is where the shoe pinches, and the bosses and men are in the same boat, their interests in this matter being one as against the capitalist who, of course, buys in the cheapest market.

THE VIEWS OF CAPITALISTS.

An effort was made to get at the views of some of the principal owners of estates. The Astor, Clark, Rhinelander and other important estates were called upon, but it was either impossible to get an expression of opinion from any of the members of those estates, or their representatives could not be seen, or they declined to talk upon the subject. A gentleman whose name is known all over the conntry and who is one of the largest property owners in the city, consented to talk with the writer, but declined to have his name used. He said: "I think eight hours is a good day's work for any man. The question will then arise—will the workingmen want as much pay for eight hours' work as they do for nine? Well, that is their business. They know whether they want to work eight hours instead of nine or ten, and they must be the judges as to whether they can get the same remuneration for less work. If this is conceded by the contractors, I, for my part—though I do not know how others may feel—will pay the man who contracts to build for me so much more. I presume that I will have to do that, for the contractor will make his estimates so much higher. It is a question of supply and demand. If the cost is greater and I want to build, I will have to pay so much more. Whether the greater cost would deter me and others from building, and so indirectly hurt the workmen, who have caused this greater cost, is a matter which, I think, neither you nor I can tell anything about, until it is learned by actual experience after the reduced hours of labor have been for some time in force. If you ask me, whether the rentpayer or the capitalist who builds will pay for the increased cost of buildings due to the reduced hours of labor, I should say that it is the former. Let me illustrate this. If I want to put up a building to cost me $10,000, and I want five per cent. on my investment, I will have to obtain a certain rent from the person who will occupy that building. If, however, the cost of the building—through the extra labor required due to reduced hours of labor without an equivalent reduction in wages—is $11,000, in order to get that five per cent. on my investment I will have to get so much more rent from the occupant. So that the loss in the end falls upon the rentpayer and not upon the man who invests his money in the building."

THE HOURS OF WORK IN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES.

Let us now compare the hours of labor in the metropolis with those of other cities in the Union. In New York they are as follows: Nine hours and $3.50 per day for roofers, stairbuilders, carpenters, plasterers and painters. Nine hours and $4.50 per day for masons and plasterers. Eight hours and $4 for brown-stone men. Nine hours and from $2.50 to $3.50 for ironworkers. Nine hours and from $2.50 to $3.75 for laborers. Nine hours is the standard day's work generally.

In other cities the hours of labor are as follows:

Buffalo—9 hours; some carpenters, 10 hours.

Brooklyn—9 hours.

Chicago—About one-third of the carpenters and painters work 8 hours; other trades, 9 and 10 hours.

Cincinnati—Paid by the hour, 9 hours prevailing; except for about one-quarter of the carpenters and those employed in planing mills, who work 10 hours; on Saturdays 8 hours is the rule.

Cleveland—Stone-cutters, 8 hours; bricklayers, stone-masons and plasterers, 9 hours; nearly all others, 10 hours. Stone-cutters and masons paid by the day; carpenters by the hour.

Denver—Stone-masons, bricklayers and plasterers, 8 hours; painters, 9 hours; carpenters, except millmen, 9 hours; iron men and others, 10 hours. All paid by the day.

Detroit—Stone-cutters, 8 hours; millmen, 10 hours; others, 9 hours, and paid by the hour.

East Saginaw—Outside mills, 9 hours; in factories, 10 hours.

Grand Rapids—8 hours, generally, except bricklayers, plasterers and masons, who work 9 hours. All paid by the hour.

Indianapolis—All work 9 hours, except a few stone-cutters; in mills and factories, 10 hours. Paid by the hour generally.

Kansas City—10 hours, except bricklayers, stone-masons and plasterers, who work 10 hours. Partly paid by the day and partly by the hour.

Louisville—10 hours, except bricklayers, who work 9 hours. Payment same as in Kansas City.

Lowell—Carpenters work 10 hours during nine months and 9 hours during three months. Brick-masons and stone-cutters work 9 hours and are paid by the hour. In mills 10 hours and paid per diem.

Milwaukee—Bricklayers and stone-masons, 8 hours; carpenters, 8, 9 and 10 hours; some paid by day and some by hour.

Minneapolis—10 hours and paid by the day, except bricklayers and painters who work 9 hours and are paid per hour; plumbers, 9 hours.

Omaha—Stone-masons, plumbers and stone-cutters, 9; bricklayers, 9, and 8 on Saturday; plasterers, 8; carpenters, some 9 and some 10; millmen, 10; mostly paid per hour.

Philadelphia—Nearly all 9 hours and paid partly per diem and partly per hour; millmen, 10 hours.

Portland, Me.—10 hours, all but plasterers who work 9.

Pittsburg—Stone-cutters, bricklayers, carpenters and painters, 9, and on Saturday, 8; paid by the hour; others 9 and paid by the day.

Rochester—Masons, plasterers and stone-cutters, 9 hours and paid per hour carpenters, 9; millmen, 10; plumbers, 9 and paid per hour; painters, 9; others, 10.

Sioux City—All 10 hours; Saturday, 9. In winter, 9 hours, all; paid by the day

Syracuse—Plasterers, stone-masons and stone-cutters, 9 hours; carpenters, etc., 10 hours; all paid per hour.

To Change Their Names.

COLUMBUS AND HOLLAND AVENUES.

[COMMUNICATED.]

A movement is on foot to change the names of part of two important west side thoroughfares. It is proposed to have 9th avenue, from the crossing of the Boulevard at 64th street up to 110th street, named "Columbus avenue," and that portion of 10th avenue from the crossing of the Boulevard at 70th street and its northerly termination at Fort George avenue to "Holland avenue." The former name has been proposed by Frank R. Houghton, and the latter by John Harsen Rhoades. A petition has been drawn up by Mr. Houghton, in conjunction with John D. Crimmins, which it is intended to present to the Board of Aldermen at their meeting on Tuesday, the 18th inst., and the question will also be presented for consideration before the Legislative Committee of the Real Estate Exchange on Tuesday next, the 11th inst. The proposed names are considered peculiarly appropriate, the one honoring the discoverer of America, and coming apropos of the quadricentenary of that discovery; the other paying homage to the sturdy nation that governed the country prior to the British occupation, and whose descendants are numbered largely among the present owners of property on the west side, as well as other parts of the city, and who are represented in the old Knickerbocker families. The following is a copy of the petition, which puts its own case very ably:

"To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen:

We, the undersigned tenants, storekeepers, residents and property holders in that section of our city lying west of Central Park, respectfully petition your Honorable Body to change the name of that part of Ninth avenue being between the crossing of the Boulevard at 64th street and 110th street to

and to change the name of that part of Tenth Avenue lying between the crossing of the Boulevard at 70th street and the northerly termination thereof at Fort George Avenue to

for the following reasons: The west end section has been a favored residential location and is distinctive from the lower end of the city through which the numbered avenues run.

Riverside Park is its western boundary while Central Park and Morningside Park are its eastern boundaries.

Ninth and Tenth avenues are the only avenues there whose names have not already been changed, for instance:

Eighth is now known as Central Park West.

Broadway is now known as the Boulevard.

Eleventh avenue is now known as West End avenue.

Riverside avenue has always been so named.

Going further north, we have Convent avenue, Morningside avenue, Manhattan avenue, Hamilton avenue, St. Nicholas avenue, Fort George avenue, and, by a very recent ordinance of your honorable body, Sixth avenue has been changed to Lenox avenue.

Every one will acknowledge that all these changes have had a very beneficial effect.

Ninth and Tenth avenues are being built up with the most costly buildings and apartment houses of any avenues in this city.

Ninth avenue faces Manhattan square for four blocks and practically ends at 110th street, where the World's Fair site begins; Columbus avenue might be considered, under the circumstances, a strikingly appropriate name.

Along the line of Tenth avenue there are many new churches and important buildings projected. The avenue ends at the grand Fort George bluff, only a short distance above the new Washington Bridge. In view of the many historical associations connected with this part of our city it is thought that "Holland avenue" would be a most desirable name.

Nearly all of the side streets west of Central Park are occupied exclusively by private residences. The importance of a change in the naming of these avenues is deeply appreciated by all of our citizens who have given the matter any consideration. It is indeed next in importance to the question of additional rapid transit.

To the builders who are creating a modern, attractive and economical dwelling place, the present designation of the avenues they find to be frequently an objection on the part of the house-seeker. Were the change of names adopted it would give an additional impetus to builders, and thus furnish work for a great many laboring men. It would also largely increase the taxable valuation of property up town, and thus lessen the taxes down town. Many persons now living down town would like to own their own little home in the newer up town section, were they able to live between Columbus and Holland avenues.

An additional reason for the change of names is the new system of numbering adopted by your honorable body on all the streets between 59th and 110th streets, whereby No. 1 west commences at Central Park West or Eighth avenue, which is entirely different from the down town method.

We confidently rely upon the fact that your honorable body will recognize that whatever goes to help one portion of the city must help the whole."

It is expected that the proposed change of names will call the further attention of the general public to the west side. Numerous signatures have already been obtained, among them being not only some of the principal property-owners on the west side, but also many residents and storekeepers, the project meeting with favor from all classes in that section of the city. Copies of the petition will be found at the offices of Walter Lawrence, 9th avenue and 104th street; F. R. Houghton, 72d street and 9th avenue; Martin & Dreyer, 9th avenue, near 93d street, and F. L. Fisher, 9th avenue and 81st street, where the signatures of west side residents and property-owners is invited. ARGUS.

Bills at Albany.

ALBANY, February 5, 1890.

A bill of considerable importance perhaps to New York City was taken up in the Assembly, introduced and boomed by Mr. Connelly, to reorganize the State Board of Assessors and to appoint two additional assessors. This bill has been reported favorably by the Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Connelly made an able argument for the bill and will stand by it to the last and hopes to pass it, but it won't pass.

Mr. Acker introduced a bill which applies to the whole State, and will undoubtedly pass, to prevent the insuring the lives of children under ten years of age.

The 5 Per Cent. Interest bill is causing much discussion in private circles.

Mr. Rice from Ulster introduced a bill to-day making it a misdemeanor to sell tickets for travel on railroads or steamboats, unless the seller is duly authorized by the company. This is a big drive at the scalpers.

By Assemblyman Burns, a bill to locate the Fair in Van Courtlandt Park, and for the issuance of bonds by the city to the amount of $10,000,000.

By Mr. Huson, repealing section 4 of title 2 of chapter 13 of part of the revised statutes, so as to tax real estate in the town in which it actually lies when a piece lies in two townships, rather than taxing it in the township in which the owner's house stands.

By Mr. Gardinier, to revise the entire school law of Hudson and reorganize the Board of Education.

By Mr. Deyo, repealing section 1 of chapter 380 of the laws of 1889, which regulates wages paid and laborers employed on public works.

By Mr. Pearsall, including as taxable property motgages, judgments and other evidences of debt.

By Mr. Gretsinger, Senator Worth's bill of last year for an East River bridge.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

The above committee held its second meeting this season on Tuesday, George De Forest Barton in the chair. There was a good attendance.

The Committee on Rapid Transit reported progress. On motion two more members were added, making seven in all, the new members selected being George S. Lespinasse and Abraham Disbecker.

Various sub-committees were appointed, but as several of the appointees have notified the president that they cannot serve owing to their inability to devote the proper time to the work, the committees will require some recasting. It is felt to be eminently desirable that those who accept positions on committees shall do the work involved or decline to serve.

Secretary Fromme moved that chap. 410 of the Laws of 1882 be amended by substituting the word "citizen" for "taxpayer" wherever the latter occurs in the act. The result would be that lawyers and other representatives of taxpayers will receive due consideration at the hands of the public departments instead of the necessity of taxpayers putting in a personal appearance at these departments on matters pertaining to their interests.

On the reading of bills from Albany Assembly Bill 220 was referred to the Committee on Taxation and Assessment. It proposes to tax personal property, and is similar to the Larmon Bill of last session.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors, held on Tuesday, the following gentlemen were elected members of the Exchange: F. W. Reimler, William Macalister, Leopold Hess, Isaac Blumberg, J. H. Coster, George W. Coster, Albert Everitt and Jacob Leuly.

WANTED in a long-established and prominent Real Estate office (downtown) a competent salesman. Address, stating terms, A. B. C., office of the RECORD AND GUIDE, 191 Broadway.—[Advt.

Real Estate Department.

Business has been more active this week, both on 'Change and in the brokers' offices, than for some time past. It is true the increase in the Salesroom was not very great, but nevertheless sales were more numerous and the posters about the stands in the Auction room indicate a fairly active market for the next few weeks.

Among the brokers the improvement has been more marked, and everywhere the reports are more encouraging, particularly south of 59th street, where the inquiry is large and the demand for desirable properties very strong. The operations of some of the speculators, especially those who confine their dealings to parcels south of 59th street, have been exceedingly profitable, and we know of operators who have been buying and selling out within the same week, at figures showing profits of from 10 to 33 per cent. The speculators we have in mind are very active and are well known in most of the offices down town.

The erection of the new railroad depot at the foot of Liberty street, and the granting of privileges to erect bridges across West street has led some shrewd speculators to go in and buy thereabouts. It is difficult to say whether the purchases were made at low figures, but judging from some of the mortgages placed on the parcels purchased it must be said they are now held by persons who have great ideas of present and prospective values.

It will be noticed that there is quite a movement in lots, particularly on the west side.

On Tuesday, February 11th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the two four-story, high stoop, brick and brown stone dwellings on lots 19.6 and 20x100, Nos. 44 and 46 West 97th street, the two-story and attic brick and frame building, 20x34.4x61, No. 28 Grand street, and the four-story and basement brick building, No. 17 High street, between Fulton and Washington streets, Brooklyn.

On Wednesday, February 12th, John F. B. Smyth will sell a plot of ground at the southwest corner of 6th avenue and 11th street. The plot has a frontage of 9.6 on 6th avenue x166.7x50.6x140.6x56.10½ feet on 11th street. On it there are a number of improvements, viz.: five three-story brick dwellings, an office building and a dwelling house used for business purposes. Seventy-five per cent. of the purchase money can remain on bond and mortgage at 5 per cent, payable on or before three years.

On Thursday, February 13th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell a farm of little over ninety-two acres, situated at Kingsland, Bergen County, N. J. The property is recommended as a dairy or truck farm. There is a new house on the property, a stable, a cow-shed and a chicken house.

On Friday, February 14th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell under foreclosure the four-story and basement, high stoop, brick and brown stone dwelling, 20x62x102.2, with a two-story brick extention, No. 126 West 82d street. This dwelling contains all the modern improvements.

The posters are out announcing the sale on February 20, by A. H. Muller & Son, of the estate of the late Stephen B. Wray, by order of the Supreme Court. This is decidedly the most important sale yet announced. Improved property on Reade, Chambers, Washington, Harrison, Jane, West, 14th, 18th, 21st and 23d streets, and 8th and 9th avenues, and twenty-eight lots on 119th, 133d, 134th, 157th and 158th streets are embraced in the catalogue of sale.

Sealed proposals will be received at the Hall of the Board of Education No. 146 Grand street, by the school trustees for the 23d Ward, until 11 o'clock A. Plans and specifications may be seen, and blank proposals obtained at the office of the Superintendent of School Buildings, No. 146 Grand street, third floor.

In the matter of the application of the Board of Street Opening and Improvement to acquire title to that part of Bristow street (not yet named by proper authority) between Stebbins avenue and Boston road, 23d Ward, the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment give notice to owners and others affected thereby, that they have completed their estimate and assessment, and that all persons having objections thereto shall present them in writing at their office, No. 200 Broadway, on or before March 19, 1890, and that they will hear objections for ten days subsequent to that date at such office. MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages v., VIII., IX. and X.]

BRICKS.—Although the market for Common Hards has made no further radical improvement, and $7.25 per M remains as about the best figure that can consistently be quoted by cargo, the tone is of a strengthening character and expressions over the situation are generally of a cheerful character. The best Jerseys have sold up to $7 per M, and other grades are creeping up to satisfy a call from buyers who are compelled to figure very closely on cost, and when fancies get too high for them sacrifice a little on quality in order to save the difference in price. About the only indications of a complaining mood we noticed was in regard to quantity, some of the receivers feeling confident they could have placed a larger amount of stock had it been available, the offering at two or three periods during the week proving quite moderate. This was in part attributed to the fact that many of the barges had been more or less detained in unloading, though it is known that some of the manufacturers are not over anxious to hurry themselves about shipping at the moment, in view of the impression that in the natural course of events values should work upward, and if any extra flurry of demand comes it may bring a better line of values. The river, of course, remains open, and so long as it remains in that condition supplies may be expected to come forward to a greater or less extent; but mild weather will also keep building operations going, and in all probability furnish a neutralizing demand. We understand that one cargo of stock has come in from Long Island, and that there is a probability of receipts from Staten Island before long. The demand for Pale is fair and the market steady, with $3.50 the average rate, though 25c. more has been obtained exceptionally.

LATH.—The market remains firm and reports generally retain a cheerful tone as a natural sequence of the advantage being upon the side of sellers. No great amount of animation has been shown in Eastern stock because there was nothing available to negotiate upon, and receivers who control the cargoes afloat are generally understood to be unwilling to name a rate at the moment, believing the chances good for a fuller figure later on, and the latest actual transaction we know of was at $2.50 per M. That rate, however, has, as anticipated, proven an attraction to ship stock from the interior, and in direct indorsement of suggestions made in our last, we learn that a deal has been consummated embracing some ten car loads, equal to about 300,000, of Canada pine lath for prompt shipment from Deseronto to Brooklyn dealers at $2.50 per M., and that in the neighborhood of 1,700,000 more are available if custom can be found.

LIME.—With no change in price there is little of interest to suggest regarding the general character of the market. Demand is good enough to exhaust all the coastwise arrivals as well as considerable State stock and receivers seem to have nothing to complain of. We find some of the trade a little skeptical about the breaking up of the manufacturers' combination this year on the belief that such course would be suicidal, but others who claim to be posted say the disintregation is sure.

GLASS.—While local business is not of a liberal character it shows up fairly for the season and is steadily increasing for a regular size of cylinder, both domestic and imported. Advices from the dependent points also indicate generally good prospects ahead, and this coupled with the recent movements of producers and importers has stimulated values. The action of the combinations of American manufacturers has been followed by a similar deal among importers, and rates are now firm at 80 per cent. discount on domestic, and 75 per cent. on foreign. Plate glass is doing well and ruling firm in tone for all grades. On Wednesday last the members of the American Window-Glass Importers' Association, including representatives of every glass importing firm in the country, met at the Massasoit House, Springfield, Mass., and advanced the price of window glass 5 per cent. for the next five days, at the end of which time the new price-list will be issued, and there will be an advance of 10 per cent.

LUMBER.—On the distributive outlet the movement of supplies shows a continued measure of irregularity, though probably no more so than common at this season when consumptive opportunities are subject to many vicissitudes, especially in the building line, and buyers are unwilling to invest except as a matter of necessity. With few exceptions, however, retailers appear very well satisfied and reasonably confident regarding the future. Considerable satisfaction seems to be felt among the yard dealers in spruce, for while they have not set a very high margin for profit they are assured against the necessity of selling at a loss under the influence of sharp and unnecessary competition. In a wholesale way the movement does not increase greatly, but there is a demand for many of the leading kinds of stock, and with few exceptions sellers can obtain full rates without much difficulty.

Eastern Spruce retains general elements of strength, and receivers evidently feel that they will be able to retain all at a fair proportion of current advantages until well along toward spring. The almost certainty of a small offering is of itself an assurance of considerable support, and while buyers may not be particularly demonstrative at the moment, there is reason to believe that a notification of really desirable goods available would have the effect to promptly attract custom. A few recent sales of random have demonstrated that full rates can be obtained even on ordinary specifications. Work in the woods has been vigorous, but manufacturers assume to feel indifferent about any supply of logs that may be cut.

Piling has an uncertain market at the moment, and there is an intimation that some of the winter cargo arrivals not on contract were offered pretty low. Holders of the stock in chains, however, reiterate expressions of confidence and appear to feel very sure that as soon as open weather is assured trade will develop in satisfactory form. A recently published paragraph says that the method of coating piles with asphalt to protect them from the ravages of the teredo, which is so destructive to submerged timber on the Pacific coast, is pronounced by Engineer Huson, of the Northern Pacific, to be entirely successful. Piles coated with this substance were driven into boulders without shattering the coating which was the only trouble feared, and its cost is only about 12 cents per lineal foot of each pile. It has been enormously expensive heretofore to keep the wharves in repair on that coast, as the teredo eats the small piles out in less than a year and none remain longer than two, but this new process is pronounced a sure protection.

Hemlock is commented upon in a slightly variable manner, and evidence at times carry an impression of an attempt to bear the market a little. It is not always an easy matter to reconcile the attempts at explanation as some of the statements are tinged with a measure of bitterness, but large and responsible concerns claim a well sustained market for first-class stock, and fair condition of trade for the season.

White Pine retains irregular features without, however, bringing out any really new suggestions. More or less canvassing takes place by transient drummers, and this does not appear to be productive of much business; but resident agents pick up a fair run of orders from customers who have dealt with them before, and there is also a little done in the way of direct call upon interior supplies by dealers who have previously "located" stocks, and can order therefrom by mail in car lots to suit the wants of the moment. Distribution holds about the same relative proportion to other woods that it has for some time past, and on the general range values keep about steady.

Yellow Pine as usual receives the commendation of most operators, the consumption maintaining a good general average and the association of dealers holding the line of value at margin for profit; while in turn the combination of receivers and manufacturers insures a firm tone on first hand parcels and an absence of pressure of stock. Southern producers are said to be calculating upon an excellent Western trade during the coming season.

Carolina Pine retains a firm and cheerful position, and reports almost without exception have healthy form. In some instances even regular customers are a little slow with orders, but that is attributed to the full stocks taken in earlier, and there is no doubt of a renewal of demand as assortments commence to run down. It is understood the productive capacity will be increased during the season.

Hardwoods although a little irregular are on the whole doing fairly well, and some of the trade speak very hopeful of affairs. Quartered oak, as predicted, holds a leading position in favor among local consumers, though there is a good sprinkling of all standard woods going into consumption. We have noticed since the first of the year an inclination to speak more confidently regarding walnut. The export demand has been and continues good, with the foreign trade steadily taking off the best lots, and some shrewd operators seem inclined to look upon this class of wood with greater favor.

The exports of lumber, exclusive of hardwoods, from the port of New York during the month of January were as follows:

	1890. Feet.	1889. Feet.
To West Indies	3,625,000	3,144,000
To South America	1,994,000	3,378,000
To East Indies	1,030,000	148,000
To Europe	28,000	....
Total feet	6,677,000	6,670,000
Previously reported	....	....
Total since Jan. 1	6,677,000	5,670,000

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot undergoes very little change from the general features for some time ruling. The supply appears to be kept well enough in hand to prevent any free or open offering of stock and sellers maintain a position of considerable strength and confidence, but the demand is slow and cautious and small lots of stock satisfy most calls. Quotations are generally placed at 13⅝@14⅛c. for Lake, and 12¾@13c. for casting brands. Manufactured Copper is doing very well, the run of orders from regular sources keeping up to the average and now and then some good calls coming from the outside element and prices remaining firm at full former figures on all grades. We quote as follows: Sheets, not above 30x72 in., 16oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 28c.; do, under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz., 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 36x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz, and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz, 14 to 16 oz, 12 to 14 oz, and 2c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96, 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 27c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 34c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz. and over, and 27@30c. for 16 to 32 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz, 25c.; 14 oz, 27c.; 12 oz, 29c.; and 10 oz, 30c. Bolt copper, ⅜ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 5c. do; circles, 96 do and over, 6c. do. Segment and pattern sheets, 3c. above price of sheets required to cut them from. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottom, 26@29c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig is very uncertain, but the indications are weaker. The advices from abroad indicate a weakening in the speculative feeling, which by some of the trade is considered ominous, and while the offering of actual goods is as yet rather careful the intimations are that concessions would be accepted. Nominally the general range is quoted at $24.00@27.00 per ton according to brand. American Pig has been quite dull on most outlets, and it is now a rare experience to find any measure of anxiety on the part of buyers. Supplies, however, are neither full enough or so situated as to cause any great amount of trouble, and the asking rates remain well up to former figures in pretty much all cases. We quote at $19.50@20.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; 18.50@19.00 for No. 2 X do., and $17.50@18.00 for Gray Forge. Old material has been influenced by the news from abroad, as a considerable amount of stock is held here on foreign account, and there seems to have been something of a desire to realize upon it; indeed, offerings were made at lower figures without finding buyers, leaving matters to some extinct nominal. We quote at about $27.00@28.00 for old rails; $24.00@25.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $19.00@20.00 for cast scrap, and $20.00@21.00 for car wheels. Manufactured Iron finds more continuous sale than the crude material, not only from store, but in the placing of special contracts for future delivery. The call, however, is readily met and sellers expect no more than former rates. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.09@2.05c. from store, and refined at 2.20@2.50c.; Rods, round and square, 2.20@2.25c.; Bands, 2.50@2.55c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@3.05c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. Steel Rails have been somewhat irregular in tone and not very active. Some trading was done at $36 per ton and manufacturers claim to be standing firmly on that basis, but buyers intimate ability to purchase for less and some make the assertion outright. We quote at $35.50@36.00 per ton for standard section at the mills and $37.00 @ 37.50 do. at tide water. LEAD—Domestic pig since our last sold off a fraction but has since become comparatively firm again with a somewhat better business doing. We quote at 3.85@3.90c., as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 4½c.; pipe, 6c.; sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig following our last took quite an upward turn and really had a firm market until the recent advices of weakness abroad came to hand when there was a noticeable reaction in tone and a settling off in value with the close irregular. We quote at about 20.80@20.90c. for round lots, and 21⅛@21¼c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plate is also more or less disturbed by the break in foreign speculative iron values, the result of which is to increase the offering at lower figures without attracting much demand We quote prices as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grades, $6.00@6.05, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ⅛ cross assortment, Allaway grade, $5.15@5.25, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.12½@7.15; M. F. grade, 20x28, $14.50@14.55; Worcester, 14x20, $5.05@5.10; Worcester, 20x28, $10.15@10.25; Deane grade, 14x20, $4.70@4.80; Dean grade, 20x28, $9.50@9.60; D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $4.60@4.65; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $9.30@9.40; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, $4.60@4.65; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.75@4.77½; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $5.05@5.10½ basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $5.15@5.20 basis. Spelter meets with fair average demand and holders about steady on price. We quote at 5.35@5.50c. for common Western, according to brand.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

For the past week or two trade has been undistinguished by anything of a pronounced character. At some of the leading points there has been considerable distribution on account of building operations in the larger cities and towns, which are continued because the weather is mild enough to permit it. Shipments from wholesale points are probably larger than is usual in the winter, but there is little life in this feature of demand. The lack of frost, and the consequent muddy state of country roads, result as an embargo on rural trade to a large extent.

Altogether there will have been a considerable reduction of stocks before the spring trade fairly begins. Added to this prospect is that of a large amount of heavy building in the early spring. Numerous manufacturing plants are to be constructed this year, and these will not only consume an unusual amount of lumber to start with, but it will promote the growth and upbuilding of settlements surrounding these manufactories.

While there is to be an enormous consumption of lumber the present year, mainly in the cities and growing towns, there will be unusual competition in furnishing the necessary lumber. There will not only be the usual amount of white and Norway pine, hemlock and spruce from northern forests, but an unwonted energy is likely to characterize the Southern pine business. Already circulars and price lists are reaching this city, offering to lay down dimensions here at prices very little higher than Norway and white pine are sold for. In respect to long wide stuff, Arkansas pine is offered at the same price named in the association list for northern product. This shows that the southern manufacturers are determined to push their lumber all over the North and sell it in competition with white and Norway pine.

Logging conditions in the larger portion of the white pine regons have been favorable up to the present time, but the weather remains so mild that the promise of a prolonged season is not bright. Still, it is probable that there will be logs enough to keep the mills running.

A few of the dealers are inclined to regret the open winter, which permits of a continuance of building operations in the cities and towns and a considerable winter trade on that account. They say that they would prefer a dull, closely shut up winter, because when spring should open there would be a rush of demand and a lively trade. But that is not clearly good reasoning. Winter distribution breaks up assortments and hardens prices on such sorts as become scare. If the present volume of trade should swell to larger proportions in February, as is almost sure to be the case, it will be found that an advance on some kinds of lumber can be easily secured.

The Mississipi Valley Lumberman as follows:

Logging conditions have continued during the past two weeks quite as good as at any time during this exceptionally good winter. Some complaint is heard of over-much snow, but there has been milder weather, calculated to settle the large amount of snow already on the ground, while not in the least impairing the roads. While the loggers complain, as they are wont to do of something, this something being excess of snow, they nevertheless wear a more cheerful aspect than they have for a good many winters. It is impossible to overlook the fact that for the most part their work has been done under exceedingly propitious circumstances, and that probabilities are all in favor of their accomplishing quite as much as was anticipated. That is to say, that they will go the full limit of their natural capacity. As were said early in the season, throughout Wisconsin and Minnesota the preparations were extensive, and quite as many loggers were sent into the woods as in any preceding year. This, too, in spite of the fact that a great many logs were carried over on most of the principal streams.

The Timberman as follows:

Milder weather prevails now in Wisconsin and it looks as though the usual January thaw had set in. So far the warm spell has been beneficial by settling the accumulated snow and putting the wood in good condition. Some of the more lugubrious ones claim that the prevalence of grippe in the camps will be instrumental in setting the work back. But this is undoubtedly too black a view. If the contractors are losing too much time they can add to the crews, and many are doing so. Extra time will no doubt be put in to make up that lost. In the meantime the logs are rolling into the streams at a remarkable rate.

The stocks of common lumber are rather more full than is comfortable for some parties both in Chicago and elsewhere, but a little patience will bring better rewards than hasty sales.

Prices are kept up pretty firm, and said to be higher than a month ago, yet now and then one hears of cutting. Good lumber and piece stuff holds up about to list price, but the latter has been quoted in some instance at $11 up to 18 foot lengths. Still there are exceptional cases, and the ruling price may be safely given at $11.50.

Trade in timber show a slackening up, although there is still a little doing. Long timbers are in fair supply, but short, heavy timbers and girders up to 20 feet are scarce and the stock likely to be exhausted before spring. With the exception of a few railroad orders now and then, sales now being made are small ones, and it takes a good many to make up a fair aggregate.

Oak is in good growing demand, both local and shipping. There is active shipping demand for all grades and kinds, but especially for quarter-sawed red and white. This lumber is taking the place of cherry and walnut for furnishing and finishing to some extent, and that demand is rapidly growing. Supply is equal to demand, except for dry white. Prices are firm and well sustained.

Some little red gum is shown on the market, but scarcely enough to make it a quotable article. This wood has good qualities, much more than sufficient to offset all its defects and sometime will receive the attention it deserves.

There is a growing demand for cottonwood for use in making butter firkins and lard packages, for which and similar uses this lumber is peculiarly fitted by reason of the entire absence of taint or taste.

A dispatch dated Oshkosh, Wis., Feb. 6th, says:

An old lumberman of this city, who has just returned from the logging camps, says: "Never in my experience as a lumberman have I seen logging operations so retarded at this time of the year. The snow is deep in the woods, but the weather has been most favorable to successful work. In one of the camps out of a crew of sixty men nearly one-half were completely prostrated with the grip. The disease does not seem to have reached the lumber districts until recently, but its ravages are terrible. Being far from medical aid the lumbermen are, of course, denied many of the remedies which are prescribed by physicians, and although everything possible is done for their comfort, their surroundings are such that their sufferings are severer than is the case with persons similarly afflicted in the cities and towns."

ENGLAND.

The London Timber Trades Journal as follows:

American Black Walnut.—There is still a good trade doing in lumber at maintained prices; it is, however, the redened stuff which sells most freely. Many yard-keepers hold by far too heavy a stock of rough boards and accordingly these are not so often asked for.

We hear of frequent inquiries being made for prime logs suitable for cutting into thin board stuff, and shippers, we are quite sure, may safely send over to this market without delay.

American Whitewood.—We believe the wholesale business done in this has not been on quite so extensive a scale as was the case a few weeks back; most consumers hold sufficient stock for the present, and consequently the inactivity now spoken of is not a matter for much surprise.

American Oak.—The trade in this is without any material change. Quartered 9-inch board stuff is selling freely, but narrow flooring, of which so much has been sent over, is now very slow of sale. Logs are rarely asked for.

American Satin Walnut.—The trade doing in this is dull, and transactions are unimportant. We believe, however, that certain buyers who bought heavily some months back are naturally doing their best to force its sale, but except for the commonest descriptions of work, it is not much used, and concerning its standing qualities we have heard many and serious complaints.

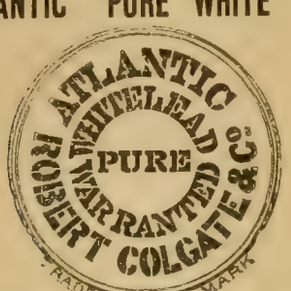
NAILS.—Demand is improving from most quarters and the promises of the general market are considered good, though some buyers claim they must curtail investment on account of full cost of supplies. Some outside offerings continue to turn up occasionally. We quote at $2.10@2.15 per keg for car lots, and $2.15@2.20 per keg for parcels from store.

The production of the nail works in the Eastern division of the United States during 1889 was 2,174,305 kegs of 100 lbs. each, against 2,403,932 do. in 1888, 2,610,588 do. in 1887, and 2,830,965 in 1886, showing a steady falling off, which is attributed to competition from Western mills at points formerly dependent upon the East.



PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business has been rather on the gain, and while not active has volume enough to afford fair satisfaction to most operators. It is claimed that in view of rather more cautious methods than was supposed at the end of last year, jobbers are working on light stocks and must soon replenish even if they take only ordinary assortments. Offerings fair and generally available at steady rates. Linseed oil is kept well in hand and sells at 59@59½c. for Western, and 60@62c. for City. Spirits Turpentine is held with considerable showing of firmness, but supplies are large and buyers stand off in hopes of decline. We quote at 43@44c. per gallon, according to quality, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Demand from most regular sources continues fair, and the market is in seasonably healthy condition. Supplies ample but valued steadily. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.25@2.50, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

VOL. XLV. FEBRUARY 15, 1890. No. 1,144.

The stock market for the week has not been of the bull kind which so many operators have been waiting for; on the contrary, the bears have had much the best of it, and it is evident that there has been not a little selling of long stock by some parties who do not view the immediate future as likely to be favorable to higher prices. London is talking and believing, mistakenly so we think, that this couutry will soon be compelled to export at least six to ten millions of coin, and the directors of the Bank of England believe in the policy of a high bank rate until they attract it. A great many securities have been bought in the London market of late by American houses, and these must be paid for either in gold or commodities. The cotton market is now largely in the hands of speculators, so that no large quantities of this staple is likely to be shipped, and our exports in cattle and provisions are falling off, while imports, owing to higher duties likely to be imposed by Congress, are sure to increase, no matter what the effect may be later on. Money in Berlin, Frankfort and Paris is decidedly easier, and as Russia is sending gold balances to England in considerable quantities, which bankers say will remain for two or three years, it is almost a certainty that money will soon be at normal figures again, and that the Bank of England will shortly reduce its rates, which will have a favorable effect here. This bank is beginning to realize that if the gold standard should be adopted by France and this country that there is not enough of this metal to go around with the present business methods. General business throughout the country has been quiet this week, largely because of the difficulty which farmers have with the bad roads in getting back and forth to market. The indications, however, for a good season continue favorable, and manufacturers of best woolen and cotton goods, with some special exceptions, have had an excellent trade in spring goods.

The present session of Congress will not be very much older before the discussion about the tariff will be in full blast. The Committee on Ways and Means is said to have made great progress since the cessation of public hearings, and by the end of the month a measure similar to the old Senate Tariff bill will be reported to the House. The Democrats, of course, will stick to the Mills bill. Once the matter gets started, we shall undoubtedly have another exhibition of how capable the average Washington "statesman" is to deal wisely and disinterestedly with a subject of grave importance to the nation. It will be treated of course, first and last, as a matter of "politics." We shall be overwhelmed with talk, buncome and hazy political economy, and in the end nothing worth doing will be done, and other needed legislation will be impeded. There is no use looking to Congress just at present for any sane consideration of the tariff problem. It is outside of the Legislature, among the people, that the discussion will bear fruit, and the matter receive serious attention. The sentiment of the manufacturers of the country at present is undoubtedly strongly in favor of the maintenance of the tariff very much as it is, or of the imposition of even higher duties on manufactured goods, whereas there is a growing opinion that something would be gained by extending the free-list by adding to it certain raw materials. That such firms as the American Screw Company, the Corliss Engine Company, the Rhode Island Locomotive Works, the Rhode Island Tool Company, the Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company, should petition for free iron is a fact that, no matter what its value may be, is of some significance.

The Queen's Speech contained the announcement that a bill "facilitating and cheapening the transfer of land will again be presented." Presumably this is the same measure which the Lord High Chancellor fathered last year, and which is designed to put an end to the last vestige of primo-geniture in England. The reform is founded, as all land transfer reforms must be founded, on the admirable system of laws which prevail in Australia and New Zealand. It does away with all the cumbrous mass of rights which have made it difficult for a man to own a clean title to real property. It puts an end to the creation of estates entail; it abolishes tenancy by courtesy and the right of dower, and it invests the personal representatives of a deceased person with the same powers in regard to real estate as they now possess in regard to personal property. In other words, it permits the owning and conveyance of real estate, without regard to the wishes and supposititious rights of other people. Real property has always suffered from the fact that it is the most tangible form of wealth. The claims of relatives and debtors have always been vested in an equity in the real estate of the debtor, no matter whether the debt was financial or family in character. And this, of course, has rendered real property from many points of view an undesirable form of investment, and has certainly had the effect of making rents higher than they need necessarily be. The movement to relieve real estate of these burdens, which was begun in Australia, has spread to England and Canada, and has begun to be discussed in this country. But as yet even many of our best lawyers are totally ignorant, not only of the details, but the general purpose of the Torrens act. The multiplicity of instruments recorded in this county have forced a solution of the difficult problem of indexing them in such a way as to give a permanent and convenient notice thereof to subsequent purchasers. The importance of the question is recognized in England, but very little attention has been given to its solution, because the renewal of the shackles which prevented the landholder from calling his property his own has been and is the first duty of the reformers. The fate of the present bill will be watched with interest.

What a double-headed commentary is the announcement recently made that the Emperor of Germany has dismissed in disgrace from the army, two young officers for their eagerness to make merchandise of themselves and their titles in the matrimonial mart of America. A stinging rebuke to us as a people is the fact that citizens of any civilized country on the globe have come to believe it a matter of fact, that American women with money galore put themselves and their ducats in the hands of an agent in order to secure the great desideratum—a titled spouse. The victims of this sorry joke are surely in a position to appreciate

> How much a fool that's been to Rome
> Excels a fool who stays at home.

Their credulity brought not only its own reward, but also shows how ready foreigners are to believe the most absurd and belittling statements of American social life. We are at once both glad and sorry that the San Francisco scamp has been shown to be a rascally "agent," for it has proved that lovers of a game of chance and money are not all in the United States, and that running after false gods is not distinctively an American pastime.

Two measures have been reported favorably to the Assembly this week which concern the government of New York City, and which, at any rate in the long run, will be to the advantage of citizens. One is Mr. Hoag's bill to put the Dock Department under the control of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and the other Mr. Blumenthal's bill to do away with the Commissions that are now necessary to acquire sites for school houses. To speak of the latter, first: THE RECORD AND GUIDE announced many weeks ago that the introduction of such a bill was in contemplation. It should be passed without delay. Eighteen months' trial of the machinery now in operation for acquiring school sites has shown clearly that even the old methods in force, until the passage of the existing law in 1888, were better in every way than those of the present system. It was expected that the existing law would enable the city to acquire land needed more cheaply and expeditiously than before. But it has not. In fact it has operated in exactly the other way. The Supreme Court Commission process has worked as all commission processes work, viz., slowly. The expense, too, has been considerable, especially in dealing with low-priced sites in the upper wards of the city, and taxpayers have not been protected from the exaction of property-holders, as the awards made last summer abundantly prove. Whether the Board of Education will be able to do any better is questionable. So long as men are morally lax in dealing with their fellow-citizens in a corporate condition there will be delay and excessive awards in obtaining land for municipal purposes. But one piece of machinery may work more economically than two, and by giving the Board of Education full powers the friction that arose last year between the Board and the Commissions will not occur. As to the bill to put the Dock Department under the control of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, it too should be passed. It should be passed more on principle than because the city will obtain immediately any great benefit. The Dock Department has been for years miserably mismanaged under a kind of Barnacle system, in keeping with the ramshackle docks, which are so ludicrously inadequate for the commerce of the first port of the continent. The recent "investigation"—if the term may be used to describe that guarded admission of light into dark places—has put the Department in popular disfavor, so that no one will be inclined to oppose the proposed change of control. But, as we have said, it is on principle that the bill should be passed. Divided authority in municipal management has proved a failure in the government of cities in this country. The Departments should be dependent and not self-governing, and the tendency of events is to increase the authority of Mayors and then to hold them to a stricter responsibility.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Loomis, it seems, has determined to return to the contract system in cleaning the streets. It remains to be seen whether he will be able to succeed with it any better than his predecessor did. Mr. Coleman, before leaving office, expressed an opinion that the system of day's work did not act satisfactorily—a statement to which most New Yorkers will subscribe without hesitation. Nevertheless it must be remembered that Mr. Coleman himself adopted that system; and although in so doing his purpose may have been to give employment to the Tammany rank and file, yet it is entirely obvious that the contract system when used was about as unsatisfactory as the other system has been since then. It is difficult quite to understand the necessity for the change, assuming, of course, that the street cleaning department is determined to sacrifice every personal and political motive for the single object of keeping the streets clean. It is certainly as well able to employ good men as any contractor is. If Commissioner Loomis decides that he cannot do this, it is simply an acknowledgement of weakness on his part. The contract system has been responsible for as much corruption in our city departments and has turned out work about as poor as any conceivable system. If the new Commissioner can succeed with it any better than his predecessor did, he will deserve the more credit.

Some East Side Houses.

Upper Lexington avenue is scarcely the quarter in which one would look for artistic specimens of domestic architecture. It is too far east for fashion, and it is not reasonable to expect that costly houses here can command remunerative rents. Not but that cheap houses may be as artistic and architecturally as interesting as costly houses, barring ornament alone, which merely enhances the effect of good design and does not constitute it. But this is not the view taken by owners, who almost invariably decline to employ skillful architects upon dwellings of any but the first-class. If they did take this view the streets given over to French flats and tenement houses and cheap dwellings would be by no means so dreary as they are.

However that may be, there is a group of houses at the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and 89th street which, in composition and in detail, is a grateful surprise, and would hold its own very easily in the best architectual company on the west side, which is the only quarter we have in which well-designed houses are numerous enough to characterize a neighborhood. The houses we are now considering occupy a plot of about 150 feet on the street by 100 on the avenue and comprise eleven houses, eight on on the street and four on the avenue, counting the corner house twice. They are of moderate dimensions, three stories and a roof story, with a basement in most cases. The material is a dark red brick, with a terra cotta exactly matching it, a light brown stone, black slate for the roofs, and a considerable amount of iron work, also black, in posts and railings.

The architect's aim in such cases is, of course, to secure variety in unity, and to distinguish the houses without dislocating the group, although in the old brown stone quarters variety was abandoned altogether, and in much of the new work on the west side unity is abandoned, with a result even more actively distressing, though perhaps less saddening. In the present instance a certain effect of unity is necessarily obtained by the mere uniformity of material, without reference to the treatment, while of variety there is certainly no lack. The houses are distinguished by the prolongation of the party walls through the roof in all cases, as well as by other devices.

A strong division is made in the longer front, that on the street, since the five easternmost houses are English basements, entered from the street level or nearly so, and the others have high stoops. This arrangement necessarily gives variety, both below and above, and by establishing slight but sufficient differences of level, prevents the continuation of any lines along the whole front. The house at the east end is projected and the two at the west end, leaving the five intermediate fronts in the same plane. The basement houses have in the basements plain segment-headed openings, which in the second story are varied into triplets, a bay and a square-headed mullioned window. In two of the houses the opening in the second story runs through the third, and is there closed by a stilted segmental arch, while in the others the third story has a pair of plain openings.

As has been mentioned, the two houses at the west end are projected. The projection is emphasized by a stout stone column at the angle in the second story, bounding the porch of the house to which it is attached. The projection extends upward but two stories, and above the second becomes a square balcony, with a rather rich terra cotta railing, which is stopped against a hooded and corbelled oriel at the inner angle, while the main wall of the house ends in a crow-stepped gable, pierced with a large arch. At the street corner is a round oriel, not projected but contained within the right angle of the wall, which stops above the principal floor in a rounded balcony, with a solid platform and corbels of stone and an iron railing.

The shorter front, on the avenue, comprises but four house fronts, including the corner house. As the northernmost is narrow, and the frontage is of a hundred feet, the remaining three are unusually wide for houses of this character and have a comfortably spacious look, which might be made commoner than it is in New York but for the unwisdom of our ancestors in imposing the street system of 1807 upon New York and inflicting upon us the nuisance of the deep lot. Next to the tower of the oriel upon this front is another projection like that described before, but smaller, again stopped upon a balcony, this time with a stone balustrade. This arrangement makes an important projected feature of the whole corner, to which the lines of the two sides lead up, and which mainly gives unity to the whole and makes of it an architectural composition and not a huddle of parts that do not constitute a whole. The long interval of wall upon the avenue front is treated uniformly so as to enhance its length. The cornice, a series of little arches, is continuous, while the roof is diversified by the differences in the dormers, of which two have crow-stepped gables and four round pediments in terra cotta. The last house is treated separately with the stilted segmental arch in the third story that has already been described, and a crow-stepped gable.

The detail is highly "eclectic" and academic purity of style is almost conspicuously abandoned. In a general way the style may be called French Renaissance, since more of the detail belongs to that period than to any other. There are, however, Flemish crow-stepped gables and gables with ailerons. There are four distinct forms of cornice, there are hipped dormers and hooded dormers and pedimented dormers. Upon the whole the houses suffer from an excess of variety, since with all these differences of detail there is also manifest an aversion to continuous lines, and the horizontal lines are unreasonably broken. The individualization of the houses, in a word, has been carried too far at the expense of the group. For this reason the shorter front, where a larger field of wall is treated uniformly, is more satisfactory than the longer. It is very hard to hit the just mean in such problems. Nevertheless the features here are nearly all so good, and the detail is so refined and so well adjusted that the houses are very successful architecturally, and form an ornament to a quarter that was much in need of artistic decoration.

Our Letter Bag—Socialism and States' Rights.

Will you grant me a little space again, this time to inquire whether your readers are aware that the Socialism which is becoming so popular, and which THE RECORD AND GUIDE preaches so assiduously, menaces and may ultimately overthrow our State system and centralize practically the entire government of this country in the hands of the Federal authorities? Beyond any doubt it is in that direction that the Socialistic highway upon which this nation is beginning to travel leads.

To take an example: In a very interesting series of interviews published in your paper on the eight-hour day agitation in the building trade the point was made that if the hours of labor were curtailed in this State some steps would have to be taken to exclude the products of other States where the longer day prevailed. If this were not done, it was said, our manufacturers would be placed at a disadvantage even in the local market. Competitors with works in other States would undersell them, and they would be forced either to move out of the State, or to pay lower wages to their men; so that in the end the object of the eight-hour day would be at least in part defeated. It is easy to see, for instance, that a manufacturer of doors in New Jersey paying a certain wage for a nine-hour day would have the best of the "situation" in competing with a New York manufacturer paying as much for only eight hours' work.

Now it is not to be expected that the eight-hour day will be adopted at the same time in every State of the Union, or even in contiguous States or in groups of States. The East much more strongly favors the shorter day than the West does, and in New York the sentiment supporting the eight-hour movement is more pronounced than in New Jersey. As the labor agitators pay very little heed to employers' interests, or even to their own, so far as remote consequences are concerned, there is no doubt that before long the eight-hour day will be established by law in some States, but not in others. What will the employer, put at a disadvantage by competition from other States, do? Undoubtedly, at first, what the cattle raisers in Pennsylvania and other States did in an effort to meet the dressed beef competition of the West, viz., impose, under the disguise of "regulation," "inspection," or something of the sort, a measure of protection. This the courts will not allow, and the next step will be to appeal to Congress for interference, to establish uniform hours of labor. The Interstate Commerce Commission could be used as a precedent to justify any action taken. Indeed, as might have been expected at first, this Interstate Commission is already reaching out and extending its activities into fields beyond the limits originally intended. In addition to regulating rates it is now turning its attention to the mechanical condition of railroads, under the plea of protecting employés from accident and loss of life. The step is a small one at first, as first steps always are. In the third annual report the Commission contents itself with certain recommendation as to brakes, couplings, etc. It is the first step, however, that is of real significance, and all who have studied the growth of social organizations will find good reason for believing that the outcome of the Interstate Commerce Act will be the control of the railroads of this country by the Federal authorities.

In connection with this subject the Blair Education bill deserves to be mentioned. Here we have a Socialistic attempt to interest the Federal Government in the education of the nation. In New York State the first step toward arbitrarily fixing the price of labor has been taken. In Missouri trade combinations are prohibited. In a Southern city the smoking of cigarettes, even by adults, is prohibited. The belief in Socialistic measures for the mitigation of every evil and the alleviation of all suffering is becoming most firmly fixed in the minds of men. While the States act independently, inequalities, some of them intolerable, will be created, and the most natural place for people to seek relief will be the National Government. To the National Government I believe they will turn, and the result will be that State rights will be encroached upon, and will ultimately become a figment. JUSTICE.

Our correspondent's argument, if it be one, suffers from inadequacy of presentation. Like Goethe, we should like "more light" as to the scope of his contention before entering into an argument on the subject. It is undeniably true, as has been pointed out repeatedly in this paper, that the close integration which results from modern industrial methods is working a deep and enduring change in the application of the principle of federation and home rule which lies at the basis of our government. The proportion of social phenomena, which have only a local influence to those whose effect pays no attention to State lines, is undoubtedly increasing. The history of our National government has been a history of the assumption of new functions. The local or State feeling is by no means so strong as it was; and it is an open question whether this is not desirable. But we cannot congratulate "Justice" on his illustrations. If it be true that what he calls Socialistic legislation will tend to create inequalities among the States, the same assertion can be made with equal strength about every subject over which the Legislatures have had jurisdiction. A difference in criminal laws or marriage law among the States will produce exactly the same inequalities, and hamper or aid the citizens of the various States in exactly the same way. The difficulty is inherent in the federative system, but it is generally held that the latter has advantages, which more than counterbalance this defect. If our correspondent is under an impression that he has happened on a new idea in bringing out this notion of "independent irregularities" he is very much mistaken. The irregularities always have existed and always will exist. If New York is injured by an eight-hour law, New York had best repeal it, and undoubtedly would do so. That would be a sufficient remedy for the trouble, and there would be no necessity to call Congress in to legislate on a subject over which the Constitution allows that body no jurisdiction.

The hearing before the Railroad Committees of the Legislature on the two rapid transit bills last Tuesday has left the choice between them very much where it was before. The arguments which Mr. Beekman urged in favor of Mayor Grant's bill can, for the most part, be used equally well in favor of the measure introduced by Senator Fassett, and the latter bill has the additional advantage of naming outright a good commission. Mayor Grant has nobody but himself to blame, if the framers of the bill had too little confidence in him to permit him to name the commission. If his appointments had been made solely on grounds of merit, and if he had not persisted in serving two masters instead of one, it is not likely that any objection would have been made to giving him the power of appointment. The course of the Legislature last session sufficiently well betrayed the fact that no matter what were their motives, the Republican leaders were not willing to put the power in the hands of our Mayor, and the almost universal approval which has been given the Fasset bill, and the high character of the gentlemen who framed it, show that the best public opinion in this city shares this distrust. The fact that Mayor Grant opposes the Fassett bill has also another significance, indicating as it does that he cares more for his personal responsibility for a new system of rapid transit than for the system in itself, irrespective of his own personal connection with it. He retained Mr. Beekman to defend his own bill and to oppose the other bill, when he was perfectly well aware that the latter was as conservative, as equitable, and as comprehensive as the former.

Bills at Albany.

By Mr. Blumenthal—Exempting from taxation the real and personal property of any incorporated library, missionary society, home, hospital, dispensary, or other institution for the free relief of the sick, infirm, indigent, or distressed.

By Senator Cantor—To amend the act creating a railroad commission, and authorizing the commission to order repairs and improvements, and otherwise very fully control the affairs of railroads.

By Senator Saxton—Amending the law under which building, mutual loan, and accumulating associations are organized by adding this section:

"All associations formed, created, or organized under the provisions of this act and doing business wholly in the State of New York shall be deemed institutions for savings, and as such shall not be liable to taxation upon personal property."

By Senator Ahearn—Providing that the contract for the new Criminal Court building on the block next to the Tombs shall only be awarded to a resident of this State.

By Mr. Hoag—To remove the reservoir at 42d street and add the land so obtained to Bryant Park; the cost of the improvement to be assessed on surrounding property.

The following bills have been reported favorably—The Hoag bill to put the Dock Department under the control of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; the Blumenthal bill doing away with the appointment of commissioners to acquire school sites and giving the Board of Education full power to do so.

The Senate Committee on Cities will report favorably the Ahearn bill which repeals the amendment to the Municipal Building Act of last year, provides that the building shall not be erected in the City Hall Park, makes the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund a supervising board, and permits them to put in the building such offices as they may choose.

Men and Things.

Not long since I pointed out that it was significant that with all the talk about the World's Fair, so little was the public occupied with the commemoration of the past, and so much with the glorification of the present, that not a word had been spoken in favor of a monument to Isabella, Queen of Spain, in connection with the Exposition. The sacrifice of her jewels to pay the expenses of the voyage of Columbus throws the shadow of romance about the undertaking, and it ought to play some part in the forthcoming ceremonies, no matter whether the Exposition is held in the breezy West or the more stately East. Consequently I am glad to see that one Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, has introduced a bill into the House for the erection of a monument to the much-neglected Isabella. I do not know whether the monument bears any relation to the World's Fair, or whether it is to be located within its boundaries. That, after all, is a subordinate question. The Exhibition provides a good opportunity of its erection, but just as our gratitude should not be limited to the present generation, so ought the monument be a permanent recognition of the debt we owe to that most gentle and pious soul.

Any one who has been deceived by newspaper talk into the belief that Miss Julia Marlowe is going to take the place vacated, for the time being at all events, by Mary Anderson, should disabuse himself of the idea immediately. Miss Marlowe has a pleasing personality and might well be allowed to proceed on her sportive task of learning how to act, unhampered by a critical blight, were it not for the fact that altogether too much has been claimed for her. She has intelligence, good looks and a good voice; but her elocution and her pronunciation are occasionally very bad, she lacks stage presence, and is at times painfully studied and unnatural. She may improve with experience; but it will be with a great deal of experience.

Readers of the daily papers who depend upon such authority for their opinions are easily led to believe that the standard of excellence to which performances of German opera at the Metropolitan have attained is as patent and permanent as the stature of a man. The high point of excellence to which performances of opera have reached in past seasons may or may not be a mooted question. Certain it is that such of Wagner's operas as have been given this season fall much below the level which lovers of Wagner could desire. Yet if one were to take without "salt" the statements of those who write of them he would certainly have to accept the assertion that "no where else in the world" could such a degree of perfection be found. The statement is manifestly absurd, and proves one of two things—either that those who make them are the subsidized agents of the managers of the opera house, or that they are ignorant of what is going on in the world. It was with no little surprise that I recently heard it stated that the Metropolitan was not a first-class house. The remark had no bearing upon the stage performances given there, but while it is sometimes difficult to say what may be meant by "first class," the remark might, within justice, be made to embrace the caste of several operas heard this season. Is there any excuse for this which does not lie very close to the door of the Metropolitan itself? And may we not ask those who praise so extravagantly to give us something better than fiction. Long ago the fact was demonstrated that Wagner's operas must be acted as well as sung, but to-day this important truth seems to be ignored, and when, as has been repeatedly the case, some of the principal parts were intrusted to those who neither caught nor portrayed the spirit of the drama, and whose vocal ability was unequal to the task set for them, fulsome praise lavished on the tout ensemble borders on the ridiculous. Orchestrally, the rendering of the music is of very high order and leaves nothing to be desired. Here the genius and inspiration of Wagner is both felt and interpreted, but it is lamentably true that the same may not be claimed for the rest. If we are to listen to Wagner's operas, knowing full well the story to be told and regarding stage accessories and the vocal scores as of secondary and trifling importance, then, of course, it would be hypercritical to note the weakness of what must be considered as one instrument. On the other hand, Wagner's works abound in directions for scenic effect, clearly showing that he meant the eye no less than the ear to be the soul's guide in following where he led. He wrote his operas intending that those attempting them should be able to give the vocal portions fit interpretation. But in both particulars we are left by the management of the Metropolitan to long for, rather than to enjoy realization of his purpose. The stage setting of "Tannhauser" was cheap and ordinary, that given to "Götterdämmerung" certainly unworthy of the master-piece. The caste in both operas was most decidedly weak and uneven, save in one or two notable instances, and yet we are told by the morning papers severally and collectively, that "nowhere in the world" could finer performances be given. The absurdity of the statement is its own refutation. Our fear is lest the managers of our opera house should "lay the flattering unction to their souls," and give us other Brunnhilds riding bobtailed horses.

Upper Ninth Avenue.

ITS RAPID ABSORPTION OF VACANT LOTS.

In previous articles THE RECORD AND GUIDE gave a list of the vacant lots on 5th avenue, Central Park West and the Boulevard. The block fronts on each of these thoroughfares was described, with the improvements on them, as well as the lots not improved. To speak of the improvements on 9th avenue five years ago would have been a very easy task, for they were few and far between; but to enumerate them all now would occupy very considerable space, as they cover that avenue for almost the entire distance between 59th and 110th streets. A glance, however, at the lots still unimproved on 9th avenue between those streets will no doubt prove of interest, for it shows how comparatively little property there is left to be built over on that thoroughfare. We give the full list up to date, which is as follows:

Total		201††

NOTE.—108th street, west of 9th avenue, and 109th street, east of 9th avenue, are not yet cut through; 109th street, west of 9th avenue, is now being cut through.

The above table does not include the following unimproved lots: The plot on the northwest corner of 59th street belonging to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, and which adjoins that edifice; the open plaza between 64th and 65th streets, on the east side of 9th avenue; the triangular park between 65th and 66th streets; one lot on the west side of the avenue, 27 feet north of 75th street, which is to be built upon; the four lots on the northwest corner of 92d street, which is the aqueduct property, and the sixteen lots on the two fronts between 107th and 108th streets, which are occupied by the Lion Brewery. The four fronts occupied by Manhattan Park are, of course, also excluded.

The largest number of unimproved lots between each of the elevated road stations are between 59th and 72d streets, there being 57; but more than half of these are between 65th and 69th streets. Between 81st and 93d streets there are 50; between 104th and 116th streets 37, and between 72d and 81st streets 38; while between 93d and 104th streets there are but 19.

A comparison between the vacant lots on 9th avenue, compared with other avenues heretofore dealt with in like manner in these columns, shows the following result:

BETWEEN 59TH AND 110TH STREETS.

	5th av. May, 1889.	Central Park W. May, 1889.	Grand Boulev'd. August.	9th av. Jan., 1890.
Total No. of lots*	408	402	782	755
No. of lots unimproved†	309	306	691	201††

It will thus be seen that while 5th avenue, Central Park West and the Grand Boulevard have each only about 100 lots improved at the present time, 9th avenue has about 554, including those already improved and now being improved, of which over 500 have been covered with modern buildings, most of them having been erected within the past five years. Besides that, 9th avenue, between 59th and 110th streets, is one of the most interesting avenues architecturally north of Central Park. It contains literally scores of different examples of flats, most of them with stores on the first floor, and many of them show excellence and originality in design, both in their exterior and interior. Take the groups of fine six-story apartment houses around 73d street, with those on 81st, 86th and other streets and they will stand comparison, both in their number and character with any business thoroughfare in the city; certainly with any other avenue along which the elevated road runs. The amount of money which the 9th avenue buildings have cost to erect between 59th and 110th streets is estimated at between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000.

* Excluding park fronts. † Including lots containing old frame and brick buildings, etc.

†† Since the above was tabulated, it has transpired that four of the lots on the avenue front on the southeast corner of 82d street are to be improved, as well as four on the southwest corner of 9th avenue and 85th street.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

The usual weekly meeting took place on Tuesday, Wm. C. Orr in the chair. There was a good attendance of members.

The Sub-Committee on Pending Legislation reported adversely to Assembly bill No. 241, which proposes to fix the legal rate of interest in this State at 5 per cent.

The Sub-Committee on Drafting and Amending Laws reported with regard to the proposed amendment to the Consolidation Act, so as to alter the law that proceedings to vacate an assessment might be revived, notwithstanding the death of the petitioner. The committee reported in favor of such an amendment and proposed a short bill to that effect. On motion the report was adopted and a copy of the proposed bill sent to the chairman of the Committee on Codes at the Capitol.

The same committee also reported in favor of altering section 50, chapter 410 of the laws of 1882, so as to substitute the word "citizen" for "taxpayer" wherever the same occurs. It was resolved to have a bill prepared to that effect to send to Albany.

Several Assembly bills were referred to committees. No. 375, which provides for a general system of taxation; No. 386, which provides that the Department of Parks shall lay out and improve public squares within the limits of 4th avenue, 58th and 67th streets; No. 404, which provides that no lands shall be sold by the State Comptroller against which the State has a lien, and if the Comptroller declines on a sale to accept a bid, the land shall be sold and title given as if no such bid had been offered; No. 422, an Act to incorporate the East River Bridge Company, the defect in the bill seeming to be the absence of the locations being named to and from which the bridge shall be constructed; No. 424, which amends Chap. 392 of the Laws of 1883, and is entitled "An Act to further define property that shall be subject to taxation, and it further provides for the assessment of mortgages, judgments and all other evidences of debt. A penalty is also provided for on assessors for undervaluing property; No. 407, which repeals Sec. 2 of Title 4 of Chap. 13 of Part 1 of the Revised Statutes, regulating the places in which property shall be assessed in certain cases when divided by division lines of towns, wards, or counties, and No. 340, which amends the Mechanics' Lien Law.

The Sub-Committee on Taxation and Assessment reported progress on the following bills now pending in the Legislature: Assembly Bill No. 216 (Introductory No. 220), providing for a new system of listing taxable property, which is inquisitorial and largely inoperative in States where such a system has received legislative sanction. The bill should not become law. Assembly Bill No. 384 (Introductory No. 379), which, as it does not appear to affect New York City, cannot now be fully considered by the committee. Assembly Bill No. 381 (Introductory No. 375). The bill should not pass. Senate Bill No. 3 confuses the existing laws as to residence for purposes of personal taxation, thus leading to double or treble taxation of the same security, and provides no means of ascertaining the value of an equity in real property, and is open to other objections. The bill should not pass. Assembly Bill No. 310, strongly recommended; it puts the Department of Docks under the same rules of law regarding appropriations and issue of bonds as the other departments of the city government. The sub-committee concludes the report by recommending the purchase of a copy of the Revised Statutes of this State, which would greatly facilitate committee work. The report is signed by Hy. D. Smith and B. F. Romaine, Jr.

F. R. Houghton asked for the indorsement of the committee to the proposed changes in the names of 9th and 10th avenues, north of their junction with the Boulevard, to Columbus and Holland avenues. On motion this was declined. A member said that the matter was not one for the committee to deal with, though he saw no objection to individual support. Nearly every member of the committee present subsequently signed the petition to the City Council in favor of the change of names.

It was resolved that the future meetings of the Legislative Committee take place at 3:30 P. M. each Tuesday, instead of 3 P. M. as heretofore.

Ten shares of the stock of the Exchange sold on Wednesday at auction to J. Rhinelander Dillon for $1,255. Secretary Fromme bid up to $1,250. This shows an advance of $55 per share since the last sale a few weeks ago.

The Lawyers' Title Company have leased the sub-basement of the Exchange for $900 per annum. A bid was received from the Edison Illuminating Company of $1,800, but the Auction Room Committee considered the risk of fire too great and the damage from vibration a possible annoyance to the tenants and a source of danger to the building, and declined the very tempting offer.

The New Criminal Court Building.

Delay has occurred in awarding the contracts for the New Criminal Court building. A decision was to have been made on Friday morning by the Sinking Fund Commissioners, but a long discussion arose in the Mayor's private office as to the advisability of awarding the contract for a lump sum to one contractor, or of dividing the contract, thereby saving the city $72,300. Apparently no decision was reached, for it was finally announced that no action would be taken until Monday morning, at 11 o'clock, at the Mayor's office.

In a Paint Factory.

INTRODUCING AN ENGLISH INVENTION.

[COMMUNICATED.]

The manufacture of paint has absorbed the attention of many men, and in many countries. Much thought and experiment has been applied to its improvement, but it is a curious fact that until within recent years no attempt has been made on a large scale to introduce paints having those qualities demanded by the changed conditions of the times. There are many qualities which are essential in a paint to make it of such a character. "A consideration of first importance," says an able writer on the subject in the "Encyclopœdia Britannica," "is its 'body,' or covering power; that is, the property of fully covering and concealing with an opaque coating the surface over which it is spread. It is also important that the material should work well in, and be unaffected in appearance and constitution by the medium with which it is made into a paint, and that it should spread in an even, uniform coat, which should dry well and quickly in the air and adhere firmly to the surface to which it is applied. When dry it should possess durability and resist change under the action of weather and other influences to which paint is exposed. These are the principal qualities requisite in paints in their important function of preservative coatings for the surfaces to which they are applied."

But the writer might have gone further and pointed out that the great height of modern buildings necessitates the manufacture and use, very largely, if not indeed entirely, of paint which will be a preventative of fire, from the very fact that it is uninflammable, and that it makes the material to which it is applied impossible of conflagration. It is to be presumed that great heat when applied to a thin coating of paint, or a solution of it on inflammable material, would, under ordinary conditions, burn quickly; in fact, the paint itself is very inflammable. But the question is, where can a paint be found which will not take flame, and thereby prove itself a veritable non-inflammable preservative against, and resistant to, the ravages of the flames?

Such a paint it is which I am about to describe. It was not discovered in America. It is of British invention and is called "Pyrodene Paint." It is a chemical compound which took years of experiment and scientific research to perfect. It possesses the advantage of being a positively permanent paint without the use of turpentine or oil. No doubt such a statement will be in the nature of a surprise to builders, house painters, carpenters and others who have had many years' experience with paints.

The British inventors and manufacturers, Messrs. Griffiths Brothers & Co., of London, have disposed of their interests in the United States to the American Aquol & Pyrodene Paint Co., who have their offices and factory at Nos. 422 to 426 West 15th street, New York City. A representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE called at the factory a few days ago to examine into the merits of the "aquol" and "pyrodene." In a talk with the president of the company, Spencer H. Smith, the latter said: "While I do not wish to say anything in the nature of praise for our paints, I am perfectly willing to state the facts about them and to give you ample proof of every assertion we make in regard to their qualities, for I take it that THE RECORD AND GUIDE would not publish anything about them but what was strictly true.

"To begin with," proceeded Mr. Smith, "our paints have a covering power of from 30 to 40 per cent. in excess of white lead paints."

"Is that not rather an exaggerated statement?" inquired the writer with a doubtful air.

"Not at all. It has been demonstrated over and over again, and we are prepared to have the test made at any time," was the reply. "In addition, our paints are not affected by heat, cold or rain, and they are suited for both inside and outside work. They are manufactured in all colors."

"Have they undergone sufficient tests in England and other countries to warrant the confidence of Americans in their adaptability to our severe climate? I need hardly point out to you that the American climate is much more severe on materials exposed to the air than the English climate," said the writer.

"In reply to that," said Mr. Smith, "I will only repeat to you what Prof. Watson Smith, lecturer on chemical technology in Victoria University, Manchester, said in regard to our paints used in the Royal Jubilee Exhibition in that city. In speaking of the wood, iron and brickwork on which they were used on that structure, he stated that it was applied during a 'most severe frost' and stood 'an exceptionally hot summer,' and that he therefore considered it 'suitable for any climate.' Furthermore, Messrs. S. C. Lowe & Son, contractors for the painting work of that exhibition, wrote as follows: 'Although applied during intense frost and having been subjected to an almost tropical summer, followed by the drenching rains of this autumn, they are as fresh in color and have as firm a grip as when applied and appear quite unaffected by the nine months of exposure. We consider them, therefore, well adapted for all work in any climate.' I merely quote these extracts to prove my statement," said Mr. Smith. "They have also been used in India for four years with success, especially on the railway work in that country. I may also add that the application of our pyrodene paint makes wood or other inflammable materials absolutely uninflammable."

"I would not like to say that in black and white," said the interviewer, "without seeing the experiment tried. If you will prove this before my very eyes I shall not hesitate to publish the fact, for it will be doing a service to the public to let it be known."

Hereupon Mr. Smith produced a small piece of wood about one-fourth of an inch in thickness, which had been painted with pyrodene paint, and held a lighted match to it. It did not burn but merely became charred. The writer was not satisfied with this. He wanted to make a severer test. He lit the gas, held the other end of the wood over the gaslight, and taking out his watch to keep time, held the wood over the flame until his arm became tired. Nearly three minutes had elapsed and the wood did not show the least sign of a flame. It was consumed into a charred mass and cracked off, but no flame appeared.

"Now you will see why I am such a believer in pyrodene," said Mr. Smith, "and you will now understand where its value lies in a building. It will not emit a flame, and that is what will save a building. The flames leap with lighting rapidity where an ordinary paint is applied. Indeed, the ordinary paint is a most dangerously inflammable material, but our paints kill a flame instead of nurturing it. If they had been used in the woodwork of Secretary Tracy's house, the terrible calamity which overtook his family would, I believe, never have occurred, for there would have been no flames to burn up the house so quickly."

The writer was then shown a solution called "Pyrodene Liquid," which is manufactured by the company and which is of a similar nature to the pyrodene paint. Mr. Smith took out a piece of plain muslin, half of which had been dipped in the liquid and the other half of which remained in its manufactured condition.

"Now," said Mr. Smith, "I will light the latter half of the muslin and it will flame up quickly, and when it is consumed to where the muslin has been steeped in the liquid the flame will immediately be snuffed out."

He here applied a match to the piece of muslin. Like a flash the fabric flared up. The writer watched the advancing flames, when suddenly the whole thing went out, leaving only a charred edge showing where the pyrodene liquid commenced. The experiment was an interesting one. The writer, to further test it, held the remaining piece of the muslin over a gas flame. There was a little smoke, but no flame.

"Now you can at once see that curtains and other draperies, dipped in a solution of pyrodene liquid, will not be a dangerous source of conflagration, as they now are in nearly every house in the country," said Mr. Smith. "The liquid does not affect the color or the material in the least and can therefore be used unhesitatingly by mixing the starch with it. One of the large Nottingham lace houses has contracted to have all its lace curtains done up in the pyrodene liquid."

The writer was then taken up, at his own request, to the factory rooms, so as to talk with one or two of the workmen who were applying the paints. He walked up to one of the men and chatted with him about the paints. The man's name is Henry Brothers, and he resides at No. 860 10th avenue He said: "I am a painter and have been for twenty years, all but one month. I have found it difficult to work in a small room with ordinary paint. In hot weather it has made me sick. I don't think any man could work in a close room for six months in turpentine, that is, in flat color, without being knocked out. I wouldn't be able to do two day's work in it at a stretch."

"Could you work with aquol or pyrodene for two days in a close room?"

"Yes, for two years, and it wouldn't do me any harm, I think. Besides that, it takes ordinary paint a day to dry for each coat, but the aquol paint dries in six hours. So that you can get two coats of the aquol on in a day, if you have to rush a job. But I wouldn't advise this, if you want a really good job. You can scrub off ordinary paint, but you can't do this with the aquol."

"I'd like to see you try that," said the writer.

Brothers thereupon got a scrubbing brush and pail of water and started in to scrub a door which had been painted two days before. It was in several colors. After seeing him scrub for two or three minutes the reporter was satisfied that you couldn't easily scrub aquol off wood. He then asked Brothers to try it on a brick wall. He went out and got him to do a few minutes' scrubbing on a newly-painted brick wall, but the aquol stood the scrubbing on the brick as well as it did on the wood. "I'd wear my hand out before I could scrub it out," said Brothers, puffing with the exertion.

The writer, in talking with Brothers, was reminded of the interview in last week's RECORD AND GUIDE on "The Eight-hour Day," in which one Mastin, a painter, said: "We are breathing into our lungs more white lead every day than would kill a man if he took it at a dose." In connection with this statement it will be seen how important, not only from a humanitarian point of view, but from a contractor's standpoint, it is to get a paint which, as Brothers said, enables a man to work in a room in all weathers, without stopping, and without experiencing the deadly effects of the lead in the ordinary paints. It is not an infrequent case for painters to become insensible through breathing the poisonous lead into their lungs. In a treatise on this subject in the Builder, London, H. C. Standage, an English scientific authority, says: "The painter who is frequently using lead paints imbibes solid particles of paint through the pores of the skin, and in time becomes surfeited with an excess of metallic lead in his constitution, so much so that his blood is poisoned, and, unless the poison is arrested in its action in time, he dies of lead-poisoning. Just as surely will these fatal effects follow the constant dabbling with lead paints as if the painter swallowed a dose of the deadly sugar of lead (which chemically is acetate of lead—lead corroded with vinegar). In the latter case of poisoning the effects are rapid, whereas in the former the effects are slow, but nevertheless sure. It may not seem possible to many persons that the solid mass of white lead should be capable of entering the body through the skin, and not through the mouth; but it does so, and in the following manner: Lead pigments, mixed with linseed oil, unite therewith and form a chemical compound—linoleate of lead, and this compound is dissolvable in water. It is a lead soap. We have an analogous action in the union of the alkali in soap, with the grease and dirt on one's hands when washed. The soap unites with the grease, and forms a froth or scum, which is then readily removed by water. A similar scum is formed when the painter washes his hands, after using the paint-brush, but, as he may have been using the brush for hours before washing his hands, the paint that has smeared his hands has been so long in contact with the pores of the skin so as to have become practically absorbed therein. Thus a process of slow poisoning goes on day after day, month after month, year after year, until at last the painter's wrist drops—the poisonous blood has so weakened the nerves of the wrist that the painter has no longer sufficient nerve-force to control the necessary muscles for holding the brush—he has got lead palsy; the blood vessels of his hand have become filled with lead paint sucked in in a similar manner to water by a sponge." In this we have a graphic picture of the evils of the ordinary paints, from which "aquol" and "pyrodene" are free.

The writer next had a chat with Lewis Hank, another painter, of No. 438 West 35th street. He said: "I painted the flats built by David Crear, at Nos. 53 and 55 West 105th street. We stopped work when the frost came, but we were told to go ahead and put on the aquol paint, which they said would not crack and scale with the frost like ordinary paint. Well, sir, although we did'nt believe it, we went ahead, and sure enough the paint stayed there right through the frost, and there wasn't a crack or warp. We never knew such a thing as putting paint on in a frost before."

Speaking of the ordinary paints Mr. Smith said: "Oil is a component part of these paints, and when the oil is decomposed or oxidized the paint can be rubbed off. The oil penetrates the wood and prevents the lead from doing so. Water, which we use to mix with the aquol paint, is not a part of the paint, except as applied. It opens the pores of the wood, and, when evaporated, allows the aquol to take its place, thereby giving it a firm hold. The aquol is free from smell, non-poisonous, susceptible of the most delicate artistic treatment and a damp-resister, and it is in use 50 per cent. cheaper than any other paint. Twenty tons of paint was saved in the Manchester Exhibition by using the "aquol." It has other advantage, the value of which will be appreciated in many quarters. It is a vermin-router. Captain Ross, of the steamer Hudson, on Cromwell's New Orleans line, came in to tell me that since the aquol had been used in a room in his steamer the cockroaches had disappeared from it. The 'aquol,' I would state, must not be confounded with 'pyrodene.' It is a washable water paint, adapted to all the purposes for which the ordinary oil paint is used, but it costs less and possesses greater durability. It will not crack or blister in the hottest sun. It has been thoroughly tested for years in India, and has stood the test successfully."

The pyrodene, which is styled a "fireproofing liquid for rendering all woodwork uninflammable," has been used in Great Britain in the Drury Lane, Lyric, Terry's and Shaftesbury theatres, London; the Theatre Royal in Brighton, Croydon, Belfast, Edinburgh, Colchester, Cork, and in the principal theatres and music halls in other British cities, as well as in public and other buildings. It has been awarded medals at the Paris, London, Liverpool and other exhibitions, and is certainly destined, with the aquol paint, to be very extensively used in the United States.

A New Real Estate Atlas of Importance.

A most valuable aid to all people dealing in real estate in this city in any manner whatsoever will be furnished by a new atlas, to be published by E. Robinson, of Nos. 82 and 84 Nassau street. This atlas will be the most complete yet given to the public. It will show the block, lot, ward and house numbers; the lines and dimensions of the lots; the buildings with the material of construction shown by colors, and the number of stories; whether the streets are opened or are not; the width of the streets and the sidewalk lines; the kind of paving, distinguished by colors; the elevation above high water mark at the street intersections; the sewers; the size of the water mains and the hydrants, and the old farm lines, together with the names and numbers of the maps on file at the Register's office. There will be nine volumes in this atlas. Volume 1 will include Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 13; vol. 2, will embrace Wards 8, 9, 11, 14, 15 and 17; vol. 3, Wards 16, 18, 20 and 21; vol. 4, the 19th Ward only; vol. 5, the 23d Ward; vol. 6, that part of the 12th Ward south of 114th street; vol. 7, that part of the 12th Ward south of 138th street; vol. 8, that part south of 170th street; and vol. 9, the rest of the ward up to Spuyten Duyvil Creek. The volumes will be drawn at a uniform scale of sixty feet to an inch, except the portion covered by the piers, which must necessarily be on a reduced scale. An outlined and index map of the streets; an alphabetical list of the streets giving the house numbers on each plate, and also an explanatory table of the colors and characters used, will accompany each volume.

The expensive character of such a work can easily be conceived. In order that it may be completed, the publisher must have the liberal support of people interested in real estate. For this support he now appeals. He has assumed the responsibility of starting the work, and has already issued volumes 5 and 6. In order to proceed, he must have the assistance of those whom the atlas will help. Its price will be $50 a volume, and each volume will be corrected up to date, in consideration of an additional payment amounting to $10 per annum.

Notes and Items.

Two new building and loan associations have been incorporated during the past week. One is called the New York Building and Loan Banking Company, of which Joseph Roberts is president; Richard E. Townsend, the 1st vice-president; G. W. Crossman, the 2nd vice-president; Winslow E. Buzby, the secretary; Paul A. Wiedemann, the treasurer; and Percival S. Jones and Moses H. Ackerly, trustees, and of which the above named officers, excluding the trustees, together with Joshua C. Purdy, Edward Busby, William E. Roberts and Chas. Wendell, are the directors. Its attorney is Lawton B. Garside. The other is the New York National Building and Loan Association, of which Benj. F. Moore is president; Gifford W. Sayre, vice-president; Wilbur C. Marsh, secretary; Joseph W. Blood, treasurer; William F. Thompson, general manager, and William G. Havens, general attorney. The officers, with the exception of the attorney, constitute the board of directors, and the capital is placed at the modest sum of $75,000,000.

The Proposed Change of Names.

A considerable number of additional names of westsiders have been appended to the petition to be presented to the Board of Aldermen, to change the name of 9th avenue, above 64th street, to "Columbus avenue," and 10th avenue, above 70th street, to "Holland avenue." The following parties have petitions in their offices for signature, in addition to the list published in this column last week: The Hudson River Bank, 72d street and 9th avenue; J. T. Farley's Sons, 9th avenue, corner 72d street; J. Romaine Brown & Co., 59 West 33d street; J. H. Hunt, southwest corner 72d street and 9th avenue; J. E. Whitaker, 66 Liberty street; John D. Crimmins, 1042 3d avenue; and J. Harsen Rhoades, Greenwich Savings Bank, 6th avenue and Waverley place.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company's Annual Report.

It is certainly a singular fact in connection with the insurance business that, whereas the life insurance companies of this country have been marvellously successful in building up a large business abroad as well as in this country, our fire insurance companies have to meet a large amount of English competition. The reports of our large life insurance companies are more surprising every year. At present the Mutual has risks in force to the enormous amount of $565,949,933.92, an increase of $83,824,749.56 over last year. Its assets amount to $136,401,328.02 invested in real estate mortgages, good bonds, and loans on collateral. The increase in assets over last year, it may be remarked, is $10,319,174.46. The other items show a corresponding augmentation. The surplus has increased $1,717,184.81 to $9,657,348.44, the receipts $4,903,087.10 to $31,119,019.62, and the payments to policy-holders $473,058.16 to $15,200,608.38. There are now 182,310 policies in force, an increase of 23,941 during 1889, and new policies numbering 44,577, an increase of 11,971, have been written during the year.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners have voted to purchase from the New York Central Railroad ten lots under water on the North River, 101 feet north of West 33d street, for $10,000. The property is to be used by the Dock Department.

Notice is given in the matter of the application to acquire title by the city to that part of 146th street, from Railroad avenue East to St. Ann's avenue, that the bill of costs, charges and expenses incurred by reason of the proceedings in this matter will be presented to one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, on February 26, 1890, at 10.30 A. M., and that the bill of costs, etc., has been deposited in the Department of Public Works for twelve days, from the 12th inst. A similar notice is given in the matter of the application to acquire title to that part of Melrose avenue from 3d avenue to East 163d street, and that the report thereon will be presented to the Supreme Court, at a Special Term, on April 11, 1890, and a motion then made that the report be confirmed.

The Changes in the Fifteenth Ward.

A glance at the plans filed at the Building Department during 1889-90 will show that a large proportion of the new structures in the 15th Ward, in the district between Broadway and South 5th avenue and Houston street and Waverley place were planned by Alfred Zucker In order to get an idea or two about the main features of their construction, the writer called on him at his office on Broadway.

Mr. Zucker said: "The character of the new buildings planned in this locality by my brother architects, as well as by myself, are distinguishable for one thing—they are a great improvement over the older structures in the wholesale district. They provide for first-class light, and to accomplish this the entire front of inside buildings is given over as much as possible to window space. Iron has consequently been used very largely, thus economizing the space required for columns to divide the windows. There are a great many examples of iron front buildings on Greene street and elsewhere, and there was a period when this character of construction prevailed. But the fronts of the new buildings are of brick, stone and iron combined, and the change is for the better. Brick and mortar are better fire-proof materials than iron. The fronts are more costly than they used to be, and this may be said of the construction of the buildings throughout. But higher rents are obtained, for the times demand a superior, even if more costly building. People want something that will please the eye; something well-lighted, well-ventilated, well-appointed in every way, and they are willing to pay for it. The motive, as far as I can gather from experience, that has induced the wholesale houses to go on the side streets, is the high rents on Broadway and the saving to be effected by moving a few hundred feet away from Broadway on the streets. The new buildings on the streets are to a large extent rented before being built or completed, and this shows what a healthy tone there is to the new side-street building movement. I am not prepared to disclose the facts, but I know of some $4,000,000 worth of new building that is to go on in the very district you are dealing with. One of these buildings is already leased by an old Broadway house for twenty years at a reasonable saving, and they obtain more space at a smaller annual rent."

Echoes of the National Convention.

The New York delegates from the National Convention of Builders have all returned. They speak in the highest terms of praise of the cordial reception they received at St. Paul, and of the unbounded hospitality which was accorded them. One of the delegates stated that St. Paul has equally as fine office buildings as there are to be seen on Broadway, and as fine residences as there are on 5th avenue. There was a banquet tendered to all the delegates on Wednesday, the 29th ult., when the Catholic Archbishop of St. Paul delivered an oration on the duties of employers and employed toward each other, which made a deep impression on the five hundred persons present. On Friday evening Minneapolis gave a similar banquet to the convention, and an equally large number were present. Speaking of the debate on the eight-hour day, one of the delegates said: "Sentiment was pretty well divided on the question. It was impossible to tell who were its supporters and who its opponents, as the speakers were distributed all over the hall." Delegates from one city would often be divided. The New York delegation were all in favor of the eight-hour day, with one or two exceptions. Boston also favored it. No vote was taken, and this is to be regretted, for it might have shown us where we stood. The reason why so many delegates objected to a vote was because they had not received instructions from their exchanges, and were not sure whether their organizations would support their action. They therefore left it over for settlement till the next convention, which meets in New York in 1892. By that time it was understood that a vote would be taken, for in the meantime the question would be thoroughly discussed in all its bearings, and the delegates would come prepared to vote with full power. "By that time," said the delegate, "the question will no doubt bave seen settled in New York and other cities."

The New York delegation were much gratified at the selection of John J. Tucker to the presidency of the National Association, and to the selection of New York for the next meeting. The New York delegation, it may be added, were accompanied by four ladies, Mrs. Richard Deeves and her guest Mrs. Cantrell, Mrs. J. M. Canda and Mrs. J. J. Tucker, and they met with great courtesies from the ladies of St. Paul.

The Criminal Court Building Contract.

It is said that the estimates for the new Criminal Court building will reach close on $1,400,000. The workingmen's unions, as announced elsewhere, are petitioning the Sinking Fund Commissioners not to accept any bids from any but resident New York contractors employing resident New York workmen. The Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, comprising the principal employers in the building trades of the metropolis, have joined hands with the men and have forwarded the following document to the Commissioners :

Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, 14 Vesey street, New York, February 4, 1890.

Commissioners of the Sinking Fund ; Gentlemen—In consideration of the fact that you have invited estimates from builders for constructing the new Criminal Court building, and that the entire cost of the structure is to be borne by the citizens of this city, the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange, at a recent meeting, passed the following resolution :

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to respectfully express to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund the judgment of this Exchange, that in awarding the contract for the new Criminal Court building to be erected on Centre street, estimates only from parties whose business affiliations and headquarters are in this city, should be entertained ; and ask them to consider only the bids from those thus identified with the city.

We respectfully ask your consideration of the matter. The large number of mechanics and workingmen who reside here and thus contribute to the prosperity of our city should be benefited so far as is possible by the public improvements for which they are taxed. We think it unjust that we should be forced to compete, for work of this character, with those who have no interests in the city apart from a pecuniary benefit, which they might derive by successfully bidding against our local mechanics and laboring men on municipal work. Should this contract be awarded to parties located outside of our city, men would be employed from other localities. Thus our labor market, by the payment of lower wages, would deprive of workthose who reside here, and divert from our channels of trade a large amount of money which should remain in this community. Neighboring cities discriminate against us in writing proposals for local public work of this character and have thus established a precedent. As you have made a reservation on your advertisement, we think you can meet the spirit of our resolution and avoid an injustice to many of our fellow citizens. Very respectfully, William Brennan, H. P. Binswanger, H. W. Redfield, Committee.

The auction sales on 'Change do not compare in volume with the business done from the auctioneers' stands at the same time last year. During the first six weeks, for instance, in 1889, the total sales on 'Change aggregated nearly $3,000,000, while this year they scarcely amounted to $1,000,000. Tuesday and Wednesday were the busiest days this week. On the former day the five-story flat on the northwest corner of 7th avenue and 124th street, lot 30.1¾x84.11½, sold to James McClenahan for $50,750. On the latter day the sale which attracted most attention was that of the southwest corner of 6th avenue and 11th street, which contains five three-story brick dwellings on an irregular plot, having a frontage of 9.6 on the avenue and 56.10 on the street, with a rear width of 50.6, and a depth on one side of 140.6 feet and on the other of 166.7. The first bid started at $50,000, and the offers advanced to $79,750, at which figure it was sold to S. M. Rice, a down-town merchant. The Grand View Hotel, Fort Hamilton, L. I., overlooking the Narrows, was knocked down to E. H. Beers for $74,250.

Sales in the brokers' offices have been fairly satisfactory, as will be seen from our "Gossip" columns.

On Tuesday, February 18th, Smyth & Ryan will sell the five substantial modern dwellings, Nos. 69, 71 and 73 West 69th street and Nos. 72 and 74 West 70th street. These houses are all four-stories high, with side stoops and bay windows and two-story extensions, and are situated on lots 18.2x 100.5.

On Tuesday, February 18th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell, by order of the Supreme Court, in partition, the four-story and basement, high stoop, brown stone dwelling, No. 9 West 37th street, 25x58x98.9, with an extension. Cornell on the North River, between 26th and 27th streets. The property is owned by the estate of John M. Dodd and Alex. M. NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For Prices see pages VII., XI., XII. and XIII.]

BRICKS.—Just a nice steady gain in tone, with fractional addition to value, appears to be the principal feature of the market for Common Hards, and the ruling conditions are of a healthy character. The river remains open and permits a continuation of shipments, but the general movement is not as free as might be expected, and came almost entirely from the Bay or its immediate vicinity, with the forwarding somewhat desultory in character, according to the convenience of shippers. This is not the result of any special preconce ted understanding, but the result of numerous seasonable influences to which manufacturers became subject, even in the absence of ice, though some of them have sufficiently hopeful ideas of the spring trade to create a certain degree of indifference toward present attempts at realizing. In the meanwhile consumption, aided of late by somewhat more favorable weather, has kept open a pretty good outlet for stock, possibly something in excess of current arrivals, and through this comes the stimulus through which the line of value is reaching a higher plane. The average quality of the offering appears to be very fair and that makes the market rather more compact, yet buyers appreciate extra attractions and are not unwilling to enter upon some competition to obtain the very best. Probably the average top up to the present writing is $7.37½, yet sales have been made as $7.50 in apparently sufficiently pronounced form to make it a quotation. As foreshadowed in our last arrivals have made their appearance from Staten Island and were sold at $7.00 per M. Dealers are not encroaching upon their accumulations more than may be necessary, but cannot avoid some reduction. Pales do not meet with any great degree of favor, yet fail to become burdensome and are valued as before in most cases.

CEMENT.—Since the first of the year the market for foreign cements has remained in very good shape and reports are cheerful. Arrivals were comparatively moderate and did not come to hand in a bunchy condition, making the handling very convenient, though it was rarely necessary to hunt up an outlet, as the open weather kept demand free. Indeed, buyers sometimes were more plenty than stock immediately available, and one bunch of 3,000 barrels received this week entered upon prompt delivery to fulfill waiting orders. Prices firm and but as yet without advance, as receipts are upon old contracts and comparatively easy freight charges, the advantage of which accrues to buyers through competition among importers, but all hands insist that when the next season's supply is tendered, both its cost abroad and transportation rates will make increased bids necessary in order to reach it. Domestic cement also appears to be doing pretty well for the season, and more than the usual quantity is coming forward by rail, some of it direct to consumers and some of it to dealers. We find, however, quite a variety of quotations, ranging all the way from $1.05 up to $1.25 per barrel, though $1.10 seems to be the average inside line.

LATH.—Matters have remained firm, and the few arrivals coming in found prompt enough sale with $2.50 per M. readily sustained, and in one instance a still higher rate was secured, though the extreme figure did not appear to be hardly in form for the establishment of a fixed quotation. As matters stand it looks as though there was just about outlet sufficient to balance the quantities known to be on the way and possibly might exhaust a rather fuller amount, but the cost makes buyers cautious, and with a little accumulation of stock in first hands they would be very ready to jump on the market. Furthermore there is the chance of additional offerings from the interior, though we learn of no sales later than those noted in our last.

LIME.—It is impossible to find anything really new on this market. Several cargoes have arrived during the week and were placed without apparent difficulty with the quoted valuation remaining unchanged, and receivers think they could have disposed of a little more stock. Occasionally rumors may be heard of shaded rates, and we have as usual made some effort at investigation with an impression that there is some foundation for the story, though probably without actual gain to the buyer owing to the difference in quality of stock handled.

LUMBER.—For pretty much all the standard grades of stock including hardwoods, there is probably quite as much doing as could be expected at this time of the year, so far as the call from active consumers is concerned, and very little complaint comes from leading dealers. Furthermore, there is already in one way or another quite a little figuring in the way of special contracts for delivery in the early spring, and indications are considered favorable on the general outlook for business. As usual retail valuations differ to a greater or less extent according to the numerous influences that prevail on the distributive trade, but with existing understandings among the spruce and yellow pine dealers the line of variation is narrowed down to fewer varieties of stock, and not much advantage for buyers on really first-class selections. On first hand offerings there does not appear to be many changes, and the volume of operations as yet expands slowly.

Eastern Spruce for the present may be considered as in sellers' favor, and those who have the advantage talk as though they expected to retain it for some time to come. Generally it is estimated that the accumulation in dealers' hands is no greater than last year, if it be as great, and on the basis of the standard quality of the wood it is calculated that few dealers are likely to show indifference toward any offering possessing ordinary attractions, especially as there is now a reasonable safeguard against the necessity for cutting prices until margins disappear as a means to prevent custom going to competitive operators. There is an occasional suggestion about the fullness of present cost, with an expression of belief that if transportation can be obtained the shipments will commence just as early as it is possible to make them. Even that, however, as a source of relief to the current stringency of tone is a doubtful factor, as manufacturers already claim to have placed under contract most of their early cutting, and some are talking about making $20 Eastern survey their minimum rate. From a gentleman who has a somewhat extensive correspondence of late we learn that St. John is practically out of logs, and that on the Kennebec and Penobscot there is only a comparatively small amount, and that at latest mail dates the prospect for spring freshets to run this winter's cut in the woods was of the most unpromising character.

Piling in all general particulars remains about as before. It is not a market upon which business can be hurried at all at the moment, but with most of the stock safely placed holders have no objection to carrying, and, indeed, some of them expect to commence deliveries on contract within a few weeks. About former rates asked for all regular sizes.

Hemlock is doing proportionately as well as any other class of wood at the moment, and there is not much brought out differing in any essential degree from reports as previously made. Contradictory statements prevail regarding values, and probably always will do so, but in the majority of cases investigation generally reveals the old story of extreme figures based upon claims of superior quality, and in numerous cases cut to order.

White Pine has been moved off very fairly since the first of the year, taking the home and foreign trade together, and preserved a reasonably cheerful sort of market. Conditions, however, are not thoroughly solid, and where buyers, either through choice or necessity, open negotiations they do so with a great deal of caut on. There is nothing to indicate any scarcity of seasoned stuff at any locality from whence supplies are drawn, and plenty of logs coming to make a new cut, while it would be almost stupidity not to see that this market is an objective point with a large number of interior holders, notwithstanding the continued efforts made to appear indifferent, and assume a steady tone on valuation.

Yellow Pine still appears to be pretty nice stock to handle, for if the demand does not happen to be very snappish the offering can be managed so as not to become oppressive, while on the other hand if buyers want to become urgent, it is a comparatively easy matter to satisfy them within a reasonable limit. Present indications are promising, both as to local demand and f. o. b. trading for West Indies and some sections of South America, and there is also said to be a better prospect for English trade. Prices are well preserved on both cargo and yard dealings through the medium of the mutual agreement among operators.

Carolina Pine seldom gets very serious abuse now as those who do not use the wood find their antagonism of little or no effect, and those who count it as regular stock discover that between the efforts of manufacturers at primary sources and the planing mills in this vicinity, the assortment and general standard of quality is maintained in a very satisfactory manner, and there is a uniformity on cost permitting of safe calculation in making estimates. Demand appears to be mending a little and there is a hint of fuller rates to come.

Hardwoods are in fair demand, and parties who have been canvassing the market here or in immediate locality intimate considerable success in securing orders for shipment to dealers who desire to replenish assortments. Poplar, as usual, figures to a considerable extent in filling out the calls, and also, as usual, it is pretty difficult to reconcile all the statements regarding price, though on the average the former general range of figures appears safe to retain as a quoting basis. Quarter-sawed oak is still getting quite a boom, but some of the level-headed operators suggest that there is danger of overdoing the trade on an excessive estimate of the wants of the market. Mahogany has good general favor for local consumption, and interior supplies are said to have worked low enough to promise quite an addition to the demand if only to fill out assortments.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Lumber manufacturers and dealers have fallen into a peculiar mood that is almost ominous of some impending crisis. Apathy, or waiting for developments, or distrust of future conditions seems to be the prevailing state of mind. Perhaps the influenza epidemic has had an influence; possibly the exceptional mildness of the winter has put business out of joint: it is likely that unsatisfactory profits and the poor outlook for greater is causing operators in camp, mill and yard to hesitate. The pause is like that which pertains to all branches of industry and trade. Not that affairs are dead, or that product is not moving to an extent, but they are progressing by their own motion, as it were, without special urgency on the part of men. The motive and intent are lacking. Little is being done for the future. There is meager expectation, little expression of opinion. A few gleams of hope occasionally light up the leaden haze that enshrouds things. Operators are continuing business because they must, not because they can see much in the future that is promising.

There are several things that operators are looking at as doubtful factors. Competition from rival points and forces in the field is exciting apprehension. Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota will be full of logs, while there is likely to be a limitation of input in lower Michigan. This will destroy the equilibrium of competition. Direct shipmen from Wisconsin mills has already cut off much of the West Michigan demand, the gateway of which is the Chicago market. Last season Wisconsin lumber crept down through Indiana and Ohio, and was found in considerable quantity in Cincinnati. This year, owing to a surplus of logs, this movement is liable to be enlarged. In this state direct shipment from Wisconsin mills was seriously felt by the dealers in this city. It will be more pronounced this year. The poverty of western farmers will force Wisconsin lumber to go southward and eastward for a market. This will be in direct competition with West Michigan product, and to some extent with that of Menominee region.

Then there is Southern Pine, which is sure to be more aggressive this year than hitherto, energetic as it has been. We have repeated this assertion till it must have become so stale as to be almost odorous; yet it is such a conspicuous fact as bearing on present and prospective conditions of the lumber trade in the Mississippi Valley, that it can scarcely be omitted in any general review of the trade.

The increasing product of Northern and Southern mills, and the circle of competition that closes in, has induced such a struggle among dealers for a standing in the trade that cutting prices has become a habit, the only means for disposing of lumber. This is a constant menace to manufacturers and dealers, and has become so serious that it baffles them at every point. So long have the dealers wrestled with the difficulty that they have tired of it, and would feign pause and rest, looking about for awhile to see if there is any avenue of escape from the dilemma.

So we have another strange spectacle of a great and expanding consumptive demand on the one hand, with discouraged mill operators and dealers because they cannot make an adequate profit on investment, risk and effort on the other.

The Timberman as follows :

There has been considerable idle talk indulged in relative to logging operations on the Muskegon river, and of work being suspended on account of the open water, but the fact is that work is progressing in the most satisfactory manner. Old lumbermen say there is nothing in the situation so far to cause alarm or serious apprehension, and give it as their opinion that stocks will be secured in sufficient quantities to keep every mill on the lake busy next summer. Railroad jobs are well advanced, for the weather could not have been more favorable to that method of lumbering.

Logging operations are proceeding in a fairly satisfactory manner in Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. In the northern portion of the lower peninsula of Michigan there was snow enough for good hauling, but the mild weather is making operators south of Cadillac decidedly anxious, and the prospects now are that a great many logs will be left on the skids in that section and a number of the small operators be seriously embarassed thereby.

The Chicago yard dealers are reporting a moderate trade, but one not characterized by large orders or a rush of small ones. The aggregate is, if anything a little larger than last year. A careful canvass by the Timberman among lumber dealers as to their January trade in comparison to that of last year's leads us to believe that the month's business will show an increase when the reports are all in. With but very few exceptions the dealers have reported at least a slight increase in their trade when questioned, and where there has been a falling behind investigation has generally developed the fact that it was a case where the 1889 trade was unusually large.

There is hardly any feature of the present trade of which special mention can be made. The enquiries regarding piece stuff are as various as the sizes embraced under that head. Without doubt there are still some sales made of short lengths at $11, but such sales are usually readily explained by the dealer having secured a cut freight rate which enables him to make the low price. These special rates are said to be of more frequent occurence now than for a long time, and the dealer who has the inside track with the railroads, has the advantage over his less fortunate brother.

The dealers in hardwoods are still disposed to feel somewhat jubilant over the trade they are enjoying. While the volume of business is not heavy it is larger than they have reason to expect at this season of the year, and although prices may not be all that is wished there has been some improvement over the summer months. Local stocks are generally quite light. With the exception of birch and maple it is said that the demand is fully up to the supply.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

The bulls find very little to bolster up their position in the logging situation in the White Pine district. Splendid work is being done in the woods and while it is certain that a great many logs will be procured it is equally certain that they will be procured at a minimum of cost. The only thing that can be said in behalf of this condition is that it will put the white pine men—or at least some of them—in better positions to cope with their yellow pine competitors. With the constantly improving situation in the South this may mean, first, a larger market for the white pine men and possibly increased profits. The saw mill capacity in the Northwest has not increased materially, and not very much more lumber can be made than was made in 1888. It is certain, however, that there will be a very large stock of logs.

Under all these conditions if there is any improvement in prices it must be from increased demand. It is evident that the manufacturers, very generally, have their faces turned hopefully in the direction of this better demand. Some of them have considerable confidence that their hope may be realized, though it is possible that the confidence is a creature of the wish.

The hardwood lumber trade everywhere is in an exceptionally good condition. The sash, door and finishing men, the furniture makers and the agricultural implement manufacturers are all making large demands upon the mnnufacturers. The factories consuming hardwood everywhere are in a particularly prosperous condition. This is not a circumstance peculiar alone to the wood workers, but is common to all manufacturers, and in this fact is found much of the confidence of the men in the pine trade of a year of good demand and at least fair prices.

NAILS.—Holders quite generally speak cheerfully over the conditions of the market present and prospective, and while there is a certain amount of "outside" stock still turning up in the way of regular offerings. the obstacle is gradually becoming smaller. Prices may in a general way be considered steady, though outside lots now and then sell a fraction off. We quote at $2.10@2.15 per keg for car lots, and $2.15 @2 20 per keg for parcels from store

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Something in the way of a further gain to the volume of distribution appears to be indicated through the reports of many jobbers, and while the reflection upon bulk lots is not prompt the foundation for a better business is unquestionably in the course of construction. Leads are of course steady through the control of the combine, but for that matter pretty much every article of standard quality seems to be kept under control and maintained at a steady basis. Linseed Oil has slightly fluctuating demand, but on prices closes steady at some advance on last week's rates. We quote at 59@6 c. for Western, and 61@63c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has met with a somewhat irregular demand, but on the whole the movement was light and values without important change. We quote at 43@ 44c. per gallon, according to quality, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—The general movement, sellers assert, is about in accord with their calculations, and that naturally leads to a satisfactory feeling regarding the condition of the market and preserves fairly steady rates We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.50 per bbl.; Tar at $2.25@2.50, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

VOL. XLV. FEBRUARY 22, 1890. No. 1,145.

A continuance of the bear feeling, with a decided drive against the Grangers, was the feature of the stock market this week, and the close was not characterized by any change of front. There are no present indications of anything approaching a bull market, and the only operators who have made anything in stocks recently are those who have been bearishly inclined. Rock Island is still a puzzle to the "street," but as the general market has now followed Rock Island the puzzle will be transferred to the general market. There is a strong bear party who are trying for a turn in stocks; but with the good outlook for business, and the real business which has been done recently by all railroads, there is but little chance of bringing about any important decline in prices. Money is easier in London, but Paris still holds a firm grip on its stock of gold, and it will be only under a very strong pressure that either of these cities will allow any exportation of specie to this country Business cannot be called unusually active, but there are very few lines which are not up to last year, and many are ahead. If Congress would only settle the tariff bill, so that manufacturers could make their calculations accordingly, there is no doubt but that we would soon see a decided movement in business circles. It is noticeable, furthermore, that signs may be observed of another revival in the demand for iron and steel. Says the Iron Age:

In some sections at least, consumers are drawing to the end of supplies purchased during the rise of the closing months of last year. Weak speculators have been weeded out, so that the market is now again more directly under the control of manufacturers. At the highest prices established late last year comparatively little material was sold, so that as a matter of fact buyers are now about to pay really more for new supplies than they averaged on their former purchases. Having withheld from the market for close upon two months, they find it stronger than the majority gave it credit for.

It is a pity that the rate troubles in the West should again act as a depressing influence, when the country in general is prosperous and warrants higher prices. In cotton alone we have exported since last August 600,000 bales more than last year, which means that we shall be paid $32,000,000 more by Europe than during the same months in 1888 and 1889. Such conditions must in time produce their consequences.

There is very little doubt now that the World's Fair will be held in New York City. Apart from the geographical, social and mercantile advantages which the metropolis possesses over rival cities, the fact that she alone does not appeal to Congress as a beggar for national assistance to carry out the World's Fair project gives her request a weight that in all human probability will be irresistible. Besides this, since politicians have elected to make the choice of a site a "political" matter, it is not to be wondered at that the people of this State should also regard the matter from a political standpoint, and as this is thoroughly understood in Washington, neither party are disregarding, politically, the wishes of a State; indeed, it may be said, the wishes of a section of the country, for New Jersey, Connecticut, and the East generally, is one with New York in this World's Fair question, which figures so very prominently in Presidential elections. Thus, politically, as well as financially, New York is by far the strongest claimant for the Fair. There is much more doubt about the possibility of getting the Exposition ready by 1892 than that this city will be the site. This is really the important question to be considered now. With energy and the free expenditure of money a creditable Fair could be got ready by 1892; but the national ideal in the matter is for something more than a merely creditable affair, and New York cannot afford to embark on an enterprise that will fall at all short of a signal and brilliant success. Unless it can be shown beyond peradventure that there is ample time between now and 1892, it would be better to postpone the fair until 1893, and commemorate the events of 1492 by exercises that will be in a sense introductory to the grander celebration to be held a few months later.

In the wrangling as to the control of our precious electric subways no interests have figured, so far as we are aware, but those of the Standard Subway Company and the Thomas-Houston combination. No doubt the importance of the subway to these companies is great; but apparently the idea has not yet entered into the heads of any of our officials that the people whom they are supposed to represent have the slightest interest in the matter. "Government" in New York City has been for many years one of the sorriest spectacles known to civilization. In addition to its positive vices in its nature it does not differ from savage rule. It is a hand-to-mouth ordering of things, devoid of any prevision or calculation of what the morrow will probably bring. The electric light is now almost a necessity. The use of it is extending rapidly, and before long it will no doubt be very generally employed as a source of light even for domestic purposes. In spite of this obvious fact, however, the city calmly proposes to turn over a monopoly of the subway, in which practically all light and power wires must in future be laid, to private individuals, who are empowered to charge rentals sufficient to pay 10 per cent. upon the cost of the subway above the expenses of operation and maintenance. In other words, these individuals may levy a tax of 10 per cent. upon users of electricity conveyed through the subway. The interest on investments in New York Central stock to-day is 4.24; on Central Pacific first mortgage, 3.87; on Lake Shore first mortgage 7s, 4.00; on first-class real estate, 5.00 or 6.00. The city has borrowed money at 2½, and at 3 per cent. could no doubt obtain as much as it might ask for. What justification is there then for giving the control of these subways, with power to collect any such rental as 10 per cent., to any company. The city itself should control these subways in the interests of the community. It would need nothing like a 10 per cent. rental, and electric light could be furnished so much the cheaper.

Following the report of the successful operation of the municipal electric light plant of Bangor, Maine, comes one from the Mayor of Little Rock, Ark., Mr. William G. Whipple. The city of Little Rock assumed control of its electric lighting over a year ago. According to the report, the plant was operated during the year 1889 at a cost to the city of thirteen cents per arc light per night. In a recent letter, commenting on the working of the plant, Mayor Whipple says: "Our light is eminently successful and unanimously popular. Our citizens would never consent to do without it, though it was established amid the formidable opposition of the gas company and its numerous and powerful friends." Short as is this extract it contains the history of municipal electric lighting in nearly every city that has undertaken to perform this work for itself. At first, violent opposition on the part of interested corporations—severe struggle and final adoption of system; then low cost of light—a great saving to the city—general satisfaction. The experience of Little Rock with electric lights furnishes not only one more example of economy and efficiency derived from universal management of certain public works, but it further shows that the larger as well as the smaller cities are able to secure good light at small cost under such a system of control. Little Rock operated last year one hundred and eleven arc lights at a cost below the average rate of what it cost twenty other cities—principally small ones—to furnish themselves with light in 1888. The experience of Chicago furnishing light for fifteen cents per arc light per night and Bangor for thirteen cents, adds strength to the opinion that size is not a bar to the entrance of larger cities into the field of electric lighting.

When will New York take a lesson from such patent facts as these in the world around her. What reason can common sense give for our paying from thirty to fifty cents a night for each electrical lamp, when Chicago by owning and operating her own plant obtains the same service for fifteen cents? Is it because the city is hard pushed to get rid of its revenues, or because there is fear of destroying the marvellous correspondence between the illumination of the city and the other results of municipal management? New Yorkers cannot learn too soon that in spite of extravagant pretensions and vulgar self-conceit the city to-day in its public appointments is a stupendous failure, that only becomes tolerable by the growth of a hopeless indifference. Consider for a moment what a city of the size, wealth and importance of New York should reasonably be, and then turn to our miserably paved and filthy streets, our badly lit thoroughfares, our ramshackle docks, our water supply that reaches only the third story of buildings, our inadequate, uncomfortable, indecent and unhealthy facilities for transportation; in short, turn to the dirt, the discomfort, the mismanagement that exist everywhere, from which there is no escape—within the city—which have become inevitable and apparently permanent conditions of existence in the metropolis of the continent. Yet we plume ourselves on being a highly civilized, intelligent and progressive community, and with a serious face proclaim that New York is the only fit city—as a city—in the country in which to hold the World's Fair, that other cities are not "representative," that they have not the facilities, the attractions, or the interest for the world that New York has! Only other day a well-known merchant from Denver said: "I came to New York expecting to find in its buildings, streets and public improvements, distinction, elegance, comfort. I expected to see everywhere the results of solid enterprise, the proper opportunities for a large, wealthy and cultured existence. I am half ashamed at myself, that my judgment, formed from what is reported abroad of New York should be so much at variance with facts. The impression the city makes is so disappointing; in its main features it appears so vulgar, dirty and inadequate. In Denver—a young provincial city—we have wide, well-paved streets, thoroughly lit in all parts with electricity; comfortable cable cars; and a municipal service which in all departments is, at least, competent and progressive. I intended to stay in New York for some time, but I shall get home as soon as possible." Beyond doubt this conclusion is, in the main, just. Moreover, and this is of importance to us, the facts pointed out are telling against the reputation of the city and against its progress and welfare. Geographical advantages, the mercantile activity of citizens are not in themselves all sufficient to make a city great and keep it to the fore. What may be called the machinery of a city needs to be efficient, and in New York this is very far from being the case. Inadequate rapid transit, as the RECORD AND GUIDE has shown, makes rents high and thereby increases the cost of living, poorly-paved streets makes transportation difficult and expensive, the lack of proper docks has already resulted in the transference of no inconsiderable part of the shipping of the harbor to Jersey City and Brooklyn, and statistics show that the commerce of rival ports—Baltimore, for instance—is increasing at a greater ratio than ours. Are these evidences of growth? Hardly.

The Stockholder this week says:

I sincerely trust that the elevated road will get that loop. I won't have to wait so long at Park place for a train. If a popular vote of New York City was taken in regard to that loop, the elevated roads would get it in short order. Why don't it start a ballotting scheme? Have boxes at every station. Let it appeal to the people who would be benefited by the loop, and the people will give it to the elevated road. Public opinion in this country, when properly roused, rides rough shod over political pretension and money power.

We have within a week or two recorded remarks similar to the foregoing, taken from the editorial columns of the Tribune and the Sun, and with pleasure give space to another. They show that, at last, light is breaking in upon the "journalistic" mind in this city regarding the true position of the elevated roads in the rapid transit problem. In its way, it is all very well to denounce monopoly and to declare, as the New York press has done for years, that under no possible circumstances can any concessions be made to the Manhattan road; but a heroic scheme of this kind, unfortunately, in no way helps us towards the solution of the difficuly of how to enable people to move up and down the city in more comfort and with more dispatch than at present. An experience of many years' duration has shown that striving for an adequate system of rapid transit is like trying to get to the horizon. As the Irishman said, the nearer you get to it the further away it is. How often have we felt when schemes have been broached and rapid transit bills drawn up that at last we were getting within touch of the settlement of our difficulties; only to discover, however, every time how illusionary were our hopes and to see that we were as far away as ever from the obtainment of rapid transit. In the meantime little heed was paid to the one fact in the situation, viz.: that the facilities we possessed could be improved by giving the elevated roads permission to construct a third track and build a loop at the Battery. But the only immediate relief that it was possible to obtain was refused, and indeed is still refused. All things considered, a more ridiculous course could not have been pursued, and the New York press is responsible for this. Without considering all the circumstances of our condition, which, as Burke says, should be our preceptor, they took "a position"—that stiff, idiotic, mental attitude so dear to the "journalistic" mind—which if our circumstances were not exactly what they are, that is if our transportation facilities were not so very inacequate, or if new lines could be constructed at once without legislative, legal and financial delay, would have been all very well. The circumstances, however, did not justify the "position" taken—and the city has suffered and is suffering in consequence. It is gratifying to see that at last the newspapers are learning sense. Certainly some punishment should be made to fit the crime of those who continue to bray from their old "position." It might answer to make each of them select his favorite scheme and be prohibited from riding on any other until it should be completed. The importance of the elevated roads in the present difficulty might then be more keenly recognized that at present.

Commissioner Gilroy is evidently a man of energy and ideas. He has hit upon a scheme to preserve the hinder part of the City Hall that will have the additional advantage of giving it commu-nity of color, if not of material, with the rest of the building. Pape[illegible]an is, as we are informed by the daily newspapers, to white wash it and cover it with sand. At first blush it would seem that he had attempted a herculean task in endeavoring to whitewash our City Hall; although in calling the task herculean we have no intention of comparing it to the task of the Grecian hero in cleansing the Augean stables. But the skillful engineers of our Public Works Department are doubtless equal to more difficult feats than that of giving our City Hall a uniform whiteness of tone, which it has never possessed since the day of its completion. The work of renovation should, however, not stop at the rear of the building. There is an iorn dome on top, surmounted by a classic figure representing, we believe, Justice, both of which are somewhat the worse for wear. These artistic decorations might also be restored, or, since there is really nothing about them which is worth preserving, they might be replaced by some figure constructed of a material less oxidizable, and symbolizing an idea which is more in accord with the principles on which our municipal government is conducted. Why not, in short, put on a new dome and surmount it with the figure of a Tammany chieftain? The more consideration this suggestion receives the more satisfactory it becomes. The subject would be original, it would have an immediate significance, and, above all, it would be essentially American. It would not be necessary to place the chieftain in the attitude of scalping an imaginary victim, but he could stand with his blanket wrapt around him in Roman style, and his inscrutable countenance betraying none of the ordinary vulgar emotions. We have had enough of the classic in art. We need American subjects. It is true that our ordinary Indian statues are generally placed outside of cigar stores; but nobody would be foolish enough to attach such a meaning to a statue on top of the City Hall.

General Prosperity as Affecting Real Estate.

It is acknowledged by pretty nearly all the observers of the financial and business situation that the country is entering on a period of extraordinary commercial prosperity. The railroad earnings of last year, except in some cases, were by no means small, yet ever since the fall by far the majority of the roads have reported handsome increases in both gross and net earnings, amounting in the aggregate to nearly if not quite 10 per cent. In some cases, such as the Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the increases have been unusually large, while other roads like the Erie, which have suffered from the mild weather, have been able by increases on other classes of freight to more than make up the deficiencies in the returns on the coal product. The bank clearings of last year showed a heavy increase over those of the previous year, yet the current Clearing House returns from all over the country betray a steady if smaller augmentation than that which took place during the January of 1889, and this in spite of the fact that speculation in this city has been rather dull. Wall street has not yet responded by any marked increases in activity and prices to the prevailing prosperity; but this fact is itself by no means a bad sign, for it simply shows that capital is too profitably occupied in legitimate business to permit its use in speculation. The prosperity is limited to no one section of the country or to no one branch of trade. It is healthy in tone and almost universal in scope.

It is worth inquiring specifically what effect a general prosperity has upon real estate. That it will increase the demand for improved and unimproved property it is scarcely necessary to state, but that the demand thus created manifests itself in a different way from one which arose from an increase in population or a more local cause is equally obvious. Real estate in its relation to other forms of invested property occupies a somewhat peculiar place. So close is the connection subsisting among most branches of trade that a general condition which affects one affects pretty nearly all in about the same time and way. The influence of an increase in general prosperity, however, on improved and unimproved city property, although equally certain, takes rather more time to realize. When men are making more money than they have been accustomed to they increase their consumption of small and inexpensive things almost immediately, but it is some time before the increased earnings have aggregated to such an extent that they take the form of an increased demand for houses. But the point of the matter is that a general state of prosperity, as distinct from other causes which bring about an increased demand for real estate, creates inquiry for a better class of improvements. When men whose standard of living has remained the same for some years finds himself able to enlarge his expenditures, he will in time wish to change from a tenement to a flat, from a flat to a private house, from a private house to a larger residence of the same kind. It increases the demand that is for a better class of improvements. We may see the effect of this in the filings of projected buildings during the month of January, which are a few less in number than for the same month last year, but 25 per cent. greater in estimated cost. General prosperity will, of course, cause a further increase of demand simply for investment, but its first effect will be to render more costly the character of both the business and resident improvements in this city and elsewhere.

The prospects for the real estate market, if we argue from present activities, are as bright as if not brighter than those of any other line of business. The past year, as shown by our annual tables, was an exceptionally prosperous one—more so in fact than in any previous year of the city's existence. The increase in assessed valuation, amounting to more than $68,000,000, tells the same story. The first month of 1890 has seen an activity which, if sustained, will make 1890 a year of still greater activity than 1889. The healthy strength of the real estate market is indeed remarkable. It does not expand into inflation—it can withstand the severest inconveniences as regards transit accommodations. The brisk demand for expensive down-town property is a sufficient answer to those who think that too many office buildings are being erected, and it shows clearly that New York more than ever is becoming the centre from which wealthy men and corporations necessarily conduct their operations. The increase in values down town within a year is simply astonishing. In these columns, from week to week, advances in prices over previous years have been noted, and some of them were surprisingly large. New examples are, however, continually occurring, as the following facts will show. Nos 57 and 59 William street changed hands about a year ago at $100,000, which represented an advance of 20 per cent. on the price paid at auction shortly before. Now this same parcel has again been sold and the consideration, $150,000, discloses an advance of 50 per cent. A few months ago the southeast corner of Church and Dey streets was sold for about $135,000, and the other day it was resold at $200,000. The sales quoted are not the only ones which have been made at such largely increased figures, and they are mentioned because they are among the most recent which have been completed. The new hotels and theatres which are being or are shortly to be built indicates how largely our floating population is increasing. In short, no matter in what way we look, it is apparent that the prospects of this city for the future are as bright as its history has been in the past. Brooklyn and New Jersey have been growing at our expense, but in spite of this constant overflow, the metropolis steadily holds its own. The day is not far distant when the section within a radius of twenty miles from the City Hall will contain at once more wealth and more population than any district of similar size in the world.

Tanner is gone; but Tannerism remains. The amount of our annual pension bills is becoming simply outrageous. The pension appropriation bill for the next fiscal year, as reported to the House during the past week, disburses $98,427,461, an increase of $16,668,761 over the appropriation for the current year. Considering, however, that there is an estimated deficiency of $21,598,834 in the pension expenditures for 1889–90, the country may consider itself lucky if it gets off with the modest $98,000,000 above specified. Furthermore there are bills before Congress which, if they pass, will just about double this enormous sum. And so far as we can judge the temper of Congress and the Administration there seems to be no reason why some of them, at all events, should not pass. The only consolation that can be found in this preposterous swindling is that in time it will produce its own cure. It is incredible that the country will permit this wholesale distribution of alms to people who in most cases do not need them. It is founded on a principle which is totally false and which in its root is subversive of the deeper principle on which society itself is based. When the State is in danger it is the individual's duty to come forward and sustain it. The State, strictly speaking, owes him nothing more for his service than sustenance while he is performing it, and support if he is disabled by it, any more than it owes the President anything for being honest while in office. Moreover, any person, or any body of men who claim a pecuniary reward for simply doing their duty, by the very fact degrade themselves and reduce their claims even for gratitude.

The extravagant pension legislation in which the present Congress seems determined to involve the country is particularly unfortunate, because it will discredit liberal expenditures in other directions which will help to rehabilitate our commerce and improve our productive resources. Large as our surplus is, it is by no means inexhaustible, and when our old soldiers have helped themselves, as only old soldiers can, there will not be much left for subsidies and river and harbor improvements. Furthermore, it is in pensons that the surplus revenue will be expended rather than in subsidies, because the former will have the aid of the minority and the latter will have the majority's determined opposition. In any case, the needed public improvements will have to suffer, for if all the money is expended on pensions there will be nothing left for the more worthy purposes, while if liberal subsidy appropriations are coupled with extravagant almsgiving the former will be involved in the condemnation which will inevitably attach to the latter. If the Republicans prove to be as reckless as seems probable at present it is quite likely that liberal expenditures of any kind, for good or for bad purposes, will receive a check from which it will take some years to recover. It is to be hoped that whatever appropriations are made for needed public improvements will be given in a way that will insure the completion of any work which is begun. Too much money has been thrown away on works which were never completed, and it is better that not a cent should be spent than that large sums should be wasted in this way.

Our "Problems."

We hear a great deal these days of "problems"—problems social, financial, municipal—which we are told confront us and demand solution.

These statements may be regarded just at present rather as premonitory signs than as announcements of facts. There are, in truth, to-day, in this country no problems of a vital nature that so press upon our civilization with so much of persistency and urgency that consideration and action become imperatively necessary. In other words, there are yet no difficulties that have come so close to our very existence as a people that it is thereby restricted or confined. We are still in a period of growth and expansion, and in the life of a nation such periods always create but rarely solve difficulties. In the superabundance of strength, in the tireless energy of such times difficulties do not seem to present themselves, or if they do they are overridden and do not impede progress. It is not until in periods when the processes of concentration and development predominate, when expansion has practically ceased, and the energy of a people works chiefly inward upon their civilization, and not principally outward upon their material surroundings, that problems arise such as we are told exist for us to-day—problems that are at once acute, vital and urgent.

But though this is so, there is no doubt that before long problems and difficulties will beset our path that must be dealt with; that cannot be ignored, without impeding national progress and retarding civilization. Inasmuch as, so far, we have not had to face any problems of this character, it is not be wondered at that we are less fitted than perhaps we are aware of to deal with social difficulties of the kind that are not to be overcome by sheer force—difficulties indeed that are not susceptible to force at all, that harden with pressure, that require readjustment of conditions, not the creation of new ones; obstacles that sphynx-like vanish when the secret of their existence is guessed. Thus it will be well if we remember that this is not the day for preaching about problems or trying to solve them, for at present they cannot be dealt with adequately—they are not in a condition to be solved. The duty of the day, the imperative duty of the day, is rather to prepare ourselves to meet them.

To this end we must, in the first place, rid ourselves of much of our fetich belief in the supreme efficacy of political machinery in social matters. Political machinery in the past has been sufficient for our needs, if it has not been entirely efficient. The government of the constable, as Carlyle said, is all that we have really needed. But the readiness to appeal to the Legislature has begotten in us not only a confidence in the complete adequacy of legislative action, but the belief which is more dangerous that wisdom is a matter of ballots. Whether ballot-discovered wisdom is right or wrong is of small consequence when the question to be decided is whether Oshkosh shall or shall not be granted an appropriation for a post-office; but it is dangerously insufficient when it is unhesitatingly applied to the determination of what should be done in matters of grave, social consequence. We must then withdraw some of our allegiance from our legislative fetich, and let us add: we must cease from the habit of regarding all problems as entirely legislative problems, when as a matter of fact, they can only be dealt with efficaciously through the individual; that is, not the law needs changing, but the man. How little emphasis we give to the factor of personality in social affairs is shown in our manner of approaching what is called the problem of municipal government. If there be a pressing problem to-day it is this one, and no small amount of consideration has been given to it. Yet, in all that has been written about it, no attention whatever has been given to the part which the individual plays in it. All the reforms proposed make entirely for change in the machinery of government—the power of the Mayor is to be increased or curtailed in this direction or in that; certain offices are to be abolished or certain offices established. Attention is given exclusively to machinery. The essential reform, however, is to change the character of the governing and the governed. No other reform is of much value, indeed is of any value; for all depends upon that. "Government" everywhere reflects the average of the sentiments of the people. All government is "of the people;" and bitter as the fact may be to some of us, it is as certain as our existence that the vices, the vulgarity, the utter lack of seriousness in our city government is strictly typical of our own shortcomings.

And this brings us to another matter, the need that exists for the creation amongst us of an active, serious, enlightened public opinion ceaselessly exerting a pressure on popular sentiments, ideas and action, modifying and restraining them where necessary.

Unfortunately this does not exist to-day. It will be needed when we are confronted by problems too serious for charlatanry and demagogy, those conspicuous evils of our public life at present. It is not an assuring fact that when our problems are likely to be most momentous, when seriousness, intelligence and morality are most needed in dealing with them, we find ourselves more wanting in these qualities than at the beginning of our history, when the Puritan New Englander cast his vote on some petty village matter in the name of God.

The Boston Evening Gazette has published in tabulated form the result of some inquiries made throughout a period of ten years as to the religious convictions of the students' at Harvard University. The object, I presume, of the inquiry was to ascertain the effect of the Harvard atmosphere on the students' beliefs. It was not concerned with educated American youth in general, but specifically with Harvard young men as influenced by Harvard. If so, the gentleman who conducted this investigation went about it in a very clumsy way. It is not enough simply to tabulate the convictions of seniors. No allowance would be made for the fact that many of the students never come under the influence of the professors who discuss religious matters with their classes, and who consequently count far more largely as an element in the formation of the religious beliefs of the students than a dozen other instructors who teach latin, literature, or physics. Furthermore, this method does not reach what, after all, is the essential point, viz.: the modification which Harvard has produced on the undergraduates' opinions. The proper method, I conceive, of conducting the investigation would be this: In the first place, instead of asking a student blankly what his belief is, put to him certain questions bearing upon his attitude toward the Trinity, miracles and a personal deity. Secondly, circulate these questions at the end of every year which a class stays in college, separating from the others such of the students as take one or more courses in the philosophy department. In this way only can you get at the influence which Harvard has on the religious convictions of its undergraduates. It is not going too far to stigmatize the table of the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette as utterly useless for the purpose.

An illustration may be derived from a recent death in England of the vicissitudes of editorial commentators. On the morning of the 2d of January a middle-aged woman, who had recently parted from her husband, was found dead in her bed. The Coroner's inquest led to a discovery of the fact that the unfortunate woman's servant had been allowed to take a vacation on the first day of the month, and that the victim had been quite alone in the house during the twelve hours previous to and following her death. The further fact was disclosed that for some days previous the deceased had been trying to get a man arrested who had been annoying and persecuting her in some way. Various morals might have been drawn from this state of things. The papers might have pointed out the danger of sending servants away, and the inadvisability of living apart from the protecting care of a husband; they might have passed a few sarcasms on the unavailing efforts of the police to find the murderer, and their negligence in not watching over a lone woman who had been threatened by a designing man. All this would, of course, been mingled with a few sage comments on the present social arrangements, which permits the existence of and gives liberty to blood-thirsty monsters. Yet the editor, who in his sapiency had made these comments, would have sadly erred. Further investigation brought to light the fact that the poor creature had died—her face all distorted with pain—from having accidentally allowed a set of false teeth to slip down her throat. Her struggles while she was suffocating so disarranged the bed clothing as to give plausibility to the hypothesis of murder. I mention this case to show how much wiser it is for an editor, whose functions are as various and whose knowledge should be as wide as the things of this earth, simply to say discreetly that an event is significant, without going into an explanation of what the significance is. I am aware that many able commentators on current events do this at present; but the practice should become universal. Much ink and many errors would be saved thereby, and little, if anything, lost.

Since Gilbert & Sullivan made their first great success in "Pinafore," they have produced altogether six operas. All of these operas have been, I judge, financial successes in England; that is, they have run for a year or more in the metropolis, and have drawn well on the road. I include the "Gondoliers" in the estimate, because there is every indication that it will succeed as the others have succeeded before it. In this country, on the contrary, only two of the six operas, viz., "Patience," and the "Mikado," have been a pronounced success. The other four, viz., "Iolanthe," "Ruddygore," the "Yoeman of the Guard," and the "Gondoliers," have been withdrawn at a loss to the managers. I class the "Gondoliers" with the American failures, because, so far as the present production is concerned, it obviously is a failure, although it is my belief that with a proper company it can be made to succeed. Why is it that these four operas have caused or are causing loss to the managers who produced them on this side? They were, as we all know, not up to the standard of "Patience," or the "Mikado," but both in music and libretto they were far superior to the "Brigands," the "Oolah," "Erminie," and the other conglomerations of music hall buffoonery and "catchy" airs which have made successes in this city within the last year or so. They ought to have paid on their merits. If they did not do so it was because they were badly managed. That, indeed, seems to be the truth of the matter. Messrs. Gilbert & Sullivan, like most British authors, probably do not care a jot for the critical approval or disapproval of the American public. They produce their operas over here for the single purpose of getting money. Their reputation enables them to command such terms from the American managers that the latter, in order to get the privilege of production, leaves himself a comparatively small margin of profit. Furthermore, he is obliged to reduce his expenses to a minimum in order even to place this margin between himself and an absolute loss. The consequence is that the production on this side is poor in character, and the opera is not popular enough to draw solely on its own merits; and the manager is soon obliged to withdraw it. Aronson, for instance, when he produced the "Yoeman of the Guard," sent all of his best people off on the road and produced the opera with a comparatively cheap company, and as a result the opera was soon taken off. It is hardly necessary to dwell on the pitiful inadequacy of the latest Gilbertian production, and the conclusion is inevitable that it arises from very much the same cause as the other ones. Messrs. Gilbert & Sullivan defeat their own ends by tying the hands of the American managers with an enormous royalty. It needs no great arithmetical skill to prove that it is better to get a thousand dollars a week for fifty weeks, than two thousand five hundred dollars for ten.

A New Movement in Real Estate.

Close observers of what is going on have noticed from time to time new features that were being introduced in the real estate market, and it can be said without egotism that this paper has not been behind time in calling general attention to such new ideas as seemed to have made the purchase of real estate, for investment or resale, attractive to capitalists. One of these features is the purchase of rows of new houses from the builders by the "House Merchant," a term applied by THE RECORD AND GUIDE in an extended article on the subject not many months ago. The operations of this kind, which were entered into seem to have been successful, for they have been repeated by the pioneers in the business, the success consisting of a reasonably rapid resale, at retail, of the houses purchased in rows. Still later there developed a movement of fair proportions, which embraced not only the sale but the releasing by the sellers of valuable realty, principally on the leading avenues, where stores command such extremely good prices and apartments are in good demand. Bankers, merchants, and capitalists were offered desirably located parcels, and although the prices were high sales were completed because the sellers offered to take leases for terms of years at figures which would net the buyers a good return besides allowing for a reasonable increase in values, owing to the increase in wealth and the population of the city. For the information of our readers in general, and the brokers in particular, we give the names of a few of those who were parties to such transactions as purchasers: Abraham Wolff, of Kuhn Loeb & Co.; J. Monroe Taylor, of Salaratus fame; Ashley A. Vantine, Japanese goods, and considering recent filings we should add the name of Ogden Mills, who bought the Bella apartment house on the southwest corner of 26th street and Park avenue, from the Ottendorfer estate, at $315,500. It is true the sellers in this matter did not take back a lease of the "Bella," still John T. Ferguson, who has been the manager for years, did, and there is certainly no one who knows more about the "Bella" than the manager who has just taken a ten years' lease at $25,000 per annum. There is little doubt that capitalists would gladly put large sums of money into real estate investments if the burden of the care of looking after it closely and the losses resulting from vacancies and the cost of repairs could be done away with by the leasing for a term of years to thoroughly responsible persons. It might furthermore be added that a fair return in the way of interest would be accepted. In the Western States this is a popular form of investment, and it is worth while considering if it would not be profitable to form a real estate company who would purchase such parcels as were well located and substantially built and resell to capitalists to whom they would insure steady and fair interest. This is particularly true in times when money is so cheap. On a basis of 50 per cent. of valuation any amount seems to be obtainable at 4½ per cent. or thereabouts. Let our readers who are capitalists and those who are bankers think this matter over, and the former may invest and the latter arrange some dealings on the plan here outlined.

The Criminal Court House Contracts.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund have decided to divide the contracts for the new Criminal Court House, and not give the work to the lowest bidder for the entire construction of the building. Consequently the masonry work has been let to Dawson & Archer, whose bid was $820,000; the iron work to the Jackson Archtectural Iron Works, whose bid was $284,925; the carpentry work to P. K. Lantry, whose bid was $161,000, and plumbing and gas-fitting to James Fay, whose bid was $11,775, making a total of $1,277,700, against the lowest bid for the entire work of $1,350,000 received from J. & L. Weber. Work will begin next month.

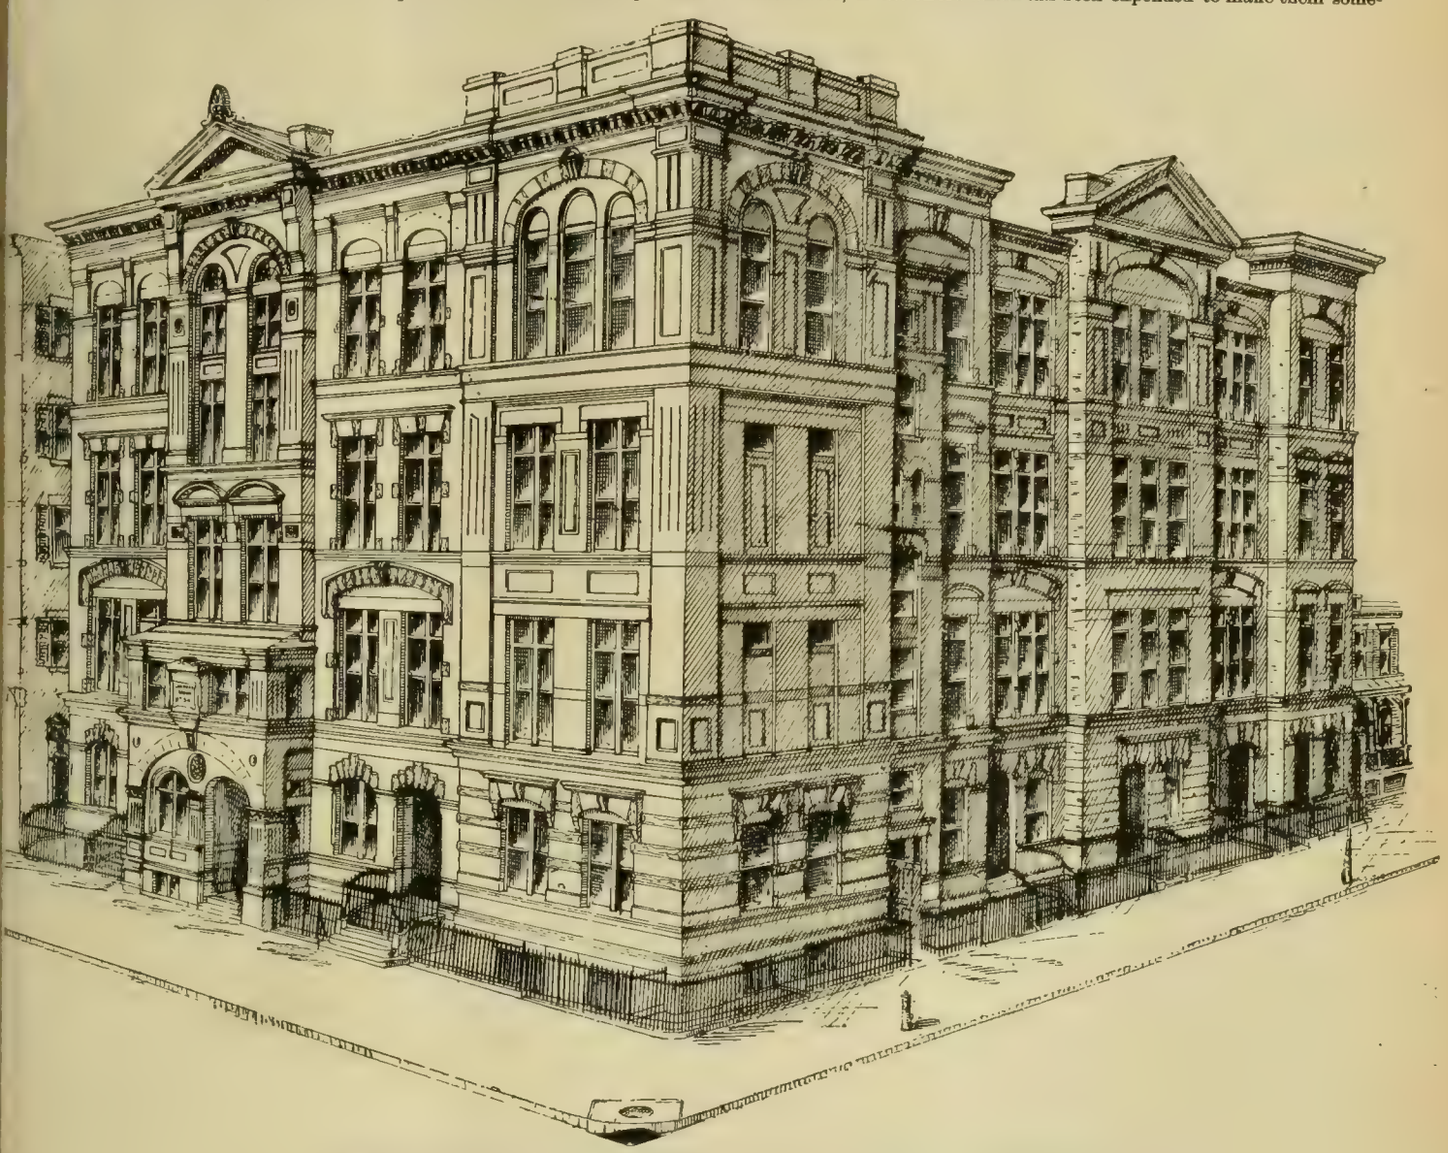
Our Letter Bag—Ninth Avenue Lots.



Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

As a subscriber to your valuable paper, allow me to make an addition to your article in reference to 9th avenue lots. The only really vacant lot, 25x100, without rock, excavated and ready for improvement, located on 9th avenue, between 93d and 104th streets, is the lot on west side of the avenue 75 feet north of 97th street. All other lots between these stations have frame buildings on them, or are in process of being improved.

New Public School Buildings.

The provision made by the city authorities to supply the ever-increasing demand for more and better school facilities has entailed upon those having the providing of such buildings in charge a responsibility which it seems is being worthily discharged. Properly to meet the requirements of to-day and, at the same time, furnish such accommodations as shall adequately provide for the future in such a city as ours, means more than would appear to the casual observer. Certain restrictions must necessarily be laid upon the architect, and he finds, at the outset, that he has many difficulties to overcome in order to secure the best results. It must be borne in mind that "many men of many minds" differ materially as to equirements architectural, the interior arrangement and disposition of floor-space, plumbing, ventilation and light.

There are those who hold that for school buildings no design is called for more pleasing to the eye than that of the factory. They would vote against one dollar's appropriation for the purpose of securing architectural beauty. The idea of constructing such buildings with a view to making them an ornament to the city and a lasting pleasure to the beholder is one with which they have no sympathy. They look upon the school-life of a child as a grinding, manufacturing process to which the factory style of building is eminently suitable. On the other hand there are those who remember happier things, and upon whose lives "school" left no shadow because of its manufacturing processes or barrack-like structure. So we say that, to provide a score or more of buildings for one specific purpose which shall be ornamental and in all appointments abreast of the best of modern improvement, calls for ingenuity of no small order.

The year just passed has been a busy one in this direction, and for the superintendent and architect of these buildings the duties of the present year promise to be still more arduous. We append a list of such school buildings as have either been completed, or are in course of construction, or for which plans are preparing under the supervision of Architect G. W. Debevoise. Much time and thought has been bestowed upon the proper and healthful interior arrangement of these schools, which are to be devoted for years to come to the mental and physical development of thousands of children and inquiry into some of their special, distinguishing features should prove of interest to all.

The following list gives the number, size and location of schools completed and occupied in 1889:

Grammar School No. 85, 125x183, 138th st, 700 e Willis av, 23d Ward.
" " No. 86, 100x160, 96th st and Lexington av, 12th Ward.
" " No. 87, 100x128, 77th st and 10th av, 23d Ward.
" " No. 88, 100x125, Rivington and Lewis sts, 11th Ward.
" " No. 54, 100x128, 104th st and 10th av, 12th Ward.

These buildings invite and will bear inspection. It will be found at once that for the safety, comfort and health of both scholars and teachers they are far and away in advance of older structures, as, in all conscience, they should be. For any one architect to have to encounter all the difficulties which present themselves in designing buildings for various sites in a crowded city like New York, yet to make them models of work thoroughly thought out and conscientiously performed, is surely an evidence of a long step forward toward recognition of the fact that the providing of such institutions is one of the "higher duties." We have reason to congratulate ourselves that this work is progressing in an honest and praiseworthy manner, and that the buildings now being provided for school purposes will prove a credit to the city. They are and will be not only as ornamental in design as the restrictions and allowances admit of, but, what is far more commendable, is the effort which has been expended to make them something better than the herding places which the old style schools ere.

As an example, we note that for the first time in the history of school buildings it has been possible to successfully photograph an interior. This was done at the new school building on the corner of 77th street and 10th avenue. The point of view was the teacher's desk. The picture embraced a succession of three school rooms, each about 24 feet square. Every detail of interior arrangement, decorations, etc., was clearly shown and as distinctly revealed in room three as in either of the first two. So perfect was the picture, by reason of the excellent light with which the rooms are flooded, that every line of the ceiling decorations in each room was prominent and traceable.

And here should be noticed a novel device which is being used to finish the ceiling. It consists of squares of sheet tin, stamped in any fanciful figure desired. These are tacked to a rough foundation of ordinary ceiling boards in such a manner that the joining of each square forms a part of the design. One coat of paint is sufficient to cover and finish this style of ceiling, which in effect is very like Lincrusta Walton. Its durability has been attested by the use to which it has been subjected for two years past in one notable instance. This method of decorating has several points in its favor; it is light, durable and cheap. It can be used to renew cracked or broken plaster ceilings and once in place it is there to stay. A happy thought is suggested by its employment in the schoolroom in the practical use to which the outlined figures may be put in object lessons and drawing. Another notable feature in the new schools is the provision which has been made for heating the halls, ante-rooms and closets, so that children going from a schoolroom where the temperature is 70° to any part of the building as necessity may demand, can be in no danger from the sudden transition from a warm room. Special efforts are making to secure, in the arrangement and appointment of closets, cleanliness and neatness, which will surely beget their own reward. We find also that the plans call for the placing of the girders in such a manner that when the supporting columns are in place throughout the building they are so disposed that in no single instance is a shadow cast upon a desk. There are many other features to which we would like to call attention, but enough have been cited to show the care given to the most essential. In addition to the foregoing list of buildings completed we subjoin the following of such as are in the course of construction, showing the present condition and the date of completion:

Grammar School No. 89, 100x150, 134th st and Lenox av, 12th Ward.
} Roofed in, work on interior being pushed forward.
} To be completed on or before Sept. 1, 1890.
High Bridge School building, 80x85, 23d Ward.
} Roofed in, interior work being done.
} To be completed by May 1, 1890.
Grammar School No. —, 247x68, 163d st and Eagle av, 23d Ward.
} Third tier of beams in place.
} To be completed by Sept. 1, 1890.
" " No. 46, 100x160, 156th st and St. Nicholas av, 12th Ward.
} Second tier beams in place.
} To be completed by Sept. 1, 1890.

The following has been advertised for and contract awarded:
Spuyten Duyvil Primary School No. 46, 75x80, 24th Ward. Probable completion Nov. 1, 1890.

The plans have been filed with the Building Department, to be advertised at once for the 157th street and Courtlandt avenue school, 23d Ward, which is to be 125x160, completed in 1890. Also for the 51st street and 1st avenue school, 19th Ward, 100x100, the completion of which is booked for 1890. Those for which plans have been prepared and are preparing, yet have not been filed at the Building Department and the contracts for which are to be awarded in 1890, are given below:

Grammar School No. 7, Hester and Chrystie sts, 100x160, 10th Ward.
" " No. —, 93d st and 10th av, 100x150, 12th Ward.
" " No. —, 68th st and 10th av, 100x125, 22d Ward.
" " No. —, Broome and Ridge sts, 100x125, 13th Ward.
" " No. —, Mulberry and Bayard sts, 100x125, 6th Ward.
" " No. —, Washington, Albany and Carlisle sts, 100x166, 1st Ward.

The sanitary arrangement of all these buildings will be excellent. All the plumbing is so placed as to be "get-at-able," connection with the streets being made through tunnels, and all the latest improvements in the way of traps, valves and closet appointments will be called into use. When these buildings are completed, as they will be in the course of the next two years, New York will be amply provided with thoroughly good school quarters for the next twenty or thirty years, and she can pride herself upon the fact that at least one branch of her municipal government has not been neglected.

Contemplated Revision of the Street System in the 23d and 24th Wards.

Notice is given that the Commissioners of the Department of Public Parks will, on Wednesday, March 12, at 11 o'clock A. M., hear and consider all statements, objections and evidence in reference to the contemplated revision of the street system in the following "Districts" in the 23d and 24th Wards, viz.:

1. In that part of the "Hunt's Point," "West Farms" "Districts," bounded west by Southern Boulevard, east by the Bronx River, north by Kingsbridge road, and south by Home and 167th street and Westchester avenue.

2. In that part of the "Hunt's Point District" bounded north by Spofford street, east by Hunt's Point road and Faile street, south by Wenman avenue, and west by Legget avenue, Winslow and Tiffany streets.

3. In that part of the "Spuyten Duyvil District" bounded north by Spuyten Duyvil Parkway, east by Waldo street, west by Riverdale avenue, and south by W. C. Wetmore estate.

4. In that part of the same "District" bounded north by the first street north of W. C. Wetmore's estate, east by Spuyten Duyvil Parkway, south by Morrison street, and west by Putnam avenue.

5. In that part of the Central District lying between Jerome and Morris avenues, Cameron place and North street.

6. In reference to proposed discontinuance and closing of Anderson avenue, between Sedgwick and Bremer avenues.

7. In reference to the proposed change of Casanova street from third to first-class, between Edgewater road and Wenman avenue; and of Lane avenue, from second to first-class, between Barretto and Tiffany streets.

The general character and extent of the contemplated change consist in changing the location, width, course, windings, lines, class and grades of, and discontinuing and closing, in whole or in part, certain avenues, streets and roads, extending and laying out others to take their places, and fixing the grades of the several streets within the above-described limits. A map showing the contemplated change is now on exhibition.

Street Opening Proceedings.

The Commissioners in the matter of acquiring land for the opening of Eagle avenue, from 149th to 163d street, have completed their assessments. Objections, if any, must be made, in writing, before March 31st, at 200 Broadway (fifth floor). The abstract of estimate and assessment, with damage and benefit maps, etc., are now at the Department of Public Works, 31 Chambers street.

The bill of costs, etc., incurred by reason of proceedings relative to acquiring lands for the opening of East 145th street, from East 146th street to St. Ann's avenue, will be presented to the Supreme Court, for taxation, on March 4th.

$275,000 for Five Lots on West 125th Street.

The transfer on Monday, by the Hencken estate, of a plot of five lots on the southeast corner of 7th avenue and 125th street, shows that the reports and rumors which appear in our "Gossip" always have more or less foundation in fact. At the time the Hencken estate plot was reported sold, the investors who were quoted as the buyers denied having purchased, and many persons thought there was nothing in the report, but the transfer to George Hillen, the owner of choice corners and well-located saloons, is evidence that something was done. The purchase price, $275,000, or $220 per square foot, is a large one, although the corner is an exceedingly choice one. The sellers take back a mortgage for $234,000 of the purchase price. Harlemites will note the announcement made in another column of the character of Mr. Hillen's contemplated improvements.

Light On a Dark Subject.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

Can you throw any light upon the cause of the greatly reduced tax rate of 1889-90. How is it that with the expenses of carrying on the government of New York City in 1889, being very nearly the same as in 1888, the tax rate was reduced from $2.22 to $1.95? I see from one of the daily papers that the reduction is owing to the valuations on real and personal estate in 1889 being so much larger than in 1888. But I find that they were larger in 1888 over the year before, than they were in 1889 over the year before; yet in 1888 the tax was raised from $2.16 to $2.22. Is not the reason given for the reduced taxes, in the daily papers I speak of, wrong? Perhaps you can tell me something more about it? O. E. J.

[Our correspondent has touched upon a rather important question, possibly without knowing it. The tax rate of 1889-90 would have been much higher than $1.95 if it had not been for the fact that the heads of the city government, from the Mayor downwards, departed from all previous precedents, by appropriating a considerable sum of money toward the reduction of the city's expenditure for 1889, instead of turning the amount in toward a reduction of the Sinking Fund, where it belonged. The object in doing this was quite clear. The Mayor and his cabinet decided to leave a good record behind them of a low tax rate. It will always be a strong point in Mayor Grant's favor that in the first year of his administration the tax rate was lower than it has been for a generation past. But how was this accomplished? Let us see.

On the 27th day of December, 1888, Comptroller Myers sent a communication to the Sinking Fund Commissioners informing them that the sum of $1,770,207 was in the City Treasury representing unexpended amounts and balances not required for special purposes. Upon receipt of this communication the Commissioners passed the following resolution:

Whereas, the sum of $1,770,207.80, which has been derived from various sources and paid into the City Treasury, remains credited to the various accounts on the books of the Finance Department as unexpended balances and amounts that are not now required for the special purposes of the several accounts, I therefore recommend that those several balances and amounts be transferred to the General Fund, for the reduction of taxation, as per resolution herewith submitted.

The amounts are as follows:

Balance to credit of State Sinking Fund Deficiency Account	$60,460 69
State Soldiers' Bounty Fund, balance	463,979 76
Public moneys recovered in settlement of "Ring" frauds	1,126,085 85
Street Opening and Improvement Fund	84,676 39
Other sums	35,005 11
Total	$1,770,207 80

This placed at the disposal of the Commissioners a large sum which, rightly or wrongly, nearly every unbiased official in the City Department felt should have gone to reduce the city's debt. This sum was in itself sufficient to reduce the tax rate considerably below what it was in 1888.

But this is not all. For the first time in our local history the Sinking Fund Commissioners resolved to apply toward the reduction of taxation certain moneys which were previously never applied for that purpose. These appear in the following memorandum:

Reduced by the operation of laws, viz.: Chap. 178, Laws 1889—Interest on bonds and stocks outstanding January 1, 1889, held by the Sinking Fund Commissioners for the reduction of the city debt	$1,617,915 54
On bonds and stocks to be issued in 1889	60,000 00
For amount raised by tax annually under Section 192, N. Y. City Consol. Act	975,769 02

This sum of $2,653,684 was used to reduce the taxes of 1889-90, in addition to the $1,770,207 above mentioned, and thus for the first time in the annals of our city government an amount of $4,423,892 was applied to the reduction of the year's taxes which had never been used for a similar purpose before. Can it be wondered at, then, why the tax rate was so low in 1889 as compared with 1888?

Of course, the taxpayers that year were presented with over $4,400,000 directly instead of being presented with it indirectly—that is, by a reduction of the city's public debt. It is simply a question of bookkeeping, and if our local financiers are willing to keep their books so that the present taxpayer shall save at the expense of the future taxpayer, and the present taxpayer is satisfied with this, no one need complain. But is it wise to leave our debts standing, while we help ourselves to our "unexpended amounts and balances?" That this is good financiering may very well be doubted.]

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

The usual weekly meeting of the Committee on Legislation took place on Tuesday, Vice-Chairman Constant A. Andrews in the chair. Among the members present were Clermont L. Clarkson, Frank R. Houghton, Samuel McMillan, Thomas F. Murtha, Marx Ottinger, Andrew J. Robinson, Townsend Scudder, Thomas C. Smith, George Wolfe, Arthur S. Cox, William D. Murphy, Louis Z. Bach, Isaac Fromme, Richard Deeves, John A. Effray William Kennelly, Herbert A. Sherman, Sinclair Myers, Hy. D. Smith, George S. Lespinasse, Abraham Disbecker and B. F. Romaine, Jr.

The Sub-Committee on Rapid Transit reported, through A. Disbecker, that the public hearing on rapid transit at Albany would probably result in the joint committee of both Houses reporting in favor of the Fassett bill.

The Sub-Committee on Pending Legislation reported, through Thos. A. Murtha, that the bill to make Lincoln's birthday a holiday did not affect the real estate interests either pro or con., and recommended that no action be taken upon it.

The Sub-Committee on Taxation and Assessment reported on Assembly bill 441, the object of which is to "further define property that shall be subject to taxation," and which provides for the assessment of mortgages judgments and other evidences of debt. The bill is an amendment to chapter 392 of the laws of 1883. Sections 1 and 2 of that act are retained. These provide that personal property in the form of debts and obligations for the payment of money due or owing to persons residing within this State, however secured or wherever such securities shall be held, shall be deemed for the purpose of taxation personal estate within the State and shall be assessed at the place of residence of the owners, but one assessment of the same property, however, being allowed within the State except as hereinafter (in the new act) provided, which is inserted to apply to the added sections now before the Legislature, which latter provide that "all liens on real property, mortgages, judgments, etc., are to be assessed in the town, village or ward where the affected property is situated and the amount thereof deducted from the assessed value of such real property (section 3). Under section 4 the indebtedness shall not exceed the assessed value of the real property. Under section 5 liens are assessed in the order of their priority. Under section 6 if liens cover property in two or more towns, villages or wards, their assessment is to be made proportionately. Under section 7 the well-known legislative attempt of the past few years is again made to allow an owner to pay the tax assessed on the lien, such payment to operate as to the holder of the lien as a payment on account of the interest or principal of such lien. Under section 8 liens on railroad, telegraph and telephone company property are not affected. "The objections to be urged against this bill," says the report, "combining as it does the worst features of several bills now or recently before our Legislature, need not in the judgment of your sub-committee, be detailed here. The bill is thoroughly bad and should not pass. Should occasion require your sub-committee is prepared to advance special reasons against the adoption of any of the provisions." (Signed.) Henry D. Smith, Benjamin F. Romaine, Jr., Wm. D. Murphy, Sinclair Myers, committee.

On motion it was resolved that the report be adopted, and that copies thereof be forwarded to the chairman of the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment at Albany and to the Speaker of the House.

On motion it was resolved, after some discussion, to forward all reports made by committees to the Speaker of the Assembly and the President of the Senate, as well as the chairmen of the various committees by whom the different measures dealt with by these reports are considered.

The following bills were referred to the proper committees: Senate bill No. 276, which exempts from taxation literary and beneficial societies; Senate bill No. 278, which appropriates $350,000 for a building and $150,000 for ground, for a new armory for the Sixty-Ninth Regiment; Assembly bill No. 407, which regulates the place where property shall be assessed when divided by division lines of towns, wards and counties; Assembly bill No. 476, which provides for the erection of a municipal building outside of the City Hall; Assembly bill No. 478, an act to legalize and confirm the foreclosure of mortgages on real estate in certain cases, by advertisement; Assembly bill No. 472, which requires property-owners to file statements showing the amount on bonds and mortgages affecting their real estate; Assembly bill No. 507, which releases certain property of the Prospect Hill Reformed Dutch Church from taxation.

L. Z. Bach called attention to the injustice caused by the Excise Commissioners granting licenses to saloon lessees, and refusing to continue such licenses to new lessees for the unexpired term of a lease made by an original lessee, in the event of the latter going to the wall, or vacating through any other cause, the premises so leased. He felt that it was hard on a property owner to allow his place to be fixed up as a saloon, renting it for, say, a term of five years to a lessee, when, should the latter after a year or two be unable to continue his tenancy, the Commissioners refused to grant a new license to a new lessee for the unexpired term of such lease.

B. F. Romaine, Jr., asked Mr. Bach if he could give any instances of such action by the Commissioners, whereupon the latter gave an instance where it had occurred in Brooklyn.

On motion the matter was referred to the Committee on Drafting and Amending Laws.

George S. Lespinasse rose to speak of the injustice done to builders by the levying of taxes on buildings under construction. He said that the lots on which the buildings are in course of erection are of less value than if they were vacant, and he proposed that a committee of three be appointed to confer with the Tax Commissioners with a view to the obviation of this injustice.

Sinclair Myers, in supporting the motion, said that while it was customary not to tax buildings before they were completed, variations in this rule sometimes occurred, and this, it seemed to him, was unjust. The motion was carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Annual Report of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

In every instance the exact figures of the annual report of the Equitable Life Assurance Society are larger than the approximate figures issued in a preliminary statement at the beginning of the year. Its assets at the beginning of 1890 amounted to no less a sum than $107,150,309; its surplus is $22,821,074, while its income is $30,339,288, fully $90,000 a day. Its outstanding business amounts to $631,016,666, and it wrote new assurance during 1889 to the amount of $175,264,100. Its assets are well invested in bonds and mortgages, real estate, United States stocks, State stocks, city stocks, trust companies and other securities. That these investments have been well made is shown by the fact that the market value of the stocks and bonds is $2,697,138.55 over the book value. The company paid its policy-holders $11,842,857.89. The various items furthermore show a handsome increase over last year.

Jay Gould yesterday purchased, through a representative, on the Real Estate Exchange, 97,284 shares of the stock of the International and Great Northern Railroad Company, of Texas, par value $100, for $872,377.79, which is equal to $8.97 per share.

We are indebted to School for the cut of Grammar School No. 54, which is one of the finest of the new types of buildings. It is of brick, four stories in height, 125x100, and will accommodate 2,500 pupils. It cost $175,000, or $325,000 with the land.

Our Taxes and Assessments.

RETROSPECTIVE AND COMPARATIVE.

The estimated assessed valuation of the real estate of New York City for 1890 shows such a considerable increase over the previous year that it may be interesting to compare the figures of valuations with those of previous years and see to what extent and in what proportion we have gradually climbed upward to an altitude which our grandfathers never anticipated in their wildest imaginings.

Let us glance at the figures for the last ten years. With this object we will take the following table, which gives us the assessed valuations from 1880 to 1889 inclusive, with 1890 also, though the estimates for this year, it must be remembered, are only provisional, and will no doubt be somewhat changed when the revision takes place after April 30th:

*These figures, and all those from 1882 to 1889, represent the general tax, and do not include corporations, joint stock companies and associations which are taxed direct by the State under the laws of 1881. The tax on such corporations was as follows: 1882, $2.01; 1883, $2.03; 1884, $1.92; 1885, $2.23; 1886, $1.99; 1887, $1.86; 1888, $1.94; 1889, $1.68.

†Estimated.

The above table is interesting in so far as it shows to what extent the increase in the value of New York real estate has taken place. Presuming that the assessed valuations for 1890 will turn out to be very near $1,400,000,000, it will be seen that in the past ten years there will have been an increase in the assessed valuations of over $450,000,000. As the actual value of the real estate of this city is no doubt at least double the assessed valuation, the advance in values during those ten years must be somewhere around $900,000,000. On a conservative estimate—that is, by basing the increase on the assessed valuations at two-thirds of the entire actual value—the increase would be $750,000,000, an average of $75,000,000 per annum. In the same proportion the assessed valuation of real estate in New York City in 1890 would make the actual value of the real estate in the twenty-four wards about $1,866,000,000. Its value no doubt exceeds that figure by many millions, for it is a generally admitted fact that realty is in many cases not taxed on its full value, while it is rarely taxed over and above its marketable figure. Another point to be noted is that while the assessed valuation of real estate increased over 41 per cent. between 1880 and 1889, the tax rate was reduced nearly 23 per cent. A tax rate of $1.95 on an assessed valuation of real estate in 1889 of $1,331,578,291 produced $25,965,776, whereas a tax rate of $2.53, such as was imposed in 1880, would have burdened owners of real estate in 1889 just $7,723,154 more than they were saddled with, which is equal to $58 for every $10,000 of assessed valuation. Of course, to point out these pleasant facts is only another way of implying the similarly pleasant fact of an enormously increased valuation in recent years, which has more than kept pace with the city's increased expenditures, thus enabling the tax rate to be brought down to where it now is. Seeing that this year's expenditures are likely to be less than those of last year, and the assessed valuations not far from $70,000,000 greater, the tax rate ought to be smaller than it was in 1890. We have hitherto spoken of the tax on realty. Presuming, however, that the increased valuations, on both real and personal estate, will be not less than $75,000,000, as they promise to be, the tax for 1890 should be somewhere about $2.00. It would have been less than $1.90, if a large sum, comprising "unexpended" balances and amounts, happened to be in the City Treasury as was the case last year, which the city could apply to reduce taxation; but this will not be the case in 1890.

Let us now glance for a few moments at the following table, which is given to show what the expenses of running the city government have been during the ten years, and what increase or decrease there was in the expenses over each previous year; what increase or decrease there was in the tax rate over each previous year, and what the increased assessed valuation was year by year. The columns of figures placed side by side make an interesting table. We see, for instance, that in 1880 there was an increased valuation of nearly $50,000,000, while the tax rate was reduced five cents per $100; yet that in the following year, with an increased valuation of over $42,000,000, the tax rate was increased nine cents per $100. On the the other hand, in the very next year, 1882, with an increased assessment of over $47,000,000, there was a reduction in the tax rate of thirty-seven cents per $100. The city's expenditures in the corresponding columns to a large extent supply the cause for these eccentricities of taxation. With larger expenditure comes greater taxation, which can only be kept down or reduced by an increased assessed valuation. This seems to have taken place each year, sometimes to a larger and sometimes to a smaller extent. The greatest increase in such valuations took place in 1887, when the advance was $86,672,377 over the previous year. The smallest increase was in 1885, when the advance was $31,818,660. The tax rate showed the largest reduction in 1882, when it was placed at thirty-seven cents per $100 less than in the previous year, while the smallest reduction was in 1884, when it was reduced but four cents per $100. The largest increase was in 1885, when the advance was fifteen cents per $100 over the previous year, while the smallest increase was in 1883, when it was but four cents per $100 larger than the year before. One of the eccentricities in the tax rate is shown by the fact that with an increased assesed valuation in 1887 of over $86,000,000 there was a reduced taxation of thirteen cents per $100; while in 1889, with an increased assessed valuation of over $50,000,000, there was a reduction of twenty-seven cents, just about double the reduction under the larger increase. It seems probable, with the increased values which appear to be taking place year by year in New York real estate that the tax rate is likely to be brought down to a much lower figure within a few years; that is, provided our city government expenditures do not increase inordinately. The following is the table:

It may not be uninteresting, in view of the large increases which have taken place in some of the wards of New York City, to show the figures of 1880 and compare them with the estimated assessed valuations for 1890. With this object we give the following table, which shows at a glance in which wards the greatest advances in value have taken place during the past ten years. The greatest, an almost phenomenal, increase has been in the 12th Ward, where the advance has been over $133,000,000‡. The next greatest advance has been in the 19th Ward, where there is an increase of $87,000,000. The 22nd Ward shows up next with $61,000,000§. The First Ward, where the large office buildings have been reared, comes in fourth with over $31,000,000. The smallest advance has been in the 4th Ward, where there has been an increase of less than $1,500,000. The percentages in the last column will prove interesting. They show an increase over 1880 of 178 per cent. in the 12th Ward, the 22nd Ward coming next with an increase of 85 per cent., the 24th Ward next with 69 per cent., the 19th Ward next with 63 per cent., and the 1st Ward next with 60 per cent. The wards which show the least advances are the 4th, 23d, 8th, 14th, 15th, 6th, 3d, 18th and 16th, all of which show advances under 20 per cent. The following is the table:

‡ This section runs from 86th street to the northern extreme of Manhattan Island.

§ There is an increase shown in these three wards alone—the 12th, 19th and 22d, all of which are north of 40th street—of $282,771,120, which is over 61 per cent. of the entire increase for the twenty-four wards.

Real Estate Department.

There have recently been signs of greater activity and strength in the real estate market than for some time past. The brokers are, on the whole, doing a good business, while the Exchange Salesroom has presented a livelier condition this week than for a few months past. Not only this, but some of the prices obtained have been a surprise to many people, and the undercurrent seems to be stronger than has been generally supposed to be the case. Not a few persons who hesitated some time ago to pay the ruling prices for property have been forced to offer, and even pay, higher prices since. This holds good in particular sections, however, and is not generally the rule. Still we hear nothing about reductions in the offering prices of property, but rather of the advances demanded by present owners, and it seems more difficult to get sellers to come down than buyers to come up.

On 'Change this has been the busiest week of the year thus far. On Monday the sale which attracted most attention was that of the five four-story houses on 75th street, near Madison avenue, under mechanic's lien foreclosure. They are on a plot 100x102.2, and were knocked down to Samuel Clark at $195,925. Mr. Clark and his broker were plaintiffs in the action, and held a mechanic's lien against the property for $1,000. There were other mechanics' liens against the houses, as well as a first mortgage of $163,500, and a second mortgage, taxes and croton water rents, amounting to upwards of $30,000 more, not to speak of interest charges. Mr. Clark secured the property at $150 over and above the amount of the encumbrances.

On Tuesday the largest sale made on the floor was that of the four-story 25-foot residence, No. 9 West 37th street, near 5th avenue, which was sold to George C. Clark for $61,000. Two five-story flats on 47th street, west of 8th avenue, sold to M. Emanuel for $32,500 each, and No. 1655 3d avenue, near 93d street, a five-story tenement and store, went to A. A. Gordon for $28,000. Quite a little interest attached to the executor's sale of the seven four-story houses on 1st avenue, between 115th and 116th streets, a location where property does not often change hands and where the ordinary buyer rarely turns his eyes. Two well-known speculators secured the houses between them, Herman Wronkow acquiring six of them at prices ranging from $10,550 to $10,850, and Louis Lese securing the other at $10,650. No. 13 Rutgers street, also offered by executors' order, brought $40,000. It is on the northeast corner of Henry street, and is a four-story improved tenement on a lot 25x104. Broker John R. Foley became the purchaser.

The sales on Wednesday were fairly numerous and the attendance was large. On the whole, good prices may be said to have been obtained. Richard V. Harnett sold, among other parcels, Nos. 226, 227, 232 and 233 South street, the plots running through to Water street, for $105,000. Smyth & Ryan sold a number of business parcels for the estate of Laura V. Webb. These included a four-story brick building, on a lot 28x115 feet, on the northeast corner of 4th avenue and 17th street, which was knocked down to Judge Dugro for $102,000; No. 14 West 38th street, a four-story dwelling, for $52,500; Nos. 365 and 367 Canal street, to Peter F. Meyer for $83,000; Nos. 5 and 7 Wooster street for $46,900; and Nos. 239 and 241 South 5th avenue for $33.800. Messrs. Smyth & Ryan also sold three four-story buildings, Nos. 480 to 484 8th avenue, northeast corner of 34th street, 58.5x60 feet in size, to John B. King for $103,000. It is understood that Mr. King purchased the property for a client. A plot of lots on the Bronx River and Westchester avenue were sold by Peter F. Meyer for $75,000.

On Thursday a sale of about equal importance to that of Wednesday took place. It comprised a number of improved and unimproved properties sold by order of the Supreme Court in partition. The first parcel offered was No. 201 Chambers street and No. 193 Reade street, near West street. It comprises a four-story brick building, on a lot 22.2x64.4x23.8 x55.6, and is leased till May 1, 1892, at $2,800 per annum. The first bid made was $30,000, and the price gradually ran up to 43,000, at which figure it was bought by H. W. Gordon. No. 50 Harrison street, near Washington street, a five-story building, now vacant, was sold for $27,500 to George Briggs. The third parcel offered was No. 331 Washington street, a two-and-a-half-story building and extension, on a lot 20x56, which is leased till May 1, 1890, at $1,700 per annum. The property was sold for $23,000 to George Silliman. No. 31 West 4th street, a four-story store and tenement, on the northeast corner of Jane street, size irregular and cut up into eight or nine different dimensions, was bought by H. Wronkow, the speculator, at $15,300. The store is leased at $600 per annum till May 1, 1890, and the upper part at $39 per month. Ottinger Bros., the real estate dealers, secured No. 220 West 14th street, a four-story store and flat, with a one-story extension, at $33,800. The store and basement is rented at $1,200 per annum and the upper floors at $125 per month. James J. Fay purchased No. 356 West 23d street, a four-story, high stoop, brown stone front house, on a lot 25x98.9, for $34,250. It is leased till May 1, 1890, at $2,600 per annum. Nos. 208 and 210 8th avenue went to S. DeWalltearss for $43,200 and $45,000 respectively. No. 208 comprises a five-story tenement and store, rented at $1,200 till May and $1,500 for the year following, with the floors above renting for $1,400. No. 210 is a four-story building, rented at an annual rate of $3,960. Four four-story houses on 21st street, near 8th avenue, were knocked down at from $22,800 to $23,500 each. No. 127 9th avenue, on the southwest corner of 18th street, a lot 25x100, with a one-story, a four-story and two two-story buildings thereon, was knocked down to B. Reilly at $39,250, the first bid being $25,000. The property rents for about $2,920 per annum.

There was only one sale held yesterday, a foreclosure of the five-story flat, No. 235 West 135th street, which was purchased at $31,300 by P. H. McManus, who is a bondsman on the first mortgage held on the property.

For the purpose of comparing the advances in values which have taken place in some sections of New York we give below a table showing the figures at which some of the more important properties sold on 'Change this week, together with the prices at which they previously sold, with the date of sale, and the increase in percentage since. The table is an interesting one. A parcel on 9th avenue shows an advance of 604 per cent. over its price some thirty-five years ago, and a small property on Washington street an advance of 253 per cent. over its figure of fifty-five years ago, not a very large jump in more than half a century, despite the seemingly large increase. The only decrease, marked "D" in the table is that of the private residence on one of the finest spots on the western border of Murray Hill, which shows a decrease of $10,000, equal to 16 per cent. In reference to this sale and the others after 1869, it should be borne in mind that they took place in the years of abnormal real estate inflation which preceded the panic of 1873, or they would have made a different showing. The following is the table:

They supply wall hangings, mural relief, and do general painting in a way that affords satisfaction to their clients. They can also be depended upon for good calcimining, hardwood finishing, graining, stained glass and parquet floors.

I. & S. Wormser, of No. 15 Broad street, offer in another column to lease for twenty-one years a plot of thirteen lots, consisting of the entire front on the west side of the Grand Boulevard between 61st and 62d streets. According to the Post, Herbert Archer, the celebrated London dramatic critic, while finding much to praise in some recent Shakespearean productions in that city, condemns severely the bad reading from which the dramatist's best lines suffer. If the criticism is true for London, it is a thousand times more so for this country. If I had my way I would take three-fourths of the actors and actresses on the American stage and shut them up for a year with a person who could talk English. The reading of nearly all of our minor performers and many of our more important ones is simply detestable. They enunciate badly, accentuate badly, use the wrong inflections and drawl and mouth in a way that would make one think that the English language was created for their particular benefit, and that anybody who presumes to lay down any rules for correct speaking simply denies the right of independent judgment. I will wager that many a school-boy speaking on a class day before his fellow-scholars would be turned off the platform for elocution one half as bad as that of many of what are considered to be our good actors. It is perhaps a difficult thing to read Shakespeare well; but the language of Shenandoah, for instance, is not so rythmical that anybody who has been brought up among educated people cannot speak it intelligently. Yet Mr. Henry Miller in the part of Kerchival West is nothing more or less than insufferable, while the same may be said of the hesitating speechifying of Maurice Barrymore in "A Man of the World." It is one of the principal faults of Julia Marlowe that she follows her own sweet will in using the language of her forefathers rather than humbly submitting to a manner of talking that precedent, euphoniousness and common sense would all of them dictate; while I can stand the stilted, old-fashioned acting of Milnes Levick simply because his elocution is intelligent and correct, if a trifle monotonous. It is bad enough that there should be trapsing around the country a dozen or so companies of language vandals whose business is to murder the Queen's English and dance on the corpse in a way that ought to make David Garrick turn in his grave; but when the same practices are followed by presumably intelligent people who have not the same excuse, I, for one, say that it is carrying things a little too far, and do enter a humble but uncompromising protest against the mouthers and drawlers who render a dramatic performance of the present day an agonizing torture.
